6,000 Reds Raid West Food Units And Riots Follow

Police Seize 150 Communists and Expect More Attacks

Berlin, Aug. 4 (AP)—More than 6,000 Communists, including women, invaded West Berlin today and made three attacks on food stations in an effort to break up the free distribution of American food to East Germany's hungry.

West Berlin police called out reinforcements, and beat back the columns of riot gangs with clubs and water guns in swirling street battles.

Dozens of heads were cracked, and about 150 Communists, including seven women, were arrested.

Police said they expected more attacks. They reinforced their guards around the free distribution centers and moved mobile water guns up to strategic sectors.

The invasions took place in the Neukoellin and Kreuzberg boroughs of the American sector and the industrial borough of Wedding in the French sector.

"We gave them a good beating," said a West Berlin policeman in the American sector.

Many 'Broken Heads'

Police headquarters said about 50 Communists were arrested in the two clashes and that there were many "broken heads."

The riot in the American sector was started by young Communists who infiltrated into a food station area in the guise of food-seekers. While standing in line they began jeering police and the "Amis" (American). When minor scuffling with police broke out the infiltrators were joined by a body of young Communists who rushed across the sector border.

The attacks by Communist storm columns were the first direct attempt to smash food stations in West Berlin. But during the past week the Reds have manhandled hungry Germans who returned home with American aid packages. The Communists also have imposed a blockade on train tickets to Berlin in an effort to stop the floods of hungry from East Germany to the food centers.

Wicks Announces Belleayre T-Bar Bid Is Approved

Roebling Will Build New Accommodation for Skiers at Mountain Snow Center

Announcement was made today by Senate Majority Leader Arthur H. Wicks from his office in Albany that the bid for the new T-bar lift at Belleayre Mountain Ski Center, Pine Hill, by John Roebling, Inc., of Trenton, N. J., specialists in such projects, was approved Monday.

In informing the press that the job was approved for $96,120, Wicks elaborated on the recreation picture in the surrounding area of the center, relative to a swimming pool and golf course.

The senator said he was pleased about plans for the T-bar lift, which will serve three trails, Peekamoose, another that is about completed, and a third which will be started soon and should be ready this winter.

To Be 2,000 Feet Long

Arthur Draper, superintendent at Belleayre, said the T-bar will be 2,000 feet long, with a vertical rise of 500 feet.

A 40-horsepower motor will propel from 500 to 600 skiers an hour, having a greater capacity than the chair lift, which carries 400 per hour.

There will be 40 T-bars on the ⅝ inch cable each of which accommodates two people.

The new lift will serve Peekamoose and another trail between it and Utsayantha. And, Draper said, it will relieve pressure on the present chair lift.

Draper said the new T-bar lift was designed by engineers of the Roebling firm which built the Belleayre chair lift, and the T lift at Whiteface Mountain.

General contractor for Roebling is John L. Washburn of New York, and this firm handled the Whiteface Mountain job.

Four Hundred Allies to Be Freed Daily; Some Were 37 Months Captive

Panmunjom, Aug. 4 (AP)—Four hundred allied war prisoners—70 of them Americans—come home to freedom in a few hours, opening the happiest postscript to the Korean war — "Operation Big Switch."

The Reds are handing over 12,763 captives—3,313 Americans, 8,186 South Koreans, 922 British and 342 from nine other allied countries. Four hundred will be freed daily, 100 each hour for four hours.

Some spent almost all 37 months of the Korean war in bleak prison camps in North Korea.

They'll return to freedom at this neutral center where allies and Reds met for two years and finally wrote an armistice July 27—the ticket to freedom for the POWs.

Allies to Give 74,000

The allies are giving the Reds 74,000 prisoners — 69,000 North Koreans and 5,000 Chinese—the rate of 2,400 able bodied and 360 sick and wounded daily.

On the eve of the great exchange, Red Cross representatives from both sides crossed the line at Panmunjom to begin inspection of prisoner camps and to comfort the homebound captives.

Thirty allied members went north, the first time in more than three years that any allied representative has gone into North Korea without fighting.

Thirty Reds came south under protection of UN military police, grinning like schoolkids at their first ride in helicopters.

Panmunjom itself rustled restlessly as The Hour neared.

To Be Sick, Wounded

The Reds said the first group of 100 men to be freed would be sick and wounded—35 Americans, 50 South Koreans, 8 Turks, 2 Filipinos, 1 Briton, 1 Australian 1 Canadian, 1 Belgian and 1 South African.

An hour later, at 10 a. m., they'll hand back 50 South Koreans, 25 British, 10 Filipinos, 7 French, 7 Colombians and 1 Greek.

The 11 a. m. group will include 35 Americans, 15 Turks and 50 sick and wounded South Koreans.

At noon, 100 South Koreans will be released.

Allied troops hurried through last-minute preparations to care for the freed captives.

To Get Care, Other Things

From Panmunjom, the American prisoners will be sped by truck to Freedom Village, near Munsan, there they'll get medical care, showers, mail, food, press interviews for those who are willing and just about everything else the army can think of.

British prisoners will go to nearby Camp Britannica and South Koreans will go to Liberty Village.

After quick processing at Freedom Village, the Americans will be flown by helicopter to Inchon, the port of Seoul on Korea's west coast. They'll be held there a few days, and then be picked up by troopship for the biggest ride—home.

Some of the sick and wounded Americans may be flown to Japan and on to the United States for treatment.

Record Held as Mixed One of Action and Inaction on Program of President

Washington, Aug. 4 (AP)—At the stroke of midnight, the Republican-controlled 83rd Congress wrote finis to a mixed record of action and lethargy in helping President Eisenhower fulfill his campaign pledges.

But the lawmakers left behind for their second session beginning Jan. 6—or a possible special meeting this fall—an imposing list of key measures which will make or break their record.

Many of the hottest potatoes, including some of the President's recommendations, were simply left in the bin. Others, on the advice of the President, were handed to study commissions for closer scrutiny.

The first session—of the first Congress in two decades to be Republican-controlled while a Republican was in the White House—made a firm start toward edging away from the Democratic Party's New Deal and "Fair Deal" philosophies.

But even Republicans conceded it was only a start—and much of it at that achieved only with Democratic aid.

President to Speak

Eisenhower will give the nation his own estimate of this session's achievements in a radio broadcast Thursday, from 8:30 p. m. to 9 p. m. (EST), to be carried by all major networks and possibly rebroadcast later.

Last night he sent letters of "warm thanks and appreciation" to the House and Senate for the long hours they put in.

There was no hint in the letters of any chagrin over his biggest legislative misfire: A plea to boost the statutory debt limit.

But there was a hint, or appeared to be one, of no intention to call a special session in the fall. With the debt now 272½ billion dollars and more borrowing predicted, Eisenhower's fiscal leaders had been insistent that the statutory debt limit be raised from 275 billions to 290 billions.

Special Session Prospect

A special session in October or November was obviously in prospect. But Eisenhower said in his letters to the members of Congress: "I look forward to seeing all of you again in January. . . ."

When the Senate Finance Committee killed off the House-approved debt limit proposal Saturday, both houses lit into their race for early adjournment again.

Official windup time for the Senate was midnight local time (11 p. m. EST). Actually it ran 39 minutes longer, but the adjournment resolution made midnight the final hour.

The end came in the House at 10:07 p. m. (EST), just three minutes before Sen. Morse (Ind.-Ore) began a speech in the Senate attacking the Eisenhower administration's power policy. About a dozen senators were still on hand at the final gavel.

Pay Raise Studied

But the end didn't come in the House before an angry debate over a resolution to open the way for members of Congress to give themselves a pay raise.

The House approved the resolution 171-28—without a record vote—setting up a commission which would recommend the proper salary level for congressmen and members of the judiciary. Congress would have to vote on the commission's report.

The final logjam was broken when the Senate gave way to House demands to cut out of an appropriation bill 12½ million dollars which had been earmarked for airport construction. That cleared the way for quick passage of the measure appropriating $1,096,000,000 for the State, Commerce and Justice Departments.

In the closing hours that included a pause for tribute to the late Sen. Robert A. Taft (R.-Ohio), Congress pushed through final agreement on a huge 53½-billion-dollar program to finance the spending of the government and the armed services in the year which started July 1.

Not Enough for Balance

The bill was trimmed but not enough to balance the budget.

Senate to Select Leader; Knowland Appears Likely

Washington, Aug. 4 (AP)—Brushing aside some protests, Republican senators today set out to elect a permanent majority leader, with Sen. William F. Knowland of California the only candidate in sight.

And Knowland supporters indicated that Sen. Ferguson of Michigan then would replace him as chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee.

A last-minute effort to delay the election—scheduled at a closed-door session (1 PES) to which all 46 Republican senators were invited—was beaten late yesterday in a contest that may open a breach in GOP Senate ranks.

The delaying move was led by Bridges of New Hampshire who tops all Senate Republicans in seniority, and McCarthy of Wisconsin, who told reporters it would be "a serious mistake" to hold the election today.

Knowland met the challenge head-on by quickly assembling the policy group. It was learned he told the committee he was unwilling to continue as acting leader.

Knowland has been acting leader since June, when Senate leader Robert A. Taft of Ohio unshouldered the task as his health weakened from the cancer which took his life Friday.

In the showdown yesterday, Sen. Millikin of Colorado acted as chairman and reported a "unanimous decision" by the policy group, with Bridges absent

Gilmore Says Reds To Admit Tourists

Associated Press Writer Sees Little Chance of Revolution

New York, Aug. 4 (AP)—Eddy Gilmore, for 11 years Associated Press chief of bureau in Moscow, said today there are indications Soviet Russia intends to admit tourists within her borders again, probably next summer.

Gilmore returned to the United States with his Russian-born wife, Tamara, and their two children. He had been trying for years to obtain Soviet permission for his family to leave.

Gilmore made these observations to newsmen who met him aboard the French liner, Ile de France:

Soviet Permier Georgi Malenkov "has always given me the impression of a man who is very much in charge of the situation."

While there have been many changes in the Soviet Union since the death of former Premier Josef Stalin, "I don't think there is going to be any great revolution."

Change in Attitude

Among possible changes that might take place in Soviet policy is a change in attitude toward foreigners.

"I received several indications that they are going to start letting tourists in again and that it probably will begin next summer," Gilmore said.

Gilmore, despite his length of service in Moscow, declined to de-

Highway Department To Repair Old Bridge

Perrine's, Oldest Covered Span in New York, Needs Attention; to Advertise for Bids

The Ulster County Highway Department is surveying the 103-year-old covered bridge between the towns of Rosendale and Esopus to determine what repairs are needed to assure its preservation.

This was revealed today by Roland Greene, county highway superintendent, who said that when an estimate is made as to which pieces need to be replaced, he will consider advertising for bids.

The bridge, known as Perrine's Bridge, is generally conceded to be the oldest existing covered bridge in the state. It has become a tourist attraction and its picture has appeared on numerous publicity folders, in magazines and newspapers countless times.

Thruway Effect Feared

Renewed agitation for the repair of the historic structure came about in recent months when it was learned that the New York State Thruway will cross the Walkill river at a point between Perrine's Bridge and the steel bridge which now carries Route 32 across the stream. It was felt by many that the old bridge would be incapable of withstanding the blasting that probably will accompany the Thruway construction.

In a state of disrepair at the present, Perrine's Bridge appears to be sagging, particularly near

Taft Is Buried In Ohio Cemetery

Simple Rites Are Held in Indian Hill Church Near Cincinnati

Cincinnati, Aug. 4 (AP) — Senator Robert A. Taft, the son of a President and one of the nation's leaders in his own right, was buried today in the little community which has claimed him as its own for three decades.

His family and close personal friends were the only ones in attendance as a simple funeral service was read in the little slate-roofed Indian Hill church.

There were slightly more than 200 persons in the church.

Fifteen miles away in downtown Cincinnati public officials and the public gathered in Christ Church for a memorial service.

Sen. Taft's body was brought back here yesterday after a state funeral in Washington. He died Friday in New York of cancer. An estimated 15,000 persons viewed the closed bronze casket yesterday evening and last night in a downtown funeral home.

Favorite Hymn Sung

The church choir sang the hymn "Fight the Good Fight With All Thy Might" as the opening hymn of the services at the Indian Hill church.

The hymn was selected by the family as the senator's favorite.

In accordance with Episcopal custom and the wishes of the family, there was no eulogy.

Dulles Arrives in Seoul to Meet Rhee On Post-Armistice Plans for Korea

Seoul, Aug. 4 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles arrived here tonight to confer with President Syngman Rhee on post-armistice American-Korean relations.

Dulles' plane, carrying Henry Cabot Lodge, U. S. Ambassador to the United Nations, and several of the secretary's top aides, landed at 10:06 p. m. (8:06 a. m. EST) 13 hours late after a flight across the stormy Pacific.

By flying to Korea, Dulles fulfilled a pledge he made prior to the signing of the Korean truce—that a high-ranking American diplomat would visit the fiery South Korean President if Rhee agreed not to obstruct an armistice.

Far East air forces said in Tokyo a second big transport carrying U. S. Secretary of the Army Robert Stevens was accompanying Dulles flight.

Dulles is scheduled to confer five days with Rhee, unhappy partner in the Korean truce.

Before his departure, Dulles called the talks "a preliminary exchange of views with the government of the Republic of Korea" prior to the post-armistice political conference.

He will discuss with the fiery 78-year-old President a U. S.-Korean treaty to strengthen the warn-torn country against the possibility of future Communist attack, and the American plan to make Korea a "show window of the free world" by using troops for rehabilitation.

The White House stressed Monday that combat troops would not be used for construction work. A presidential secretary said that instead technical training and equipment will be used to speed reconstruction of South Korea.

Banners on Seoul streets gave some hint of what Rhee wants to tell Dulles. The major points stressed included:

1. Unification of North and South Korea under the Republic of Korea.

2. Withdrawal of Chinese Communist troops from North Korea.

3. Early conclusion of a mutual security pact between the United States and the Republic of Korea.

President Rhee conferred at length with another member of the Dulles party, Asst. Secretary of State Walter S. Robertson, last month.

Rhee strongly opposed the present truce in Korea because it left the country divided with the South holding a little over half of the Korean land area and the Communist North holding a much smaller population group but most of the major industrial cities.

There was a possibility one or more ranking U. S. senators might show up for part of the Dulles-Rhee talks. Two Republicans and two Democrats had planned to go until Congress failed to adjourn as planned last weekend.

Sen Knowland (R-Calif.), acting GOP leader, said he would decide sometime Tuesday on a request by Dulles to join him in Seoul.

There was a report in Washington that Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala.), Democratic vice presidential candidate last year, might take the place of Sen. Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.), the Senate minority leader who originally was slated to go.

Gilmore Says Reds To Admit Tourists

Associated Press Writer Sees Little Chance of Revolution

New York, Aug. 4 (AP)—Eddy Gilmore, for 11 years Associated Press chief of bureau in Moscow, said today there are indications Soviet Russia intends to admit tourists within her borders again, probably next summer.

Gilmore returned to the United States with his Russian-born wife, Tamara, and their two children. He had been trying for years to obtain Soviet permission for his family to leave.

Gilmore made these observations to newsmen who met him aboard the French liner, Ile de France:

Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov "has always given me the impression of a man who is very much in charge of the situation."

While there have been many changes in the Soviet Union since the death of former Premier Josef Stalin, "I don't think there is going to be any great revolution."

Change in Attitude

Among possible changes that might take place in Soviet policy is a change in attitude toward foreigners.

"I received several indications that they are going to start letting tourists in again and that it probably will begin next summer," Gilmore said.

Gilmore, despite his length of service in Moscow, declined to de-

Perrine's, Oldest Covered Span in New York, Needs Attention; to Advertise for Bids

The Ulster County Highway Department is surveying the 103-year-old covered bridge between the towns of Rosendale and Esopus to determine what repairs are needed to assure its preservation.

This was revealed today by Roland Greene, county highway superintendent, who said that when an estimate is made as to which pieces need to be replaced, he will consider advertising for bids.

The bridge, known as Perrine's Bridge, is generally conceded to be the oldest existing covered bridge in the state. It has become a tourist attraction and its picture has appeared on numerous publicity folders, in magazines and newspapers countless times.

Thruway Effect Feared

Renewed agitation for the repair of the historic structure came about in recent months when it was learned that the New York State Thruway will cross the Walkill river at a point between Perrine's Bridge and the steel bridge which now carries Route 32 across the stream. It was felt by many that the old bridge would be incapable of withstanding the blasting that probably will accompany the Thruway construction.

In a state of disrepair at the present, Perrine's Bridge appears to be sagging, particularly near

Cashin Reverses Elting Finding

County Judge Says Proof Is Insufficient on Gaming Charge

The appeal by Arthur Elting of a disorderly conduct conviction in city court has been upheld by County Judge John M. Cashin and the charges against Elting were ordered dismissed.

Elting, 38, of 75 Plymouth avenue, was arrested after a police raid at 650 Broadway on April 29. He was charged on a section of the disorderly conduct provision dealing with the frequenting of a gambling place.

In a decision dated Monday, Judge Cashin stated that there was not sufficient proof that Elting "frequented" the alleged gambling rooms. On the contrary,

Taft Is Buried In Ohio Cemetery

Simple Rites Are Held in Indian Hill Church Near Cincinnati

Cincinnati, Aug. 4 (AP) — Senator Robert A. Taft, the son of a President and one of the nation's leaders in his own right, was buried today in the little community which has claimed him as its own for three decades.

His family and close personal friends were the only ones in attendance as a simple funeral service was read in the little slate-roofed Indian Hill church.

There were slightly more than 200 persons in the church.

Fifteen miles away in downtown Cincinnati public officials and the public gathered in Christ Church for a memorial service.

Sen. Taft's body was brought back here yesterday after a state funeral in Washington. He died Friday in New York of cancer. An estimated 15,000 persons viewed the closed bronze casket yesterday evening and last night in a downtown funeral home.

Favorite Hymn Sung

The church choir sang the hymn "Fight the Good Fight With All Thy Might" as the opening hymn of the services at the Indian Hill church.

The hymn was selected by the family as the senator's favorite.

In accordance with Episcopal custom and the wishes of the family, there was no eulogy.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, Jr.

College President Is Speaker at Art Gallery

Woodstock, Aug. 3—In a plea for the artist to consider his work in the light of the discipline its various mediums impose and also as a means of communication with his fellowman as well, James H. Case Jr., president of Bard College, spoke Friday night at the Art Gallery under the auspices of the Woodstock Artists Association.

Introduced by Harvey Fite, sculptor, who also is associated with Bard College and a resident of Woodstock, Case was described as a philosopher, musician, painter and college president.

After outlining the discipline imposed on the artist by the medium in which he has chosen to work, Case stressed the importance of the artists ability to convey a definite statement in his work. The sculptor works in three dimensions, in stone, clay and in the present era in wire and plastic, while the painter has a two dimensional problem. For the sculptor, he said, special effects are impossible and beyond the capacity of the sculptor, whereas such effects are within the realm of the painter.

He spoke of the dance as being akin to sculpture and also of the theatre as a symphysis of all the arts. Music, he believes, is the most abstract of all the arts and the most universally accepted while literature is the chief artistic vehicle for conceptual communication.

"I believe," Case stated, "that communication is possible in every art and it is the basic task of every artist to achieve it."

He questioned the purpose which makes so many artists deny communication so long as they achieve self expression. Describing the brilliant contribution made in the field of painting and music by the French moderns led by Monet and Debussy, Case urged artists to dispense with the symbols which have been worn thin by repetition. He touched upon Sigmund Freud who revolutionized the basic concept of man, of the great discovery of semantics which burst across the age.

"General communication," he said, "involves two separate creative acts—the original creation and the responsive creation," and added that the artist has done his part when he has the will to communicate and uses his skills to effect it.

In making the distinction between abstract and non-representational art, he observed that abstract art "must be abstracted from something. If you delve into the private and deeply profound Freudian world, however, you are inclined to be in the area of therapy rather than art."

During the discussion period which followed, Case staunchly denfended his premise that art and expression be interpreted in terms that can be understood.

Costume Party Is Held At Pool of Jarvis Home

Woodstock, Aug. 3—A gala "Atlantic City" bathing suit and costume beach party of the 1890 era was held last Saturday afternoon on the lawn adjoining the swimming pool at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Jarvis on Ohayo Mountain. Colorful vendor's wagons ringing the lawn dispensed refreshments to the guests.

While many of the guests were clad for bathing, the accent was largely upon the lace and embroidered gowns of ladies who had no intention of going near the water. There was a gay assortment of ruffles, parasols, high laced shoes and a bustle or two.

After a parade around the lawn before judges Konrad Cramer, Doris Lee, Marion Greenwood, Joseph Forman and Ivan Black, prizes were awarded. Winners in the various categories were as follows: best looking couple—Mr. and Mrs. William Pachner; the most beautiful—Mrs. Adrian Siegel; most authentic 1890 costume—Henry Waters; funniest—Mrs. A. E. Solomon; most imaginative—Dr. and Mrs. Boris Paul.

At the close of the afternoon, Rodney Lethbridge and Pat Collins proved that their costumes were not only authentic but equally as sea worthy by diving into the pool even to mustaches and other regalia of the era.

Sale for Blind Planned

Woodstock, Aug. 3—The church committees directing the Woodstock sale for the blind urge the residents of Woodstock and vicinity to attend. The sale will be held on the Lutheran Church lawn, Mill Hill Road, Tuesday, August 18. Mrs. John Wolven is acting as general chairman of the Woodstock sale.

All merchandise at this sale has been made by the sightless. By patronizing the Woodstock sale, patrons help to keep these workers busy, and contribute to their economic independence. Moreover, visitors will find that each blind-made article on display is of excellent quality and reasonably priced.

Church Schedules Fair

Woodstock, Aug. 3—Wednesday, August 12, beginning at 10 a. m., there will be a fair and bazaar at the Woodstock Dutch Reformed Church. There will be booths handling aprons, books and records, clothing, jewelry and buttons, stationery and handkerchiefs, flowers, handbags and fancy articles, toys and dolls, and art goods. There will be refreshments for everyone and a merry-go-round for the kiddies.

Club Has Installation

Legion Proceeds Told

Woodstock, Aug. 3—At a meeting of American Legion Post 1026, at the Legion Hall last Thursday night, it was announced that a total of $1,129.90 was derived from the display of fireworks July 5.

In the near future the Post plans a get-together for all veterans in the township. Details will be announced at a later date. Joseph Friedberg will act as chairman for the event.

Health Clinic Postponed

There will be no child health conference at Port Ewen August 12 as originally scheduled, Dr. Dudley W. Hargrave, commissioner of health of Ulster county, announced today. The next child health conference at the Port Ewen Health Center will be held September 9.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, Jr.

College President Is Speaker at Art Gallery

Woodstock, Aug. 3—In a plea for the artist to consider his work in the light of the discipline its various mediums impose and also as a means of communication with his fellowman as well, James H. Case Jr., president of Bard College, spoke Friday night at the Art Gallery under the auspices of the Woodstock Artists Association.

Introduced by Harvey Fite, sculptor, who also is associated with Bard College and a resident of Woodstock, Case was described as a philosopher, musician, painter and college president.

After outlining the discipline imposed on the artist by the medium in which he has chosen to work, Case stressed the importance of the artists ability to convey a definite statement in his work. The sculptor works in three dimensions, in stone, clay and in the present era in wire and plastic, while the painter has a two dimensional problem. For the sculptor, he said, special effects are impossible and beyond the capacity of the sculptor, whereas such effects are within the realm of the painter.

He spoke of the dance as being akin to sculpture and also of the theatre as a symphysis of all the arts. Music, he believes, is the most abstract of all the arts and the most universally accepted while literature is the chief artistic vehicle for conceptual communication.

"I believe," Case stated, "that communication is possible in every art and it is the basic task of every artist to achieve it."

He questioned the purpose which makes so many artists deny communication so long as they achieve self expression. Describing the brilliant contribution made in the field of painting and music by the French moderns led by Monet and Debussy, Case urged artists to dispense with the symbols which have been worn thin by repetition. He touched upon Sigmund Freud who revolutionized the basic concept of man, of the great discovery of semantics which burst across the age.

"General communication," he said, "involves two separate creative acts—the original creation and the responsive creation," and added that the artist has done his part when he has the will to communicate and uses his skills to effect it.

In making the distinction between abstract and non-representational art, he observed that abstract art "must be abstracted from something. If you delve into the private and deeply profound Freudian world, however, you are inclined to be in the area of therapy rather than art."

During the discussion period which followed, Case staunchly denfended his premise that art and expression be interpreted in terms that can be understood.

Costume Party Is Held At Pool of Jarvis Home

Woodstock, Aug. 3—A gala "Atlantic City" bathing suit and costume beach party of the 1890 era was held last Saturday afternoon on the lawn adjoining the swimming pool at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Jarvis on Ohayo Mountain. Colorful vendor's wagons ringing the lawn dispensed refreshments to the guests.

While many of the guests were clad for bathing, the accent was largely upon the lace and embroidered gowns of ladies who had no intention of going near the water. There was a gay assortment of ruffles, parasols, high laced shoes and a bustle or two.

After a parade around the lawn before judges Konrad Cramer, Doris Lee, Marion Greenwood, Joseph Forman and Ivan Black, prizes were awarded. Winners in the various categories were as follows: best looking couple—Mr. and Mrs. William Pachner; the most beautiful—Mrs. Adrian Siegel; most authentic 1890 costume—Henry Waters; funniest—Mrs. A. E. Solomon; most imaginative—Dr. and Mrs. Boris Paul.

At the close of the afternoon, Rodney Lethbridge and Pat Collins proved that their costumes were not only authentic but equally as sea worthy by diving into the pool even to mustaches and other regalia of the era.

Sale for Blind Planned

Woodstock, Aug. 3—The church committees directing the Woodstock sale for the blind urge the residents of Woodstock and vicinity to attend. The sale will be held on the Lutheran Church lawn, Mill Hill Road, Tuesday, August 18. Mrs. John Wolven is acting as general chairman of the Woodstock sale.

All merchandise at this sale has been made by the sightless. By patronizing the Woodstock sale, patrons help to keep these workers busy, and contribute to their economic independence. Moreover, visitors will find that each blind-made article on display is of excellent quality and reasonably priced.

Church Schedules Fair

Woodstock, Aug. 3—Wednesday, August 12, beginning at 10 a. m., there will be a fair and bazaar at the Woodstock Dutch Reformed Church. There will be booths handling aprons, books and records, clothing, jewelry and buttons, stationery and handkerchiefs, flowers, handbags and fancy articles, toys and dolls, and art goods. There will be refreshments for everyone and a merry-go-round for the kiddies.

Club Has Installation

Legion Proceeds Told

Woodstock, Aug. 3—At a meeting of American Legion Post 1026, at the Legion Hall last Thursday night, it was announced that a total of $1,129.90 was derived from the display of fireworks July 5.

In the near future the Post plans a get-together for all veterans in the township. Details will be announced at a later date. Joseph Friedberg will act as chairman for the event.

Health Clinic Postponed

There will be no child health conference at Port Ewen August 12 as originally scheduled, Dr. Dudley W. Hargrave, commissioner of health of Ulster county, announced today. The next child health conference at the Port Ewen Health Center will be held September 9.

THE RIOTS SPREAD

Despite harsh Russian methods of dealing with unruly Germans the revolts in East Germany are far from over. Reports from the uranium mining region of Saxony tell of Communist military units sent there to subdue mutinous miners who had overpowered local police. Over 200 miners are said to have been arrested and charged with rebellion or inciting to rebellion.

Meanwhile the food shortage has prompted many Germans to cross into East Germany to get some of the free food offered by the American government. The Russians have protested strongly against the standing offer of free food made by President Eisenhower and have threatened to treat any East Germans who accept it as spies. But hunger is a stronger force than fear.

The Reds have tried everything to restore their strong position in their sector of Germany. They have made hypocritical gestures of friendship and reform to the people. They have ranted and threatened, they have arrested and executed. But new evidence of uprisings is reported every day.

The fact of the matter is that the Germans, and many of the people in the other satellites, are sick to death of Russian domination, of promises instead of food, of denunciation of Americans instead of honest progress. The Reds are still able to hold these people in check because they have military power. But how long will that strength continue to be enough? The desire of the people for peace and freedom, their desperation at impossible living conditions, will continue to result in riots and demonstrations. One day the upheaval will unseat the tyrants. God speed that day.

ESCAPE IN A TANK

In one of the strangest escapes from behind the Iron Curtain on record, eight Czechs made their way across the border in a metal-plated, homemade "tank." The eight, including four men, two women and two children, were fed up with life under the Communists. The driver, a garage mechanic, had made the odd-looking device secretly over a two-year period.

The eight people inside the armored vehicle drove across the Czech border under the eyes of Czech soldiers who were too astonished to shoot. German police said that despite the crudeness of its construction the tank would have been able to divert machine-gun bullets.

The story sounds like a movie adventure. It illustrates the ends that desperate people will go to in order to gain their freedom. Such refugees leave their homes, their jobs all that has been familiar in their lives, to become wanderers and strangers in new lands. Their courage is admirable and should provide pause for thought for Americans who too often take freedom for granted.

It is wonderful to have a camera along on that two week vacation. Pictures will help to preserve the memory of the happy hours spent and years later you can look at the prints and see the scenery without being disturbed by the mosquitoes.

TOO GREAT A TEMPTATION

A new school is being built in New York City, right across the street from the Polo Grounds where the New York Giants play baseball. The school will be of modern construction, it will be surrounded by trees and a playground. The youngsters will not be able to see the baseball field from the school but they will be able to hear the crack of bat hitting ball and the roar of the crowd.

A school official says he doesn't think that the proximity of the Polo Grounds will present any conflict. They point out that school usually lets out an hour or so before afternoon games are over.

One wonders if the school authorities have thought the matter through. It is temptation enough for a boy to spend his afternoon in the classroom when the ball game is far away. When it is just across the street it may prove to be more than flesh and blood can bear.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

FANATICS

Heard the other day that a mild commentator on the radio, who is quite popular and well-sponsored, privately referred to me as a fanatic. I was not present when the profundity was so smugly spoken.

On the radio and television, fanaticism does not do, because it makes a person controversial. With the exception of Walter Winchell, most of the really successful, money-making commentators are not controversial personalities. (I ought to exclude Hans Kaltenborn from the well-behaved.) Some of the fighting commentators, like Fulton Lewis, Jr., have had to set up their own businesses to keep on the air. John T. Flynn, an Irishman with a penchant for the truth, has had a very tough time of it.

Now, fanaticism means excessive, stubborn, uncompromising acceptance of a postulate as the truth. If a man, in any field, is sure that he has discovered the truth, he cannot compromise with those, for instance, who are always willing to take the comfortable middle-of-the-road position, which, in effect, says that if it does not rain today, it could be a nice day. You can't go wrong with that.

Fanaticism, in our times, expresses itself most often in being either pro or anti-Communist. Men, like Senator Herbert Lehman, can be anti-Communist in their thinking but tolerant of Alger Hiss. That makes such a man a "liberal."

Gladstone, the great British Liberal prime minister, was always sure of his position, fanatically sure; but then he lived in another era when liberalism meant an expansion of human freedom and not an escape from decision.

If one believes in the laws of life, as developed in the Jewish, Christian and Islamic religions, accepting a universal God whose divine intelligence provides the Natural Law of all mankind as a way of life, then it is impossible to compromise with Marxism, which, being based upon materialism, rejects God as a superstition and Natural Law as a myth.

Here is a field for fanaticism because compromise is impossible. The smug and the complacent always take the position that not knowing where the truth lies, they insist there are no absolutes. But the believer, the man of faith, whether he believes in God or in Marx, cannot be comforted by ignorance.

The small number of Protestant clergy and Jewish rabbis who fumble over Marxism are not comfortable intellectually, because they are torn between conflicting ideas in their effort to straddle an unbridgeable gap. If they find any justification for Communism at all, it is in their own opposition to capitalism. Yet they know that once the concept of the dignity of the individual man is deserted, slavery follows logically.

There is nothing illogical or irrational in the Communist reinstitution of human slavery. It is an inevitable result of a retreat from the concept of the creation of man in the image of God. That is why Thomas Jefferson restated the concept of man as a created being in the Declaration of Independence. Without that postulate, he could not have asserted individual liberty.

On this subject, no compromises are possible. Either one accepts the Jewish, Christian, Islamic concept of man or he rejects it. Marx rejected it and built a philosophy of life around the rejection. That philosophy controls a state which has mastered 800,000,000 people.

True, that state exists and we have to have business with it, just as a father might be faced by the irrefutable fact that a daughter is a prostitute or a son, an alcoholic. We are often involved in ugly but indisputable facts. That does not mean that we accept the irregular or obscene as right because it exists, any more than we accept polio or cancer as good because they exist.

Here is where such smug people as the nameless commentator fail to think their problems through, always an unpleasant task. He would undoubtedly call himself a Christian; yet, the essence of Christianity is the Natural Law as revealed to man by God. Without that there can be no Christianity that is in any way related to Jesus.

This problem of Marx vs. God, described so vividly by Job and so modernly by Goethe and so offensively by Nietzsche, is the center of conflict in our age. Artful dodgers will move about it, but the pressure of belief and faith is thunderous on either side.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

THE SOCIAL WORKER'S VALUE

When we think of a patient in hospital, with his physician visiting him daily and a nurse or nurses carrying out the physician's orders, we may feel that "everything" is being done for him that, humanly speaking, can be done. Yet there is another daily or weekly visitor who may have as much to do with helping the patient to bear his sickness and gradually get better as the physician and nurses. I refer to the social worker.

In the Bulletin of the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Mrs. Helen Z. Wortis, Research Associate of the Hospital for Special Surgery, Cerebral Palsy Clinic, New York, states:

"Unlike the other team members helping the handicapped child, the social worker is not involved primarily with direct treatment of the handicapped child. Nevertheless her work is as essential to restoring the child to his best possible health, mentally, physically and emotionally, as that of the other members of the school team."

Because so little has been written about the social worker in the school for cerebral palsied children, a description of her services to parents as part of the school team should be of interest.

"It is well known that the rate of improvement in a handicapped condition is related not alone to the nature and severity of the handicap. It is recognized that other factors beyond correct and adequate care influence improvement. The child's 'drive,' the parents' willingness to allow him to use his increased independence, relationship to the family group and other non-handicapped individuals, the availability of recreation or group activities and his 'emotional' maturity, all play a major part in his improvement or failure to improve."

We must remember that the cerebral palsied child is handicapped physically, mentally and emotionally and all these three handicaps can be greatly overcome in so far as this is humanly possible, so that "in the school situation the social worker is the person whose responsibility is to help mobilize or gather together all these outside factors that will create the best situation for growth and development."

This mobilizing of factors outside the efforts of physician and nurses includes informing the parents of how the all-round needs of the child are best met by this everyday school program, needs that cannot be met in the ordinary or regular schoolroom. These handicapped children are too severely handicapped to fit in with normal children.

Naturally, the parents of these handicapped children are "nervous" about everything connected with their child and even with the best intentions can interefere with the child's progress. It is just here that the social worker can be of great help to the parents and to the child. Many of these parents have never been separated from the handicapped child for even a few hours.

Operation Recess

Edson's Washington News Notebook

Washington, (NEA)—While reorganization of the executive departments of the federal government has been giving Congress a lot of bother this year, reforms in congressional machinery are being given only a hit-and-miss treatment.

The serious bog-down of the congressional program this year has made many politicians realize there is room for improvement in the law-making department. This has not reached the stage of being a movement for another complete reorganization. It is more of a piecemeal approach to patch up specific shortcomings. Nothing may be done about them this year.

Dr. George B. Galloway, a political scientist now in the legislative reference section of Library of Congress, has made a convenient summary of some of the shortcomings of the 1946 reorganization. By experience, he is thoroughly familiar with the subject.

Congress is still handicapped by the lack of a modern personnel system, he believes. The congressional work load has not been reduced, but more and better staff aids have enabled it to do a better job.

Committees Overburdened

The judiciary committees are still overburdened with thousands of private claim bills, immigration and deportation bills. Congress is still weighted down by having to serve as city council for the District of Columbia.

The fiscal control provisions of the reorganization law have either been ignored or have proved unworkable in practice, Dr. Galloway believes. Registration of lobbyists has been handicapped by defects in the law and by a federal court decision that it is unconstitutional.

This case is now before the Supreme Court on appeal. It is expected Congress will be asked to clarify the lobby registration section.

A revised draft has already been prepared by the staff of a Senate government operations subcommittee under Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine. The committee has not considered the new section, however, and probably will not do so before the next session of Congress, or until it hears from the Supreme Court.

The main problem here is who shall be required to register as a lobbyist. Many organizations refuse to register because they claim their "principal purpose" is not to influence legislation. A study made by W. Brooke Graves in 1950 showed that of 1800 organizations maintaining offices in Washington, only 800 had registered.

A proposal for handling all government appropriations in a single, omnibus bill, instead of a dozen separate money bills, has received much support. As a companion measure, Sen. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia has proposed a constitutional amendment which would allow the President to veto individual items in appropriation bills, after their passage by Congress. These two reforms must be put through together if the legislatives budget idea is to be at all workable.

Again, as in 1946, there is a strong feeling among congressmen that their own pay should be increased. Before 1946 they received $10,000 a year. This was raised to $12,500 and congressmen were given a $2,500 tax-free allowance.

Sen. Pat McCarran of Nevada and others now propose that congressional salaries be raised to $25,000 a year.

Trying to make it appear that the Congress had not voted to raise its own pay, a bill was drafted which set up an 18-member commission to study the question. But any recommended raises were to be put into effect automatically when recommended by the commission. Rep. Usher L. Burdick (R.-N.D.) blasted this as "sneaky."

Without a record vote, the House has also passed a bill which would allow congressmen to deduct their living costs in Washington as a business expense for income tax purposes. This is intended as a blind for the $2,500 nontaxable expense account, which has been severely criticized.

But if congressmen vote themselves a raise in this year of economizing and $10 billion budget deficits, they'll have to do some tall explaining when they get home. That isn't the kind of congressional reform the voters want.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By HAL BOYLE

New York, (AP)—What role does chance play in your life?

The chances are that a quirk of chance..A street you turned down long ago..a book you read..the passing advice of a friend or teacher..a blind date..a door you knocked on and entered..helped lead you to where you are today.

The odd links of chance or happenstance don't make a man, but they do direct the path he treads.

If he knowingly takes a chance and succeeds, he is likely to call it destiny. If another fellow takes the same chance and fails, he gloomily calls it doom.

"Some fellows get all the breaks," glumly says the unsuccessful man. "If I just had another chance, I'd.."

No End to Chance

But there never is an end to chance. Chances lie all around every life, like stepping stones to a hidden gold mine. Unfortunately, rarely do these chances bear a sign saying, "this way to your own Fort Knox."

The truth is that man can't help taking a chance. Every step he takes leads from one chance to another.

Chance several times saved the life of Winston Churchill as a young war correspondent and soldier. In France during the First World War he was called from a dugout five minutes before it was blown to bits.

Churchill took a long chance in the Dardanelles amphibious campaign in that same war—and lost. All his long political life Sir Winston has been willing to gamble on a chance, and—win or lose—go blithely on to the next chance.

Accidents Major Factor

Accidents have been a major factor in the careers of many business leaders. As a boy Dave Sarnoff kept his family going by running a newstand and singing in a synagogue for $1.50 a week.

One day he headed downtown to try to get a full-time job in a newspaper. By mistake he went into a communications building instead of a newspaper, but was offered a job as office boy and took it.

The possibilities of wireless fascinated him. Today Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, a pioneer in radio and television, heads the vast Radio Corporation of America. What if he had gone into the right building? Would he be a reporter now? Or would he own the newspaper?

Sometimes what looks like a bad break is actually the portal to a better opportunity. It was that way with Alfred C. Fuller.

Get Off Pay Roll

Fuller, fresh off a Nova Scotia farm, came to Boston in 1903 to seek his fortune. He became a streetcar conductor, and soon was promoted to $12 a week. Weary of collecting fares, however, he eased himself into the motorman's seat one morning and steered an empty trolley from the car barn out to the street—and right off the tracks. Five minutes later he was off the pay roll, too.

He began selling brushes from door to door for a local firm. In 1906 he started his own business with $375. The first year the company took in only $8,500—a sum many of his salesmen now net for themselves—then went on to millions. Fuller always regarded his moment of bad luck as the best break of his life.

The annals of industry and politics are full of such stories. Chance may step into your life at any second, as you pursue the most routine tasks, to offer you romance, new friends, or a new career.

Hasn't it already happened to you? If it hasn't, it will. The art of living is to recognize the right chances when they come your way.

Unusual Proportion of 'Missing' Is Reported as Result of Korean War

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Aug 4 — Where are the 8,302 American boys who up to now have been officially reported as "missing" in Korea and presumably were captured by the enemy?

Only 3,313 Americans who were taken prisoner are to be returned. The Communists profess ignorance as to what happened to the other 8,302.

In wartime a certain number of the "missing" are never accounted for, but it is a small percentage. Thus, in World War 2 the official statistics showed 313,000 dead and 12,744 missing. This figures out at about four per cent of the total deaths.

But in the Korean war out of 33,419 dead about 25 per cent—an unprecedented proportion—died behind enemy lines.

This means unquestionably that many prisoners were shot with their hands tied behind their backs and that many others died of starvation or were tortured on forced marches.

When the full story of the cruelty of the Communists gets out—and there are ways by which it will get out—the world will learn of a barbarism and brutality unparalleled in modern wars.

Only 3,313 Americans are coming back, but they will bring with them facts and information concerning their comrades and the circumstances under which they died. Will the press print their stories? The American newspapers will, of course, if available. But some members of the British press will call them "atrocity stories calculated to injure the forthcoming peace conference." That was the attitude taken abroad when the first wounded prisoners came back earlier this year—the British disparaged all the talk about atrocities as exaggerations.

But figures don't lie. What did become of the 8,302 Americans? These were the boys who, according to the rules of war, should have been treated humanely. Governments which do not discharge their obligations to be humane are not entitled to recognition by the civilized world. But already debate in the British parliament indicates an impatience with the United States government because American officials don't want to accord recognition and a seat in the Security Council of the UN to the Red China government whose commanders are responsible for the deaths of these 8,302 Americans.

When World War 2 was over, there were trials of "war criminals." But evidently there are not to be any trials now. For this is a new kind of "victory," in which everybody is supposed to be so overjoyed that the firing has ended that no questions are to be asked concerning the acts of the aggressor governments or their war criminals.

The only way there could be a "victory for collective security" is to punish the aggressor. But the British government doesn't want to do this. The secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, made a statement a few days ago that America would not trade unification of Korea for the admission of Red China to the UN—and then the British Parliament exploded. Mr. Dulles then had to make a statement that the United States wouldn't walk out of the "political conference" if it developed into a "sham" unless he consulted the British and other allies.

Nobody here ever supposed for a moment that an American secretary of state would propose an ending of the "political conference" without saying something in advance about it to the British and the other allies. But in London they seem to think American officials are inexperienced tyros and don't know the amenities of diplomacy.

What the British do not realize is that, every time their Parliament acts with such cruel indifference to American sacrifices in the Korean war, a case is being built up for the eventual withdrawal of all military forces of the United States from Europe. Isolationists by the millions are being bred as a result of the experience of the United States in the Korean war. Reward to the aggressor governments whose forces murdered 8,302 American boys isn't going to advance the cause of "collective security" in America.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

I have just had an interesting visit with Mrs. Bella Dodd, a lady who went into the Communist party for a period of years, forsaking the Catholic religion not merely as a convenience but through conviction, but eventually returned to her church and since then has been fighting the Communists as ardently as she once fought for them. Mrs. Dodd derives that name, which I take to be of English derivation, from her late husband, a member of a Georgia family of citizen-warriors in the service of the United States. She is of Italian stock, with dark eyes and hair and ivory complexion and features more pleasant than I might have thought them if I had encountered her when she was a Red.

The first purpose of our conversation was to enlarge my knowledge of a deliberate attempt of the Communists to penetrate the Catholic community primarily in New York city. This phenomenon was touched up with a hot poker recently by Pat Scanlon, the editor of the Brooklyn diocesan weekly, The Tablet. The apparatus, as the Communist jargon goes, for this penetration was a front called the Catholic Committee for Civil Rights. The venture failed thanks in large part to Mr. Scanlon's fighting vigilance at the time, but Mrs. Dodd said the Reds actually did make some headway in their purpose of disarming Catholics against Communist movements by making use of persons with Irish names and Catholic background. In some cases, she observed, that "background" was not up-to-date, as where the individual had "fallen away" whether by positive act or renunciation by neglect.

Mrs. Dodd said it was less easy to attract Catholics of Irish background than Catholics of other parentage and that, therefore, the Communist with an Irish name was at a premium. She said Harold King and Tom Davin, a teacher and a newspaper reporter of little professional consequence, were known to her as card-carrying members of the party and that they took part in the formation of the Catholic Committee for Civil Rights. The man in charge of the formation of the committee was one Bill Lawrence, who has since fallen into obscurity. Mrs. Dodd refused to take any part in this effort to penetrate the Catholic fold. Her expressed position was that she would be either a Catholic or Communist.

At that time, 1937 and 1938, the French Communists had issued a poster showing Maurice Thorez, the French Communist leader, extending an open hand to the French Catholics. The party realized that a large proportion of the workers were Catholics and decided to try to lull their suspicions by such gestures. She said that, consistent with the drive for Catholic workers of Irish stock, John Santo, a Rumanian hairdresser who bored into the Transport Workers' Union in New York, adopted an Irish brogue "so thick you could cut it with a knife" because many of the street-car employes and other eligible workers in the jurisdiction of the TWU were natives of Ireland or sons of immigrants from Ireland. Santo later was ordered deported and fled on his own volition.

Mrs. Dodd said Mike Quill, a native of Ireland, who speaks with an authentic brogue, was seized upon as a fine one likely to rise to command in this field because he had a talent for the work and "wanted to go somewhere." He went into the TWU from the status of a digger at $25 a week working on a subway. The party immediately took action to guide Quill by assigning a "contact" named Martin Young who had been an organizer in Pittsburgh. At first in this assignment, Mrs. Dodd said, Young was on the party payroll but later he went on the union payroll.

She did not say that Quill himself joined the party. She believed he might yet be effective as an anti-Communist. It was sufficient for the party's purpose that its influence was dominant among this large element of Catholics of Irish stock.

Mrs. Dodd said she was shocked when a Communist approached her telling her that he was a brother of Emanuel Chapman, a Catholic convert who was teaching "the philosophy of beauty" at Fordham University, a Jesuit institution, and that Emanuel would "help us to get Catholics" for the Catholic committee for human rights. As I have related, she refused to have anything to do with this effort to penetrate her old fold to which she has now returned.

Mr. Scanlon, of the Tablet, was practically alone in spotting this front as such at the time and denouncing it.

THE RIOTS SPREAD

Despite harsh Russian methods of dealing with unruly Germans the revolts in East Germany are far from over. Reports from the uranium mining region of Saxony tell of Communist military units sent there to subdue mutinous miners who had overpowered local police. Over 200 miners are said to have been arrested and charged with rebellion or inciting to rebellion.

Meanwhile the food shortage has prompted many Germans to cross into East Germany to get some of the free food offered by the American government. The Russians have protested strongly against the standing offer of free food made by President Eisenhower and have threatened to treat any East Germans who accept it as spies. But hunger is a stronger force than fear.

The Reds have tried everything to restore their strong position in their sector of Germany. They have made hypocritical gestures of friendship and reform to the people. They have ranted and threatened, they have arrested and executed. But new evidence of uprisings is reported every day.

The fact of the matter is that the Germans, and many of the people in the other satellites, are sick to death of Russian domination, of promises instead of food, of denunciation of Americans instead of honest progress. The Reds are still able to hold these people in check because they have military power. But how long will that strength continue to be enough? The desire of the people for peace and freedom, their desperation at impossible living conditions, will continue to result in riots and demonstrations. One day the upheaval will unseat the tyrants. God speed that day.

ESCAPE IN A TANK

In one of the strangest escapes from behind the Iron Curtain on record, eight Czechs made their way across the border in a metal-plated, homemade "tank." The eight, including four men, two women and two children, were fed up with life under the Communists. The driver, a garage mechanic, had made the odd-looking device secretly over a two-year period.

The eight people inside the armored vehicle drove across the Czech border under the eyes of Czech soldiers who were too astonished to shoot. German police said that despite the crudeness of its construction the tank would have been able to divert machine-gun bullets.

The story sounds like a movie adventure. It illustrates the ends that desperate people will go to in order to gain their freedom. Such refugees leave their homes, their jobs all that has been familiar in their lives, to become wanderers and strangers in new lands. Their courage is admirable and should provide pause for thought for Americans who too often take freedom for granted.

It is wonderful to have a camera along on that two week vacation. Pictures will help to preserve the memory of the happy hours spent and years later you can look at the prints and see the scenery without being disturbed by the mosquitoes.

TOO GREAT A TEMPTATION

A new school is being built in New York City, right across the street from the Polo Grounds where the New York Giants play baseball. The school will be of modern construction, it will be surrounded by trees and a playground. The youngsters will not be able to see the baseball field from the school but they will be able to hear the crack of bat hitting ball and the roar of the crowd.

A school official says he doesn't think that the proximity of the Polo Grounds will present any conflict. They point out that school usually lets out an hour or so before afternoon games are over.

One wonders if the school authorities have thought the matter through. It is temptation enough for a boy to spend his afternoon in the classroom when the ball game is far away. When it is just across the street it may prove to be more than flesh and blood can bear.

'These Days'

FANATICS

Heard the other day that a mild commentator on the radio, who is quite popular and well-sponsored, privately referred to me as a fanatic. I was not present when the profundity was so smugly spoken.

On the radio and television, fanaticism does not do, because it makes a person controversial. With the exception of Walter Winchell, most of the really successful, money-making commentators are not controversial personalities. (I ought to exclude Hans Kaltenborn from the well-behaved.) Some of the fighting commentators, like Fulton Lewis, Jr., have had to set up their own businesses to keep on the air. John T. Flynn, an Irishman with a penchant for the truth, has had a very tough time of it.

Now, fanaticism means excessive, stubborn, uncompromising acceptance of a postulate as the truth. If a man, in any field, is sure that he has discovered the truth, he cannot compromise with those, for instance, who are always willing to take the comfortable middle-of-the-road position, which, in effect, says that if it does not rain today, it could be a nice day. You can't go wrong with that.

Fanaticism, in our times, expresses itself most often in being either pro or anti-Communist. Men, like Senator Herbert Lehman, can be anti-Communist in their thinking but tolerant of Alger Hiss. That makes such a man a "liberal."

Gladstone, the great British Liberal prime minister, was always sure of his position, fanatically sure; but then he lived in another era when liberalism meant an expansion of human freedom and not an escape from decision.

If one believes in the laws of life, as developed in the Jewish, Christian and Islamic religions, accepting a universal God whose divine intelligence provides the Natural Law of all mankind as a way of life, then it is impossible to compromise with Marxism, which, being based upon materialism, rejects God as a superstition and Natural Law as a myth.

Here is a field for fanaticism because compromise is impossible. The smug and the complacent always take the position that not knowing where the truth lies, they insist there are no absolutes. But the believer, the man of faith, whether he believes in God or in Marx, cannot be comforted by ignorance.

The small number of Protestant clergy and Jewish rabbis who fumble over Marxism are not comfortable intellectually, because they are torn between conflicting ideas in their effort to straddle an unbridgeable gap. If they find any justification for Communism at all, it is in their own opposition to capitalism. Yet they know that once the concept of the dignity of the individual man is deserted, slavery follows logically.

There is nothing illogical or irrational in the Communist reinstitution of human slavery. It is an inevitable result of a retreat from the concept of the creation of man in the image of God. That is why Thomas Jefferson restated the concept of man as a created being in the Declaration of Independence. Without that postulate, he could not have asserted individual liberty.

On this subject, no compromises are possible. Either one accepts the Jewish, Christian, Islamic concept of man or he rejects it. Marx rejected it and built a philosophy of life around the rejection. That philosophy controls a state which has mastered 800,000,000 people.

True, that state exists and we have to have business with it, just as a father might be faced by the irrefutable fact that a daughter is a prostitute or a son, an alcoholic. We are often involved in ugly but indisputable facts. That does not mean that we accept the irregular or obscene as right because it exists, any more than we accept polio or cancer as good because they exist.

Here is where such smug people as the nameless commentator fail to think their problems through, always an unpleasant task. He would undoubtedly call himself a Christian; yet, the essence of Christianity is the Natural Law as revealed to man by God. Without that there can be no Christianity that is in any way related to Jesus.

This problem of Marx vs. God, described so vividly by Job and so modernly by Goethe and so offensively by Nietzsche, is the center of conflict in our age. Artful dodgers will move about it, but the pressure of belief and faith is thunderous on either side.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

THE SOCIAL WORKER'S VALUE

When we think of a patient in hospital, with his physician visiting him daily and a nurse or nurses carrying out the physician's orders, we may feel that "everything" is being done for him that, humanly speaking, can be done. Yet there is another daily or weekly visitor who may have as much to do with helping the patient to bear his sickness and gradually get better as the physician and nurses. I refer to the social worker.

In the Bulletin of the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Mrs. Helen Z. Wortis, Research Associate of the Hospital for Special Surgery, Cerebral Palsy Clinic, New York, states:

"Unlike the other team members helping the handicapped child, the social worker is not involved primarily with direct treatment of the handicapped child. Nevertheless her work is as essential to restoring the child to his best possible health, mentally, physically and emotionally, as that of the other members of the school team."

Because so little has been written about the social worker in the school for cerebral palsied children, a description of her services to parents as part of the school team should be of interest.

"It is well known that the rate of improvement in a handicapped condition is related not alone to the nature and severity of the handicap. It is recognized that other factors beyond correct and adequate care influence improvement. The child's 'drive,' the parents' willingness to allow him to use his increased independence, relationship to the family group and other non-handicapped individuals, the availability of recreation or group activities and his 'emotional' maturity, all play a major part in his improvement or failure to improve."

We must remember that the cerebral palsied child is handicapped physically, mentally and emotionally and all these three handicaps can be greatly overcome in so far as this is humanly possible, so that "in the school situation the social worker is the person whose responsibility is to help mobilize or gather together all these outside factors that will create the best situation for growth and development."

This mobilizing of factors outside the efforts of physician and nurses includes informing the parents of how the all-round needs of the child are best met by this everyday school program, needs that cannot be met in the ordinary or regular schoolroom. These handicapped children are too severely handicapped to fit in with normal children.

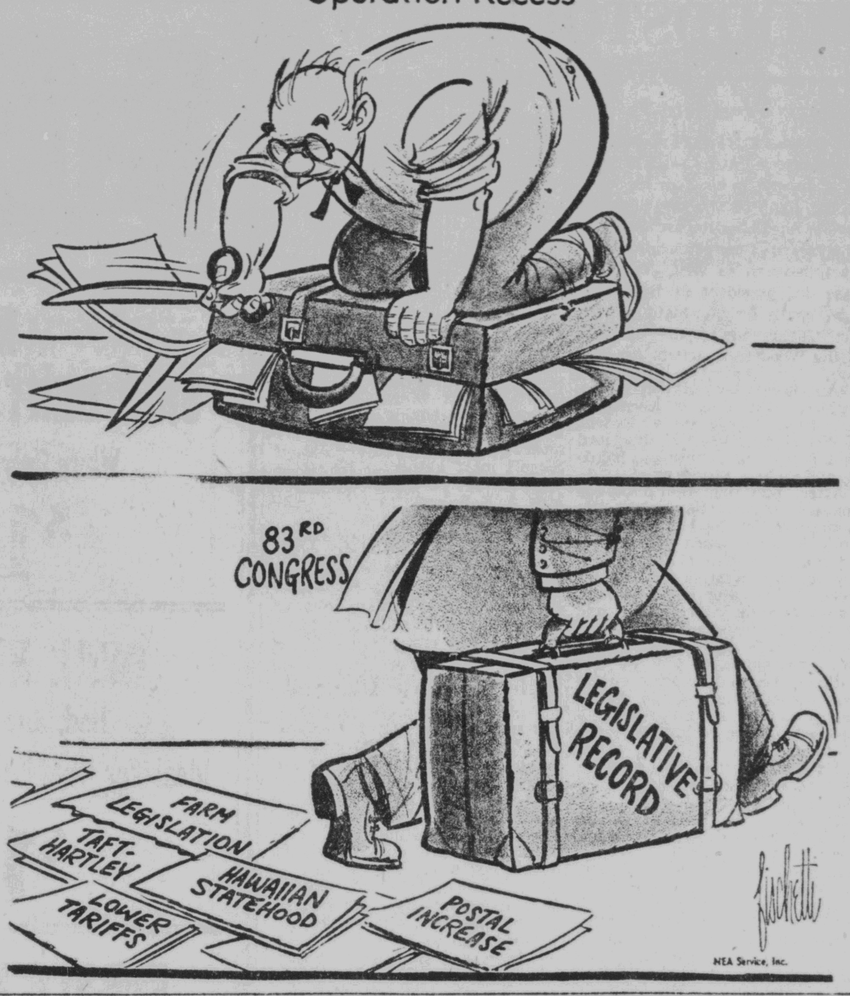

Naturally, the parents of these handicapped children are "nervous" about everything connected with their child and even with the best intentions can interefere with the child's progress. It is just here that the social worker can be of great help to the parents and to the child. Many of these parents have never been separated from the handicapped child for even a few hours.

Operation Recess

Edson's Washington News Notebook

Washington, (NEA)—While reorganization of the executive departments of the federal government has been giving Congress a lot of bother this year, reforms in congressional machinery are being given only a hit-and-miss treatment.

The serious bog-down of the congressional program this year has made many politicians realize there is room for improvement in the law-making department. This has not reached the stage of being a movement for another complete reorganization. It is more of a piecemeal approach to patch up specific shortcomings. Nothing may be done about them this year.

Dr. George B. Galloway, a political scientist now in the legislative reference section of Library of Congress, has made a convenient summary of some of the shortcomings of the 1946 reorganization. By experience, he is thoroughly familiar with the subject.

Congress is still handicapped by the lack of a modern personnel system, he believes. The congressional work load has not been reduced, but more and better staff aids have enabled it to do a better job.

Committees Overburdened

The judiciary committees are still overburdened with thousands of private claim bills, immigration and deportation bills. Congress is still weighted down by having to serve as city council for the District of Columbia.

The fiscal control provisions of the reorganization law have either been ignored or have proved unworkable in practice, Dr. Galloway believes. Registration of lobbyists has been handicapped by defects in the law and by a federal court decision that it is unconstitutional.

This case is now before the Supreme Court on appeal. It is expected Congress will be asked to clarify the lobby registration section.

A revised draft has already been prepared by the staff of a Senate government operations subcommittee under Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine. The committee has not considered the new section, however, and probably will not do so before the next session of Congress, or until it hears from the Supreme Court.

The main problem here is who shall be required to register as a lobbyist. Many organizations refuse to register because they claim their "principal purpose" is not to influence legislation. A study made by W. Brooke Graves in 1950 showed that of 1800 organizations maintaining offices in Washington, only 800 had registered.

A proposal for handling all government appropriations in a single, omnibus bill, instead of a dozen separate money bills, has received much support. As a companion measure, Sen. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia has proposed a constitutional amendment which would allow the President to veto individual items in appropriation bills, after their passage by Congress. These two reforms must be put through together if the legislatives budget idea is to be at all workable.

Again, as in 1946, there is a strong feeling among congressmen that their own pay should be increased. Before 1946 they received $10,000 a year. This was raised to $12,500 and congressmen were given a $2,500 tax-free allowance.

Sen. Pat McCarran of Nevada and others now propose that congressional salaries be raised to $25,000 a year.

Trying to make it appear that the Congress had not voted to raise its own pay, a bill was drafted which set up an 18-member commission to study the question. But any recommended raises were to be put into effect automatically when recommended by the commission. Rep. Usher L. Burdick (R.-N.D.) blasted this as "sneaky."

Without a record vote, the House has also passed a bill which would allow congressmen to deduct their living costs in Washington as a business expense for income tax purposes. This is intended as a blind for the $2,500 nontaxable expense account, which has been severely criticized.

But if congressmen vote themselves a raise in this year of economizing and $10 billion budget deficits, they'll have to do some tall explaining when they get home. That isn't the kind of congressional reform the voters want.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By HAL BOYLE

New York, (AP)—What role does chance play in your life?

The chances are that a quirk of chance..A street you turned down long ago..a book you read..the passing advice of a friend or teacher..a blind date..a door you knocked on and entered..helped lead you to where you are today.

The odd links of chance or happenstance don't make a man, but they do direct the path he treads.

If he knowingly takes a chance and succeeds, he is likely to call it destiny. If another fellow takes the same chance and fails, he gloomily calls it doom.

"Some fellows get all the breaks," glumly says the unsuccessful man. "If I just had another chance, I'd.."

No End to Chance

But there never is an end to chance. Chances lie all around every life, like stepping stones to a hidden gold mine. Unfortunately, rarely do these chances bear a sign saying, "this way to your own Fort Knox."

The truth is that man can't help taking a chance. Every step he takes leads from one chance to another.

Chance several times saved the life of Winston Churchill as a young war correspondent and soldier. In France during the First World War he was called from a dugout five minutes before it was blown to bits.

Churchill took a long chance in the Dardanelles amphibious campaign in that same war—and lost. All his long political life Sir Winston has been willing to gamble on a chance, and—win or lose—go blithely on to the next chance.

Accidents Major Factor

Accidents have been a major factor in the careers of many business leaders. As a boy Dave Sarnoff kept his family going by running a newstand and singing in a synagogue for $1.50 a week.

One day he headed downtown to try to get a full-time job in a newspaper. By mistake he went into a communications building instead of a newspaper, but was offered a job as office boy and took it.

The possibilities of wireless fascinated him. Today Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, a pioneer in radio and television, heads the vast Radio Corporation of America. What if he had gone into the right building? Would he be a reporter now? Or would he own the newspaper?

Sometimes what looks like a bad break is actually the portal to a better opportunity. It was that way with Alfred C. Fuller.

Get Off Pay Roll

Fuller, fresh off a Nova Scotia farm, came to Boston in 1903 to seek his fortune. He became a streetcar conductor, and soon was promoted to $12 a week. Weary of collecting fares, however, he eased himself into the motorman's seat one morning and steered an empty trolley from the car barn out to the street—and right off the tracks. Five minutes later he was off the pay roll, too.

He began selling brushes from door to door for a local firm. In 1906 he started his own business with $375. The first year the company took in only $8,500—a sum many of his salesmen now net for themselves—then went on to millions. Fuller always regarded his moment of bad luck as the best break of his life.

The annals of industry and politics are full of such stories. Chance may step into your life at any second, as you pursue the most routine tasks, to offer you romance, new friends, or a new career.

Hasn't it already happened to you? If it hasn't, it will. The art of living is to recognize the right chances when they come your way.

Unusual Proportion of 'Missing' Is Reported as Result of Korean War

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Aug 4 — Where are the 8,302 American boys who up to now have been officially reported as "missing" in Korea and presumably were captured by the enemy?

Only 3,313 Americans who were taken prisoner are to be returned. The Communists profess ignorance as to what happened to the other 8,302.

In wartime a certain number of the "missing" are never accounted for, but it is a small percentage. Thus, in World War 2 the official statistics showed 313,000 dead and 12,744 missing. This figures out at about four per cent of the total deaths.

But in the Korean war out of 33,419 dead about 25 per cent—an unprecedented proportion—died behind enemy lines.

This means unquestionably that many prisoners were shot with their hands tied behind their backs and that many others died of starvation or were tortured on forced marches.

When the full story of the cruelty of the Communists gets out—and there are ways by which it will get out—the world will learn of a barbarism and brutality unparalleled in modern wars.

Only 3,313 Americans are coming back, but they will bring with them facts and information concerning their comrades and the circumstances under which they died. Will the press print their stories? The American newspapers will, of course, if available. But some members of the British press will call them "atrocity stories calculated to injure the forthcoming peace conference." That was the attitude taken abroad when the first wounded prisoners came back earlier this year—the British disparaged all the talk about atrocities as exaggerations.

But figures don't lie. What did become of the 8,302 Americans? These were the boys who, according to the rules of war, should have been treated humanely. Governments which do not discharge their obligations to be humane are not entitled to recognition by the civilized world. But already debate in the British parliament indicates an impatience with the United States government because American officials don't want to accord recognition and a seat in the Security Council of the UN to the Red China government whose commanders are responsible for the deaths of these 8,302 Americans.

When World War 2 was over, there were trials of "war criminals." But evidently there are not to be any trials now. For this is a new kind of "victory," in which everybody is supposed to be so overjoyed that the firing has ended that no questions are to be asked concerning the acts of the aggressor governments or their war criminals.

The only way there could be a "victory for collective security" is to punish the aggressor. But the British government doesn't want to do this. The secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, made a statement a few days ago that America would not trade unification of Korea for the admission of Red China to the UN—and then the British Parliament exploded. Mr. Dulles then had to make a statement that the United States wouldn't walk out of the "political conference" if it developed into a "sham" unless he consulted the British and other allies.

Nobody here ever supposed for a moment that an American secretary of state would propose an ending of the "political conference" without saying something in advance about it to the British and the other allies. But in London they seem to think American officials are inexperienced tyros and don't know the amenities of diplomacy.

What the British do not realize is that, every time their Parliament acts with such cruel indifference to American sacrifices in the Korean war, a case is being built up for the eventual withdrawal of all military forces of the United States from Europe. Isolationists by the millions are being bred as a result of the experience of the United States in the Korean war. Reward to the aggressor governments whose forces murdered 8,302 American boys isn't going to advance the cause of "collective security" in America.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

I have just had an interesting visit with Mrs. Bella Dodd, a lady who went into the Communist party for a period of years, forsaking the Catholic religion not merely as a convenience but through conviction, but eventually returned to her church and since then has been fighting the Communists as ardently as she once fought for them. Mrs. Dodd derives that name, which I take to be of English derivation, from her late husband, a member of a Georgia family of citizen-warriors in the service of the United States. THE RIOTS SPREAD

Despite harsh Russian methods of dealing with unruly Germans the revolts in East Germany are far from over. Reports from the uranium mining region of Saxony tell of Communist military units sent there to subdue mutinous miners who had overpowered local police. Over 200 miners are said to have been arrested and charged with rebellion or inciting to rebellion.

Meanwhile the food shortage has prompted many Germans to cross into East Germany to get some of the free food offered by the American government. The Russians have protested strongly against the standing offer of free food made by President Eisenhower and have threatened to treat any East Germans who accept it as spies. But hunger is a stronger force than fear.

The Reds have tried everything to restore their strong position in their sector of Germany. They have made hypocritical gestures of friendship and reform to the people. They have ranted and threatened, they have arrested and executed. But new evidence of uprisings is reported every day.

The fact of the matter is that the Germans, and many of the people in the other satellites, are sick to death of Russian domination, of promises instead of food, of denunciation of Americans instead of honest progress. The Reds are still able to hold these people in check because they have military power. But how long will that strength continue to be enough? The desire of the people for peace and freedom, their desperation at impossible living conditions, will continue to result in riots and demonstrations. One day the upheaval will unseat the tyrants. God speed that day.

ESCAPE IN A TANK

In one of the strangest escapes from behind the Iron Curtain on record, eight Czechs made their way across the border in a metal-plated, homemade "tank." The eight, including four men, two women and two children, were fed up with life under the Communists. The driver, a garage mechanic, had made the odd-looking device secretly over a two-year period.

The eight people inside the armored vehicle drove across the Czech border under the eyes of Czech soldiers who were too astonished to shoot. German police said that despite the crudeness of its construction the tank would have been able to divert machine-gun bullets.

The story sounds like a movie adventure. It illustrates the ends that desperate people will go to in order to gain their freedom. Such refugees leave their homes, their jobs all that has been familiar in their lives, to become wanderers and strangers in new lands. Their courage is admirable and should provide pause for thought for Americans who too often take freedom for granted.

It is wonderful to have a camera along on that two week vacation. Pictures will help to preserve the memory of the happy hours spent and years later you can look at the prints and see the scenery without being disturbed by the mosquitoes.

TOO GREAT A TEMPTATION

A new school is being built in New York City, right across the street from the Polo Grounds where the New York Giants play baseball. The school will be of modern construction, it will be surrounded by trees and a playground. The youngsters will not be able to see the baseball field from the school but they will be able to hear the crack of bat hitting ball and the roar of the crowd.

A school official says he doesn't think that the proximity of the Polo Grounds will present any conflict. They point out that school usually lets out an hour or so before afternoon games are over.

One wonders if the school authorities have thought the matter through. It is temptation enough for a boy to spend his afternoon in the classroom when the ball game is far away. When it is just across the street it may prove to be more than flesh and blood can bear.

'These Days'

FANATICS

Heard the other day that a mild commentator on the radio, who is quite popular and well-sponsored, privately referred to me as a fanatic. I was not present when the profundity was so smugly spoken.

On the radio and television, fanaticism does not do, because it makes a person controversial. With the exception of Walter Winchell, most of the really successful, money-making commentators are not controversial personalities. (I ought to exclude Hans Kaltenborn from the well-behaved.) Some of the fighting commentators, like Fulton Lewis, Jr., have had to set up their own businesses to keep on the air. John T. Flynn, an Irishman with a penchant for the truth, has had a very tough time of it.

Now, fanaticism means excessive, stubborn, uncompromising acceptance of a postulate as the truth. If a man, in any field, is sure that he has discovered the truth, he cannot compromise with those, for instance, who are always willing to take the comfortable middle-of-the-road position, which, in effect, says that if it does not rain today, it could be a nice day. You can't go wrong with that.

Fanaticism, in our times, expresses itself most often in being either pro or anti-Communist. Men, like Senator Herbert Lehman, can be anti-Communist in their thinking but tolerant of Alger Hiss. That makes such a man a "liberal."

Gladstone, the great British Liberal prime minister, was always sure of his position, fanatically sure; but then he lived in another era when liberalism meant an expansion of human freedom and not an escape from decision.

If one believes in the laws of life, as developed in the Jewish, Christian and Islamic religions, accepting a universal God whose divine intelligence provides the Natural Law of all mankind as a way of life, then it is impossible to compromise with Marxism, which, being based upon materialism, rejects God as a superstition and Natural Law as a myth.

Here is a field for fanaticism because compromise is impossible. The smug and the complacent always take the position that not knowing where the truth lies, they insist there are no absolutes. But the believer, the man of faith, whether he believes in God or in Marx, cannot be comforted by ignorance.

The small number of Protestant clergy and Jewish rabbis who fumble over Marxism are not comfortable intellectually, because they are torn between conflicting ideas in their effort to straddle an unbridgeable gap. If they find any justification for Communism at all, it is in their own opposition to capitalism. Yet they know that once the concept of the dignity of the individual man is deserted, slavery follows logically.

There is nothing illogical or irrational in the Communist reinstitution of human slavery. It is an inevitable result of a retreat from the concept of the creation of man in the image of God. That is why Thomas Jefferson restated the concept of man as a created being in the Declaration of Independence. Without that postulate, he could not have asserted individual liberty.

On this subject, no compromises are possible. Either one accepts the Jewish, Christian, Islamic concept of man or he rejects it. Marx rejected it and built a philosophy of life around the rejection. That philosophy controls a state which has mastered 800,000,000 people.

True, that state exists and we have to have business with it, just as a father might be faced by the irrefutable fact that a daughter is a prostitute or a son, an alcoholic. We are often involved in ugly but indisputable facts. That does not mean that we accept the irregular or obscene as right because it exists, any more than we accept polio or cancer as good because they exist.

Here is where such smug people as the nameless commentator fail to think their problems through, always an unpleasant task. He would undoubtedly call himself a Christian; yet, the essence of Christianity is the Natural Law as revealed to man by God. Without that there can be no Christianity that is in any way related to Jesus.

This problem of Marx vs. God, described so vividly by Job and so modernly by Goethe and so offensively by Nietzsche, is the center of conflict in our age. Artful dodgers will move about it, but the pressure of belief and faith is thunderous on either side.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

THE SOCIAL WORKER'S VALUE

When we think of a patient in hospital, with his physician visiting him daily and a nurse or nurses carrying out the physician's orders, we may feel that "everything" is being done for him that, humanly speaking, can be done. Yet there is another daily or weekly visitor who may have as much to do with helping the patient to bear his sickness and gradually get better as the physician and nurses. I refer to the social worker.

In the Bulletin of the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Mrs. Helen Z. Wortis, Research Associate of the Hospital for Special Surgery, Cerebral Palsy Clinic, New York, states:

"Unlike the other team members helping the handicapped child, the social worker is not involved primarily with direct treatment of the handicapped child. Nevertheless her work is as essential to restoring the child to his best possible health, mentally, physically and emotionally, as that of the other members of the school team."

Because so little has been written about the social worker in the school for cerebral palsied children, a description of her services to parents as part of the school team should be of interest.

"It is well known that the rate of improvement in a handicapped condition is related not alone to the nature and severity of the handicap. It is recognized that other factors beyond correct and adequate care influence improvement. The child's 'drive,' the parents' willingness to allow him to use his increased independence, relationship to the family group and other non-handicapped individuals, the availability of recreation or group activities and his 'emotional' maturity, all play a major part in his improvement or failure to improve."

We must remember that the cerebral palsied child is handicapped physically, mentally and emotionally and all these three handicaps can be greatly overcome in so far as this is humanly possible, so that "in the school situation the social worker is the person whose responsibility is to help mobilize or gather together all these outside factors that will create the best situation for growth and development."

This mobilizing of factors outside the efforts of physician and nurses includes informing the parents of how the all-round needs of the child are best met by this everyday school program, needs that cannot be met in the ordinary or regular schoolroom. These handicapped children are too severely handicapped to fit in with normal children.

Naturally, the parents of these handicapped children are "nervous" about everything connected with their child and even with the best intentions can interefere with the child's progress. It is just here that the social worker can be of great help to the parents and to the child. Many of these parents have never been separated from the handicapped child for even a few hours.

Constipation

It has been estimated that more people suffer from constipation than are free of it. Edson's Washington News Notebook

Washington, (NEA)—While reorganization of the executive departments of the federal government has been giving Congress a lot of bother this year, reforms in congressional machinery are being given only a hit-and-miss treatment.

The serious bog-down of the congressional program this year has made many politicians realize there is room for improvement in the law-making department. This has not reached the stage of being a movement for another complete reorganization. It is more of a piecemeal approach to patch up specific shortcomings. Nothing may be done about them this year.

Dr. George B. Galloway, a political scientist now in the legislative reference section of Library of Congress, has made a convenient summary of some of the shortcomings of the 1946 reorganization. By experience, he is thoroughly familiar with the subject.

Congress is still handicapped by the lack of a modern personnel system, he believes. The congressional work load has not been reduced, but more and better staff aids have enabled it to do a better job.

Committees Overburdened

The judiciary committees are still overburdened with thousands of private claim bills, immigration and deportation bills. Congress is still weighted down by having to serve as city council for the District of Columbia.

The fiscal control provisions of the reorganization law have either been ignored or have proved unworkable in practice, Dr. Galloway believes. Registration of lobbyists has been handicapped by defects in the law and by a federal court decision that it is unconstitutional.

This case is now before the Supreme Court on appeal. It is expected Congress will be asked to clarify the lobby registration section.

A revised draft has already been prepared by the staff of a Senate government operations subcommittee under Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine. The committee has not considered the new section, however, and probably will not do so before the next session of Congress, or until it hears from the Supreme Court.

The main problem here is who shall be required to register as a lobbyist. Many organizations refuse to register because they claim their "principal purpose" is not to influence legislation. A study made by W. Brooke Graves in 1950 showed that of 1800 organizations maintaining offices in Washington, only 800 had registered.

A proposal for handling all government appropriations in a single, omnibus bill, instead of a dozen separate money bills, has received much support. As a companion measure, Sen. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia has proposed a constitutional amendment which would allow the President to veto individual items in appropriation bills, after their passage by Congress. These two reforms must be put through together if the legislatives budget idea is to be at all workable.

Again, as in 1946, there is a strong feeling among congressmen that their own pay should be increased. Before 1946 they received $10,000 a year. This was raised to $12,500 and congressmen were given a $2,500 tax-free allowance.

Sen. Pat McCarran of Nevada and others now propose that congressional salaries be raised to $25,000 a year.

Trying to make it appear that the Congress had not voted to raise its own pay, a bill was drafted which set up an 18-member commission to study the question. But any recommended raises were to be put into effect automatically when recommended by the commission. Rep. Usher L. Burdick (R.-N.D.) blasted this as "sneaky."

Without a record vote, the House has also passed a bill which would allow congressmen to deduct their living costs in Washington as a business expense for income tax purposes. This is intended as a blind for the $2,500 nontaxable expense account, which has been severely criticized.

But if congressmen vote themselves a raise in this year of economizing and $10 billion budget deficits, they'll have to do some tall explaining when they get home. That isn't the kind of congressional reform the voters want.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By HAL BOYLE

New York, (AP)—What role does chance play in your life?

The chances are that a quirk of chance..A street you turned down long ago..a book you read..the passing advice of a friend or teacher..a blind date..a door you knocked on and entered..helped lead you to where you are today.

The odd links of chance or happenstance don't make a man, but they do direct the path he treads.

If he knowingly takes a chance and succeeds, he is likely to call it destiny. If another fellow takes the same chance and fails, he gloomily calls it doom.

"Some fellows get all the breaks," glumly says the unsuccessful man. "If I just had another chance, I'd.."

No End to Chance

But there never is an end to chance. Chances lie all around every life, like stepping stones to a hidden gold mine. Unfortunately, rarely do these chances bear a sign saying, "this way to your own Fort Knox."

The truth is that man can't help taking a chance. Every step he takes leads from one chance to another.

Chance several times saved the life of Winston Churchill as a young war correspondent and soldier. In France during the First World War he was called from a dugout five minutes before it was blown to bits.

Churchill took a long chance in the Dardanelles amphibious campaign in that same war—and lost. All his long political life Sir Winston has been willing to gamble on a chance, and—win or lose—go blithely on to the next chance.

Accidents Major Factor

Accidents have been a major factor in the careers of many business leaders. As a boy Dave Sarnoff kept his family going by running a newstand and singing in a synagogue for $1.50 a week.

One day he headed downtown to try to get a full-time job in a newspaper. By mistake he went into a communications building instead of a newspaper, but was offered a job as office boy and took it.

The possibilities of wireless fascinated him. Today Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, a pioneer in radio and television, heads the vast Radio Corporation of America. What if he had gone into the right building? Would he be a reporter now? Or would he own the newspaper?

Sometimes what looks like a bad break is actually the portal to a better opportunity. It was that way with Alfred C. Fuller.

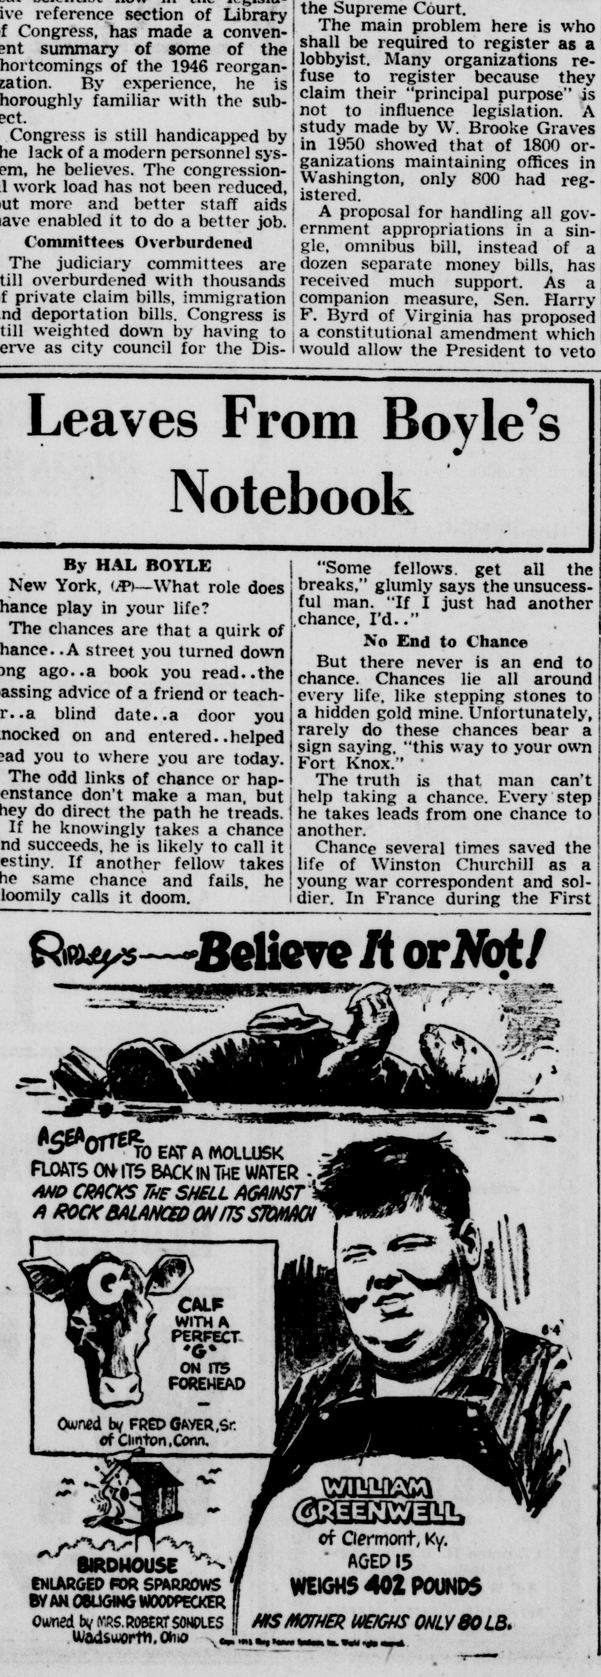

Get Off Pay Roll

Fuller, fresh off a Nova Scotia farm, came to Boston in 1903 to seek his fortune. He became a streetcar conductor, and soon was promoted to $12 a week. Weary of collecting fares, however, he eased himself into the motorman's seat one morning and steered an empty trolley from the car barn out to the street—and right off the tracks. Five minutes later he was off the pay roll, too.

He began selling brushes from door to door for a local firm. In 1906 he started his own business with $375. The first year the company took in only $8,500—a sum many of his salesmen now net for themselves—then went on to millions. Fuller always regarded his moment of bad luck as the best break of his life.

The annals of industry and politics are full of such stories. Chance may step into your life at any second, as you pursue the most routine tasks, to offer you romance, new friends, or a new career.

Hasn't it already happened to you? If it hasn't, it will. The art of living is to recognize the right chances when they come your way.

Unusual Proportion of 'Missing' Is Reported as Result of Korean War

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Aug 4 — Where are the 8,302 American boys who up to now have been officially reported as "missing" in Korea and presumably were captured by the enemy?

Only 3,313 Americans who were taken prisoner are to be returned. The Communists profess ignorance as to what happened to the other 8,302.

In wartime a certain number of the "missing" are never accounted for, but it is a small percentage. Thus, in World War 2 the official statistics showed 313,000 dead and 12,744 missing. This figures out at about four per cent of the total deaths.

But in the Korean war out of 33,419 dead about 25 per cent—an unprecedented proportion — died behind enemy lines.

This means unquestionably that many prisoners were shot with their hands tied behind their backs and that many others died of starvation or were tortured on forced marches.

When the full story of the cruelty of the Communists gets out—and there are ways by which it will get out—the world will learn of a barbarism and brutality unparalleled in modern wars.

Only 3,313 Americans are coming back, but they will bring with them facts and information concerning their comrades and the circumstances under which they died. Will the press print their stories? The American newspapers will, of course, if available. But some members of the British press will call them "atrocity stories calculated to injure the forthcoming peace conference." That was the attitude taken abroad when the first wounded prisoners came back earlier this year—the British disparaged all the talk about atrocities as exaggerations.

But figures don't lie. What did become of the 8,302 Americans? These were the boys who, according to the rules of war, should have been treated humanely. Governments which do not discharge their obligations to be humane are not entitled to recognition by the civilized world. But already debate in the British parliament indicates an impatience with the United States government because American officials don't want to accord recognition and a seat in the Security Council of the UN to the Red China government whose commanders are responsible for the deaths of these 8,302 Americans.

When World War 2 was over, there were trials of "war criminals." But evidently there are not to be any trials now. For this is a new kind of "victory," in which everybody is supposed to be so overjoyed that the firing has ended that no questions are to be asked concerning the acts of the aggressor governments or their war criminals.

The only way there could be a "victory for collective security" is to punish the aggressor. But the British government doesn't want to do this. The secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, made a statement a few days ago that America would not trade unification of Korea for the admission of Red China to the UN—and then the British Parliament exploded. Mr. Dulles then had to make a statement that the United States wouldn't walk out of the "political conference" if it developed into a "sham" unless he consulted the British and other allies.

Nobody here ever supposed for a moment that an American secretary of state would propose an ending of the "political conference" without saying something in advance about it to the British and the other allies. But in London they seem to think American officials are inexperienced tyros and don't know the amenities of diplomacy.

What the British do not realize is that, every time their Parliament acts with such cruel indifference to American sacrifices in the Korean war, a case is being built up for the eventual withdrawal of all military forces of the United States from Europe. Isolationists by the millions are being bred as a result of the experience of the United States in the Korean war. Reward to the aggressor governments whose forces murdered 8,302 American boys isn't going to advance the cause of "collective security" in America.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

I have just had an interesting visit with Mrs. Bella Dodd, a lady who went into the Communist party for a period of years, forsaking the Catholic religion not merely as a convenience but through conviction, but eventually returned to her church and since then has been fighting the Communists as ardently as she once fought for them. Mrs. Dodd derives that name, which I take to be of English derivation, from her late husband, a member of a Georgia family of citizen-warriors in the service of the United States. She is of Italian stock, with dark eyes and hair and ivory complexion and features more pleasant than I might have thought them if I had encountered her when she was a Red.

The first purpose of our conversation was to enlarge my knowledge of a deliberate attempt of the Communists to penetrate the Catholic community primarily in New York city. This phenomenon was touched up with a hot poker recently by Pat Scanlon, the editor of the Brooklyn diocesan weekly, The Tablet. The apparatus, as the Communist jargon goes, for this penetration was a front called the Catholic Committee for Civil Rights. The venture failed thanks in large part to Mr. Scanlon's fighting vigilance at the time, but Mrs. Dodd said the Reds actually did make some headway in their purpose of disarming Catholics against Communist movements by making use of persons with Irish names and Catholic background. In some cases, she observed, that "background" was not up-to-date, as where the individual had "fallen away" whether by positive act or renunciation or neglect.

Mrs. Dodd said it was less easy to attract Catholics of Irish background than Catholics of other parentage and that, therefore, the Communist with an Irish name was at a premium. She said Harold King and Tom Davin, a teacher and a newspaper reporter of little professional consequence, were known to her as card-carrying members of the party and that they took part in the formation of the Catholic Committee for Civil Rights. The man in charge of the formation of the committee was one Bill Lawrence, who has since fallen into obscurity. Mrs. Dodd refused to take any part in this effort to penetrate the Catholic fold. Her expressed position was that she would be either a Catholic or Communist.

At that time, 1937 and 1938, the French Communists had issued a poster showing Maurice Thorez, the French Communist leader, extending an open hand to the French Catholics. The party realized that a large proportion of the workers were Catholics and decided to try to lull their suspicions by such gestures. She said that, consistent with the drive for Catholic workers of Irish stock, John Santo, a Rumanian hairdresser who bored into the Transport Workers' Union in New York, adopted an Irish brogue "so thick you could cut it with a knife" because many of the street-car employes and other eligible workers in the jurisdiction of the TWU were natives of Ireland or sons of immigrants from Ireland. Santo later was ordered deported and fled on his own volition.

Mrs. Dodd said Mike Quill, a native of Ireland, who speaks with an authentic brogue, was seized upon as a fine one likely to rise to command in this field because he had a talent for the work and "wanted to go somewhere." He went into the TWU from the status of a digger at $25 a week working on a subway. The party immediately took action to guide Quill by assigning a "contact" named Martin Young who had been an organizer in Pittsburgh. At first in this assignment, Mrs. Dodd said, Young was on the party payroll but later he went on the union payroll.

She did not say that Quill himself joined the party. She believed he might yet be effective as an anti-Communist. It was sufficient for the party's purpose that its influence was dominant among this large element of Catholics of Irish stock.

Mrs. Dodd said she was shocked when a Communist approached her telling her that he was a brother of Emanuel Chapman, a Catholic convert who was teaching "the philosophy of beauty" at Fordham University, a Jesuit institution, and that Emanuel would "help us to get Catholics" for the Catholic committee for human rights. As I have related, she refused to have anything to do with this effort to penetrate her old fold to which she has now returned.

Mr. Scanlon, of the Tablet, was practically alone in spotting this front as such at the time and denouncing it.

Local Police Join Drive on Speeders

Local motorists, particularly those planning vacation trips this month, were urged today by Police Chief Raymond Van Buren to take it easy on the highways.

He pointed out that speeding could "spoil an otherwise enjoyable vacation," that speeding is responsible for 30 per cent of all automobile fatalities.

11-State Program

Van Buren said the local department was supporting an 11-state speed control campaign in cooperation with the Police Bureau of the State Division of Safety.

"Everyone knows the shock, grief and unpleasantness associated with accident occurence," the chief said.

"Nothing can mar a vacation more than a serious highway mishap. The loss of life, injury or property damage resulting from an automobile accident can curtail a vacation and completely destroy any thoughts of a happy holiday."

Building Permits Total $116,069

Fifty building permits totaling $116,069 were issued in the city during the month of July, according to records in the office of Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy.

Six of these permits were for new dwellings totaling $58,900.

The largest single item amounting to $25,000 was issued to The Kingston Daily Freeman for the installation of a press bed, the removal of wooden girders and replacement by steel girders, the bricking up and installation of smaller windows on the ground floor.

There were six permits for construction of private garages and one for a shed, 26 permits for alterations, additions and repairs and 11 permits for installation of oil burners and tanks.

During the month of June 35 permits were issued totaling $123,585.

Of those people in the United States who marry between the ages of 30 and 34, about half have been married before.

Van Buren said the local department was supporting an 11-state speed control campaign in cooperation with the Police Bureau of the State Division of Safety.

"Everyone knows the shock, grief and unpleasantness associated with accident occurence," the chief said.

Building Permits Total $116,069

Fifty building permits totaling $116,069 were issued in the city during the month of July, according to records in the office of Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy.

Six of these permits were for new dwellings totaling $58,900.

The largest single item amounting to $25,000 was issued to The Kingston Daily Freeman for the installation of a press bed, the removal of wooden girders and replacement by steel girders, the bricking up and installation of smaller windows on the ground floor.

There were six permits for construction of private garages and one for a shed, 26 permits for alterations, additions and repairs and 11 permits for installation of oil burners and tanks.

During the month of June 35 permits were issued totaling $123,585.

Cashin Reverses

Judge Cashin pointed out, the testimony was that Elting only played cards there "once in a while."

Pointing out that the section of the penal law under which Elting was arrested contains the wording, "frequents unlawful resorts," Judge Cashin ruled as follows:

'Once in a While'

"It cannot be assumed that the premises at 650 Broadway were an integrated whole and that persons, even of a bad reputation, who frequently came into the store, purchased tobacco and left, can be convicted of a violation of the statute. The above testimony demonstrates that defendant was in the tobacco shop a number of times and played cards on occasions but not more than 'once in a while.' The testimony does not indicate at all the duration of the period when defendant came into the premises or the frequency of his visits."

Noting that Webster's New International Dictionary defines the word frequent as: "to visit often, to associate with, to be in, or to resort to, often or habitually," Judge Cashin indicated the evidence did not prove that Elting "made a habit" of going to the premises.

Says Proof Inadequate

"Hence the proof is inadequate as a matter of law to convict defendant of frequenting an unlawful resort. Accordingly the judgment must be reversed on the law and on the facts and the information dismissed."

Judge Cashin also stated in his decision that criminal jurisprudence is based on the philosophy that every defendant has individual rights paramount to the state's. Every defendant is protected "by the presumption of innocence, and it is the duty of the prosecution to prove guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. It is a premise of our law that it is preferable for many guilty persons to escape punishment than for one innocent person to be convicted," he stated.

Elting was given a hearing in city court on May 12, and on May 16 City Judge Raymond Mino sentenced him to 30 days in jail. Elting was released shortly afterward pending the appeal. It was the May 16 sentence and conviction that was reversed by Judge Cashin on Monday. Attorney Charles Gaffney appeared for Elting, and District Attorney Howard C. St. John for the people.

In 1921 all but 364 of America's 65,000 locomotives were steam powered.

Gilmore Says Reds

scribe himself as an expert on Russia.

"I doubt if there are any such things," he said, explaining he could evaluate his time spent in the Red capital only as a reporter.

Regarding the recent purge of Lavrentia P. Beria, who was minister of internal security and boss of the secret police, Gilmore commented:

"Malenkov either felt desperate or strong enough to do it. What part the army played in it, I haven't been able to figure out, but, considering the strength of the security police, how he did it is still amazing to me."

'Took Some Doing'

Gilmore declared that "eliminating Beria—if he is eliminated—took some doing and anyone who can pull that off is a very powerful fellow."

Gilmore said Malenkov "takes no cues from others."

"He neither looks to the left nor the right," said Gilmore. "He is one of the best public speakers in the Soviet Union and he goes ahead in a strong, firm voice. He speaks without notes.

"Here is a man who is definitely in charge, although, of course, I could be completely wrong.

Asked whether there was any chance of a military man—a "Red Napoleon" seizing power in the Soviet Union, the correspondent replied:

"The possibility definitely is there, especially if Mr. Malenkov is not able to follow through and falters along the way, the chances are good for a man on horseback to come dashing in."

Public Opinion Important

Gilmore noted that the Soviet government "is seeming to have to answer to a public opinion for the first time." He said regarding changes in Soviet policy that there had been similar signs of change in the past but that "something always seems to have happened."

He said he believed Stalin died a natural death, and, in reply to a query as to when he first noticed changes in policy, he said:

"He (Stalin) wasn't even cold when they started reversing them."

Changes benefitting the people included price reductions and a political amnesty, he said.

Russian People Friendly

Asked how the Russian people feel about America, Gilmore said:

"Foreigners do not have much contact with the Russian people, but they treated us very nicely, even at the height of the anti-American campaign.

"After all, people are people all over the world, and we never saw anything else but that (friendly treatment) over there from the people."

In answer to a question, Gilmore said Sen. Joseph McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican foe of the Reds, "figures in Russian newspapers quite frequently," but he did not go into detail.

Gilmore said the Russians appear to lack the control over iron curtain satellite countries that they had prior to Stalin's death. He said a "general restlessness" that developed after Stalin's death was responsible in part.

Referring to the Soviet government's finally granting permission for his wife and children, Vicki, 9, and Sussanna, 3, to leave, Gilmore said:

"Of course, we appreciate it very much, but I feel it should have been allowed a long time ago."

Use of irrigation as an aid to growth of vegetation probably oringinated in Egypt, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Ruzzo Property Brings $30,500

The former Ruzzo property at 103 Albany avenue was sold at public auction at the court house this morning for $30,500.

The high bid was submitted by Attorney Sherwood E. Davis on behalf of a client, whose name he was not authorized to reveal, he said after the sale.

The sale attracted an estimated 35 or 40 persons to the foyer of the court house in Kingston. Bids were submitted, however, by only five individuals, most of them attorneys acting on behalf of unnamed clients.

After three early bids, the bidding jumped from $28,500 to $28,600, then to $29,000, $29,200, $29,700, $30,000 and finally to $30,500.

Overbagh Is Referee

The sale was conducted by Richard B. Overbagh, as referee, pursuant to a judgment made and entered July 7, 1953, in an action brought by the Saugerties Savings Bank.

Defendants named in the action were: Victor Ruzzo, Frances Ruzzo, Nick Ciocca, Howard E. Hudler, the F. A. Bartlett Tree Expert Co., Inc., George F. Kaufman, Globe Indemnity Co., Michael Salvino, the Brunswick-Balke-Collander Company, Inc., the United States of America and Edward Corsi as Industrial Commissioner of the State of New York.

Sale was subject to the right of the United States to redeem the property within one year from the date of sale.

Man Is Found Dead

Monticello, Aug. 4 (AP) — Max Rosenberg, 74, of (1426 40th street) Brooklyn, was found dead last night of a heart attack in some bushes near the summer colony where he was staying. Police, firemen and volunteers searched for hours after he was reported missing shortly after nightfall.

Non-Resident Is Victim of Polio

A non-resident child visiting in this county has been hospitalized for treatment of polio, the Ulster County Health Department disclosed today.

The case is the fourth polio case to be diagnosed as such in this county this year. The other three patients were county residents.

Dr. Dudley Hargrave, county health commissioner, was away from his office today and could not be contacted for further information. Others in the health department had not been informed of the age or sex of the patient or where he has been hospitalized.

Miss Sheridan 'Fair', Hospital Reports

The condition of Miss Josephine Sheridan, 23, of Brooklyn, one of those injured in the Williams Lake fire of last Tuesday, was reported as "fair" at the Kingston Hospital today.

Four others were reported in "good" condition at the Benedictine Hospital. They are: Miss Mary McGurk of Forest Hills, Elaine Lachenmeyer, 16, and Mrs. Rose Lachenmeyer, 38, both also of Forest Hills, and Theodore Eckerlin of Ozone Park.

Four persons died in the fire, cause of which is still under investigation.

The speed record for U. S. trains is believed to have been set in 1905 when a train ran three miles at the rate of 127.06 miles per hour.

Even in summer the temperature near the South Pole rarely rises above zero.

Democrats Doubt Unity Of Party for 1956 Voting

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 4 (AP)—The Democratic party remains so sharply divided that poles-apart members like Gov. Allen Shivers of Texas and C. Mennen Williams of Michigan have serious doubts they will be able to get together by 1956.

This portends another knock-down fight among the Democrats over their presidential nominee three years from now. It foreshadows another possible walkout in the south which could give the Republicans a second four-year claim on the White House.

In Washington it is fashionable these days to say that the Democrats are learning in adversity the value of unity they never knew in success.

That is the theme of the leadership of both houses of Congress, with Sen. Lyndon J. Johnson of Texas keeping his Senate Democrats marching in party line and minority leader Sam Rayburn calling an accepted turn for Democratic House members.

But back where the people dwell in the states, there is no such unanimity among the Democrats, if the evidence displayed at this 45th annual governors' conference is to be accepted as indicative of grass roots sentiment.

Shivers, who supported President Eisenhower in last year's election, remains unreconciled. He obviously is waiting warily for developments without committing himself, without much hope that the Democrats will nominate a middle of the road candidate he can accept.

Asked if he would be willing to back former Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, the 1952 Democratic presidential nominee, in the 1956 race, Shivers replied:

"I never bet on a horse the second time."

A reporter observed that the Texas governor hadn't bet on this particular horse the first time, but he said with a smile it was to far away to speculate on what he would do.

Shivers apparently spoke for the southern Democrats who supported Eisenhower when he said that on the whole he was well pleased with the accomplishments of the Republican administration in its first six months in office.

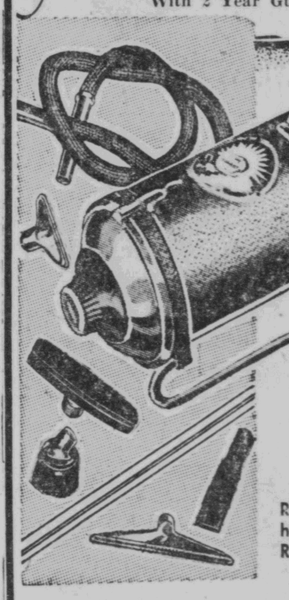

Shivers referred scornfully to Williams as a member of the "ultra-liberal" faction he said had tried to rule the Democratic party and would ruin it if it retained control.

There was an exchange of rather sharp words between the two Democratic governors—conducted at long range—over the bill to cement the state's title to submerged lands off their traditional borders.

Williams called this a "give-away" to the oil companies, a remark that caused Shivers to observe that this was "the silly, stupid kind of a statement made by those who don't know the facts and care less about them."

Williams said with heavy sarcasm that this couldn't have been said by a nicer guy in a nicer way.

When someone asks you a question like that, you are supposed to avoid a direct answer. Instead, you say 'costs are comparable with other fuels' or 'price is in line with other fuels.' If you run into a stubborn old cuss who isn't satisfied, grow lyrical about how he has to brush his teeth less often with our fuel and that the time saved is worth a million dollars to him — or any other nonsense that will bedazzle or divert him!'

'Just get our gosh-darned hot plate in his furnace, Little Weasel,' continued the boss, 'and don't worry about his fuel costs! Don't forget, we have no competitors selling our fuel — so, if the customer says 'this contraption costs me a lot more to run that I was led to believe it would,' you can afford to say 'So what are you going to do about it!' Will Build Shrine

New York, Aug. 4 (AP)—Airlines have agreed to fly stones from holy places in 100 countries to build a Roman Catholic shrine at Idlewild Airport. Plans for the shrine and a chapel at Idlewild, one of the world's largest and busiest air fields, were revealed yesterday by the Catholic Guild for the New York International Airport. Services are now conducted in an airport restaurant.

New Picnic Lunch Served Hot

A QUICK PICNIC CASSEROLE on any outing might be a welcome change. Here's a hot dish made with things you can take.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

A hot meal on a picnic is always welcome. Follow this advice of a friend of ours in Troy, N. Y., whose children have big appetites.

Just fill your basket with a package of precooked rice, a can of tomatoes (don't forget the can opener), a package of quick-frozen mixed vegetables and seasonings. Pack the chopped onion and celery in a screw top jar with the hunk of butter on top. Dump this in the frying pan first, butter side down.

Quick Picnic Casserole
(4 servings)

One-quarter cup butter, ½ cup finely diced onion, ½ cup finely diced celery, 1 teaspoon kitchen bouquet, 1 cup water, 1 No. 2 can tomatoes, 2 beef bouillon cubes, 12-ounce package frozen mixed vegetables, defrosted, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 5-ounce package pre-cooked rice, 1 pound frankfurters.

Melt butter in frying pan over portable grill. Add onion and celery. Cook until onion begins to turn transparent. Stir in kitchen bouquet. Add water, contents of can of tomatoes and bouillon cubes. Add vegetables which have been defrosted enough to break apart easily.

Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Cover tightly and bring to boil. Cook until vegetables are nearly tender, about 10 minutes. Add and stir in the rice, then bring to boil again. Let stand, covered, in warm place for 10 minutes. Meanwhile, arrange frankfurters on grill. Frankfurters should be browned and done when the casserole is ready to serve.

Here's a stay-at-home dinner: Broiled frankfurters, quick-picnic casserole, corn on cob, soft rolls, butter or margarine, sliced garden tomatoes, peaches and blueberries, layer cake, coffee, milk.

Safety Play Rare At Tourney Play

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

The national contract bridge championships are in full swing now in St. Louis, and today the Men's Pair Championship and the Women's Pair Championship are scheduled to end. While I play through the hands of this year's contest, I recall with pleasure some of the interesting hands of former national championship tournaments.

Today's hand, for example, was played in last year's tournament. I remember it clearly because it shows a comparative rarity—a tournament player executing a safety play.

In a total point contest (such as ordinary rubber bridge or a team match) an expert is always on the lookout for a chance to make a safety play since he must try not only for his contract but also for all possible overtricks.

When Bill Root of Miami played the hand shown today he could feel pretty sure that the safety play was called for. As the result showed, he was perfectly right.

West opened the five of diamonds, and dummy won with the ace. Root drew two rounds of trumps with the ace and king, discovering that West still had the queen of spades. He then led a club towards dummy, and West hopped up with the king of clubs.

Bill mentally reviewed West's bidding. West had doubled for a takeout and had raised diamonds to the level of four. Root knew that West had started with three spades to the queen and a rather shabby holding in diamonds (since East had been able to drop the queen of diamonds as a signal of the first trick.)

Obviously West had the ace-queen of hearts, and just as obviously West must have a singleton somewhere in the hand to give him some excuse for this strong bidding.

West assumed the singleton had to be in clubs, so Bill Root let West hold the trick with the king of clubs. This made it possible for declarer to develop the club suit without giving the lead to East. South's king of hearts was thus safe from attack.

If West led hearts, South would win a trick with the king of hearts. If West failed to lead hearts, declarer could eventually discard a heart on dummy's fifth club. Either way, the contract was safe.

About one half of the earth's known uranium ore lies on the Shinkolobwe mine, 70 miles northwest of Elizabethville, Belgian Congo.

Fossil specimens of the peripatus, a worm-like creature still in existence, have been found in rocks 500 million years old.

Subway Riders Fewer

New York, Aug. 4 (AP)—There were 10.4 per cent fewer riders on city transit lines in the first week under the new 15-cent fare than for the same week a year ago. The New York City Transit Authority announced yesterday, however, that this was less than the 11.1 per cent drop it had expected on an annual basis. Despite the drop in riders, the authority said, revenue was $1,048,422 higher than for the same week last year, when the 10-cent fare was in effect.

The worm-like peripatus has a circulatory system and other characteristics like those of insects but a nervous system like that of worms.

Sinclair Lewis, in 1930, was the first American to win the Nobel Prize for Literature.

Entry Is Promised

Taipeh, Formosa, Aug. 4 (AP)—Chinese Nationalist President Chiang Kai-shek today promised entry into Formosa to the 14,500 allied-held Chinese prisoners of the Korean war who refuse to return to the Communists. In a printed message distributed to the POWs and broadcast by the UN command in Korea, Chiang urged the prisoners to "stand firm . . . in your choice for freedom." By terms of the armistice, anti-Red Chinese will be interviewed by Red persuasion teams trying to get them to return to Communist China. If they refuse, they eventually may go to any nation which accepts them.

Income Is Reported

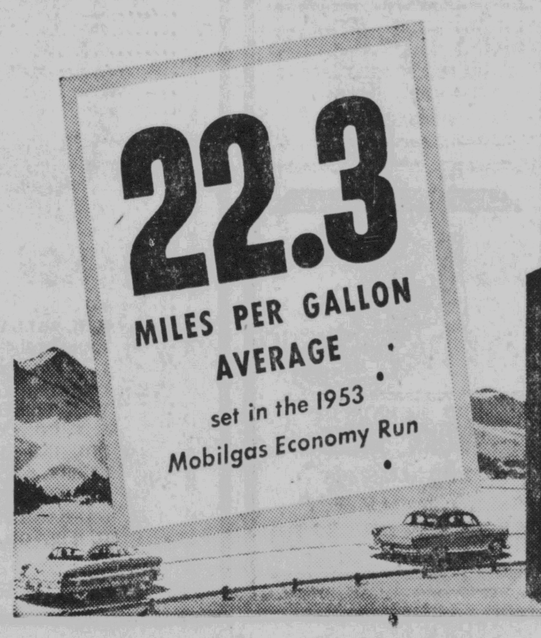

New York, Aug. 4 (AP)—Rockland Light & Power Co. of Nyack, N. Y., yesterday reported net income of $745,790, equal to 38 cents a share, for the five months ended May 31, compared to $680,747, or 37 cents, for the like period 1952.

The Santa Fe and Southern Railroads used the first diesel-electric freight engines, in 1941.

Will Build Shrine

New York, Aug. 4 (AP)—Airlines have agreed to fly stones from holy places in 100 countries to build a Roman Catholic shrine at Idlewild Airport. Plans for the shrine and a chapel at Idlewild, one of the world's largest and busiest air fields, were revealed yesterday by the Catholic Guild for the New York International Airport. Services are now conducted in an airport restaurant.

YMCA Day Camp Seventh Week

The YMCA day camp has started its seventh week with 100 boys and girls in attendance. This is an increase in registration over previous years.

During these last two weeks, special attention will be given those learning to swim. Lou Schafer, camp director, says that individual instructions will be given beginners. All campers who have learned to swim will be expected to prepare for competition in swimming and diving as well as other camp sport events. Competition will be for the 1953 Day Camp championships. First three winners will receive large 10-inch blue, red and white ribbons with the camp insignia embossed in gold letters.

Director Schafer states this season is one of the largest and best in the 11-year history of the camp.

Parents desiring to have their children register for the final two weeks may telephone the YMCA tonight.

New campers for this week are: Junior Camp: Linda, Butch, Michael and Claire Mehm, Carolyn MacFadden, Donald Hammeresley, Diana Lohman, Barry Van Steenberg, Jay Rutherford, Allan Greene, Perry Allen, Scott and Stewart Sharot.

In the Senior Camp are James and Daniel White, Gladys Bentley, Anna Mae Trumpait, Pat Sember, Elaine Berinato, Pat Gendreau, Jackie Hammeresley, John Demskie, Rhoda Lurie, Eugene Lucas, John Vedder and Edward Coddington.

Only national park in the U. S. to enclose an entire mountain range is Big Bend, in Texas, which encloses the Chisos, or Ghost, mountains.

Woman Dies in Fire

Putnam, Conn., Aug. 3 (AP)—Firemen summoned to an apartment over a Canal street store today found Mrs. Annie L. Bruce, about 65, dead in her bed, which was afire. Policeman Joseph Wade said that Mrs. Bruce, who lived alone, apparently had been smoking in bed. The fire, discovered by the occupant of an adjoining apartment, did only slight damage. Mrs. Bruce, the divorced wife of Fred M. Bruce, is survived by a sister, Mrs. John O. Fox, wife of a Putnam banker.

Here's a good Sunday night supper dish: Cream oysters and serve between rich drop biscuits that have been split and buttered. Add a little celery salt and Worcestershire to the cream sauce for the oysters.

YMCA Day Camp Seventh Week

The YMCA day camp has started its seventh week with 100 boys and girls in attendance. This is an increase in registration over previous years.

During these last two weeks, special attention will be given those learning to swim. Lou Schafer, camp director, says that individual instructions will be given beginners. All campers who have learned to swim will be expected to prepare for competition in swimming and diving as well as other camp sport events. Competition will be for the 1953 Day Camp championships. First three winners will receive large 10-inch blue, red and white ribbons with the camp insignia embossed in gold letters.

Director Schafer states this season is one of the largest and best in the 11-year history of the camp.

Parents desiring to have their children register for the final two weeks may telephone the YMCA tonight.

New campers for this week are: Junior Camp: Linda, Butch, Michael and Claire Mehm, Carolyn MacFadden, Donald Hammeresley, Diana Lohman, Barry Van Steenberg, Jay Rutherford, Allan Greene, Perry Allen, Scott and Stewart Sharot.

In the Senior Camp are James and Daniel White, Gladys Bentley, Anna Mae Trumpait, Pat Sember, Elaine Berinato, Pat Gendreau, Jackie Hammeresley, John Demskie, Rhoda Lurie, Eugene Lucas, John Vedder and Edward Coddington.

Only national park in the U. S. to enclose an entire mountain range is Big Bend, in Texas, which encloses the Chisos, or Ghost, mountains.

Woman Dies in Fire

Putnam, Conn., Aug. 3 (AP)—Firemen summoned to an apartment over a Canal street store today found Mrs. Annie L. Bruce, about 65, dead in her bed, which was afire. Policeman Joseph [illegible] said that Mrs. Bruce, who lived alone, apparently had been smoking in bed. The fire, discovered by the occupant of an adjoining apartment, did only slight damage. Mrs. Bruce, the divorced wife of Fred M. Bruce, is survived by a sister, Mrs. John O. Fox, wife of a Putnam banker.

Here's a good Sunday night supper dish: Cream oysters and serve between rich drop biscuits that have been split and buttered. Add a little celery salt and Worcestershire to the cream sauce for the oysters.

Yonta's Funeral Rites Are Held; Killed in Korea

The funeral of Cpl. Vincent Yonta, who was killed in action June 2 in Korea, was held from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dominick Yonta, 166 Delaware avenue, yesterday morning, thence to St. Mary's Church where a solemn high Mass of requiem was offered for the repose of his soul by the Rev. Donald Reidy.

The Rev. Edward I. Farrelly served as deacon, the Rev. Paul Hirschauer, as sub-deacon and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Martin J. Drury, PR, VP, was seated within the chancel. Responses to the Mass were sung by the children's choir under the direction of Theodore Riccobono, organist-choirmaster.

At the conclusion of the Mass the Star Spangled Banner was sung by the choir.

Church Is Filled

The church was filled to capacity with the many relatives and friends of Cpl. Yonta. During the time the body reposed at the home hundreds called to express their condolences to the family.

Sunday evening St. Mary's Holy Name Society called at the home and was led in the recitation of the Rosary by Father Farrelly, spiritual director. The Ladies' Society of Santa Maria also called in a body and recited the Rosary on Sunday evening. On Saturday Msgr. Drury visited the home and said prayers for the dead.

The living room of the home was completely banked with beautiful floral tributes and many spiritual bouquets in the form of Mass cards were received.

Bearers at Rites

Bearers were Alderman-at-Large Joseph Kelly, representing the city, Pfc. Carlo Perry, Seaman Apprentice Joseph Genther, Eugene Perry, Anthony Alecca and Michael Guido. Honorary bearers were SN Donald Matthews, FN John Matthews and SN Paul Peterson, buddies of Cpl. Yonta.

The VFW Auxiliary acted as honor guard at the church and St. Mary's Cemetery. Present were Mrs. Lena Roach, president, Mrs. Pauline Gardner, Mrs. Cora DuBois, Mrs. Lillian Shultis and Mrs. Katherine McCloskey.

Color, Firing Units

The color guard at the cemetery were representatives of Post 150, American Legion, as follows: Thomas Saccoman, commander, Andrew Murphy, 3rd, Thomas Bohan, Abe Singer, Jules Albertini, Bernard Redmond and Donald McGowan.

The firing squad, supplied by the Ulster Detachment, Marine Corps League, was composed of Sgt. Charles Awkerman, John R. Mayone, Harold DeGraff and Harold Macholdt. Taps were sounded by John Ray Mayone.

The flag used to drape the casket was presented to Mrs. Yonta by Staff Sgt. Robert J. Dacey, escort from the Brooklyn Distributing Depot.

Tough Sledding for Tax

Washington, Aug. 4 (AP)—House Ways and Means Committee members today predicted the roughest sort of legislative sledding for a proposed national sales tax. They commented after the National Association of Manufacturers (NAM) at a hearing last night, urged a uniform excise or sales tax at the manufacturers' level to put the nation on "a firm road to fiscal security." There has been some talk that the Eisenhower administration might join in a similar proposal at the next regular session of Congress in January. Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey has said he is considering that among other ideas, but has not made up his mind yet.

DIED

Grossingers Get Picket Injunction

Supreme Court Justice Harry E. Schirick on Monday afternoon granted S. & H. Grossinger, Inc., a temporary injunction to restrain certain AFL labor unions from picketing Grossingers, a large Sullivan county resort hotel.

Judge Schirick ruled that the picketing by Locals 305, 29 and 32E of various hotel employes' AFL unions "is unlawful and is conducted for no proper labor objective."

A companion suit brought by the Concord hotel against the same locals had previously been withdrawn.

Oral testimony was taken in July by Justice Schirick in Kingston.

Opposing Contentions

Hotel management had claimed that the unions involved did not represent their employes save a scattered few." The unions contend that the hotel engaged in unfair labor practices.

In his decision, Justice Schirick stated that since it would be an unfair practice for an employer to to recognize, as bargaining agent, a union unless certified following an election or otherwise shown to represent a majority of his employes, therefore, "picketing or other union action, seeking to coerce an employer to violate the law in this regard, is unlawful." He also stated: "The court is absolutely satisfied that no unfair practices were committed by the employer."

Will Lease Plant

Washington, Aug. 4 (AP) — A syndicate of 21 persons has signed a contract to lease a Detroit printing plant for 15 years, former Democratic Senator Blair Moody of Michigan announced today. Moody, one of those involved, declined to disclose how much the group is paying for the lease. He also refused to comment on reports the group will use the Michigan Rotary Printing Co. plant to publish a new newspaper. The former senator said organization of the syndicate was directed by himself and by Roger L. Stevens of Detroit and New York. Incorporation of the group as the Michigan Rotary Press, Inc., soon will be under way, Moody said, with himself as president.

Offers to Sell Marks

Bonn, Germany, Aug. 4 (AP)—The Bonn government has offered to sell Communist East Germany 25 million marks ($5,879,000) worth of food to help ease the hunger crisis there, West German authorities announced today. The East German regime has plenty of West German currency and can quickly take advantage of the Bonn offer, these authorities said. Although West Germany would prefer to receive goods in exchange for any food sales to the east, the East Germans have been unable to maintain promised deliveries of goods under the interzonal trade agreement, it was said.

Will Decline Invitation

Washington, Aug. 4 (AP)—It looks as though four Senate leaders will decline the invitation of Secretary of State Dulles to join him in Korea for talks with President Syngman Rhee. Initially Acting Majority Leader Knowland (R-Calif.), Minority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.), and Sens. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.) and Russell (D-Ga.) were asked to accompany Dulles, who reached seoul today. A delay in congressional adjournment prevented the senators' going with Dulles but he asked them to follow him.

Gets Whale Skeleton

Hong Kong, Aug. 4 (AP) — The pro-Communist newspaper Wen Wie Pao today reported that fishermen on Chain's Luichow Peninsula sent the Red governor of Kwangtung Province the skeleton of a whale to show their appreciation for government loans.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Aug. 4 (AP)—A mild reaction took the stock market down a peg after four straight advances.

Softness in the market was apparent from the start, and prices backed down all around. Losses were held below a point in almost all instances with the bulk of them quite small. Gains were unimpressive.

Although major divisions were lower on balance, plus signs appeared in a few oils, rubbers, utilities, aircrafts, and golds.

Consolidated Edison of New York was a standout on the higher side with a gain of around a point following a hike in the dividend payment. Directors declared a dividend of 60 cent as against 55 cents paid in the two previous quarters.

Lower stock today included New York Central, American Telephone, Republic Steel, General Motors, Anaconda Copper, Standard Oil (N. J.), and Douglas Aircraft.

The American Stock Exchange was lower. Trading was not particularly fast. Higher were Cosben Petroleum, Missouri Public Service and Unexcelled Chemical. Lower were Amurex Oil Development "A," Louisiana Land, and Molybdenum.

Corporate bonds were irregular. U. S. governments in the over the counter market were steady.

Wicks Announces

cleared and workmen are ready to sow grass on it.

"We intend to start the second of the new ones in the near future," he advised, "and it should be ready for this winter."

Swimming Pool Discussed

Wicks said he and residents of the town of Shandaken interested in summer business discussed a swimming pool for visitors to the town.

"It would promote summer business to a great extent," Wicks said, "and could be built with a bond issue, which could be paid off through admission charges."

Concerning the golf course he proposes, the Senator said he thought a good locale would be around Lanesville. He intends to discuss the course with Robert Moses, chairman of the State Council of Parks.

Says Boom Probable

With Belleayre drawing thousands of visitors in summer as well as winter, the Ulster county area should boom as a summer resort, Wicks thinks, if the other two projects are undertaken.

Wicks, an ardent outdoor man himself, and a familiar figure on golf courses here and in the south, sees a great rebirth of the old days when the Catskill mountain area was heavily patronized by vacationists.

The Senator, who has his daily dip as a health stimulant, is certain the swimming pool will be a great attraction.

Vacationists today are inclined to look for spots where swimming and golfing are available, he said, and differ in this manner from the visitors of the past who sought mostly peaceful relaxation.

Sees Popularity Unquestioned

A visitor to the southland in winter, Wicks thinks Ulster can become as popular as resorts in Florida once travelers are lured to the cooling mountains to enjoy their summer months.

Belleayre has been a pet project with the senator since he started moving for development of it back in 1946, starting legislation that started the ball rolling for the initial $260,000 which brought about beginning of the center in 1949.

Besides the T-bar, Belleayre plans call for a new ski lodge, a larger parking lot and other facilities to accommodate winter and summer visitors.

At the last session of the state legislature, Wicks sponsored legislation for appropriating $265,000 to improve the center.

Bids on other improvements are scheduled to be received Thursday by the Conservation Department.

Firemen Receive Call

The Kingston Fire Department responded to a call from 107 Henry street at 6:31 p. m. yesterday where, firemen reported, smoke had seeped into the attic from a leaky chimney. Engine 1 from Central and Engine 3 and Truck 2 from Wiltwyck went to the scene.

The state of Vermont sent more troops per capita to the Civil War than any other state in the North.

Juries Are Drawn For Three Cases

Juries for the trial of two cases charging third degree assault and one case of alleged impairment of the morals of a minor were drawn in city court this morning.

These were the cases of Caroline Rossi, Michael Danyo and John Kenneth Brown.

The case of Caroline Russi of 18 Cedar street, who was arrested July 6 on a charge of assault third degree, will be tried August 14. She was arrested by Glenford Miller of 46 Henry street who charged that she struck him across the face and shoulders with a stick. Attorney William Kaercher reresents Mrs. Rossi.

Trial of the case of Michael Danyo of 19 Hurley avenue, who was arrested on a crarge of assault third degree July19, at Mike's Bar, located at the same address, was set for August 10 by Special City Judge Harry Gold. Danyo is alleged to have struck Anne Liversidge, 33, of 177 Green street, in the eye with a glass.

Morals Charge Trial Set

Trial of John Kenneth Brown, 20, of 23 Ravine street, who was arrested July 20 at Block Park on a charge of impairing the morals of a minor, was set for August 11. Brown is represented by Attorney John Larkin.

By the consent and recommendation of the arresting officer Anthony Turck, the district attorney, represented by Attorney John Schick, accepted a plea of passing a red light in the case of Arthur Brown of Stone Ridge. Brown was arrested July 24 on East Strand on a charge of reckless driving.

Judge Gold fined Brown $10 on the charge. Appearing for Brown was Attorney H. Edgar Timmerman.

service, gave an opening prayer and then read three psalms in unison with the mourners.

They were the 27th ("The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom then shall fear?"); the 46th ("God is our hope and strength, a very present hope in trouble") and the 121st ("I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help?").

There were two prayers and the choir sang "Dear Lond and Father of Mankind" and "Onward Christian Soldiers."

The latter hymns were sung as the family and friends filed from the church.

Prayer for Congress

In his opening prayer, the Rev. Mr. Tucker departed from the standard text to add a prayer for the Congress of the United States, suggesting that it now needed divine guidance more than ever.

Members of the family occupied the first three pews on the left side of the church. They included the invalid Mrs. Taft and four sons.

Sen. Taft's body was the first to be buried in the still barren new cemetery which adjoins the church.

No grass seed has been sown and no trees or shrubs have yet been planted. The clay soil was baked hard from long midsummer heat.

The grave is in a corner of the cemetery near bordering woods. It is shaded to the east and the north by walnut, locust and hackberry trees.

It was Mrs. Taft's wish her husband be buried in the Indian Hill community rather than in Cincinnati's Spring Grove Cemetery where most of the Taft family rest.

The road on which the church and ceretery are located runs dead-end into the Taft home.

And although the senator's grave is alone in the new cemetery, it adjoins a family plot of the Henry Connet family, pioneers in the Cincinnati area.

Yonta's Funeral Rites Are Held; Killed in Korea

The funeral of Cpl. Vincent Yonta, who was killed in action June 2 in Korea, was held from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dominick Yonta, 166 Delaware avenue, yesterday morning, thence to St. Mary's Church where a solemn high Mass of requiem was offered for the repose of his soul by the Rev. Donald Reidy.

The Rev. Edward I. Farrelly served as deacon, the Rev. Paul Hirschauer, as sub-deacon and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Martin J. Drury, PR, VP, was seated within the chancel. Responses to the Mass were sung by the children's choir under the direction of Theodore Riccobono, organist-choirmaster.

At the conclusion of the Mass the Star Spangled Banner was sung by the choir.

Church Is Filled

The church was filled to capacity with the many relatives and friends of Cpl. Yonta. During the time the body reposed at the home hundreds called to express their condolences to the family.

Sunday evening St. Mary's Holy Name Society called at the home and was led in the recitation of the Rosary by Father Farrelly; spiritual director. The Ladies' Society of Santa Maria also called in a body and recited the Rosary on Sunday evening. On Saturday Msgr. Drury visited the home and said prayers for the dead.

The living room of the home was completely banked with beautiful floral tributes and many spiritual bouquets in the form of Mass cards were received.

Bearers at Rites

Bearers were Alderman-at-Large Joseph Kelly, representing the city, Pfc. Carlo Perry, Seaman Apprentice Joseph Genther, Eugene Perry, Anthony Alecca and Michael Guido. Honorary bearers were SN Donald Matthews, FN John Matthews and SN Paul Peterson, buddies of Cpl. Yonta.

The VFW Auxiliary acted as honor guard at the church and St. Mary's Cemetery. Present were Mrs. Lena Roach, president, Mrs. Pauline Gardner, Mrs. Cora DuBois, Mrs. Lillian Shultis and Mrs. Katherine McCloskey.

Color, Firing Units

The color guard at the cemetery were representatives of Post 150, American Legion, as follows: Thomas Saccoman, commander, Andrew Murphy, 3rd, Thomas Bohan, Abe Singer, Jules Albertini, Bernard Redmond and Donald McGowan.

The firing squad, supplied by the Ulster Detachment, Marine Corps League, was composed of Sgt. Charles Awkerman, John R. Mayone, Harold DeGraff and Harold Macholdt. Taps were sounded by John Ray Mayone.

The flag used to drape the casket was presented to Mrs. Yonta by Staff Sgt. Robert J. Dacey, escort from the Brooklyn Distributing Depot.

Tough Sledding for Tax

Washington, Aug. 4 (AP)—House Ways and Means Committee members today predicted the roughest sort of legislative sledding for a proposed national sales tax. They commented after the National Association of Manufacturers (NAM) at a hearing last night, urged a uniform excise or sales tax at the manufacturers' level to put the nation on "a firm road to fiscal security." There has been some talk that the Eisenhower administration might join in a similar proposal at the next regular session of Congress in January. Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey has said he is considering that among other ideas, but has not made up his mind yet.

Grossingers Get Picket Injunction

Supreme Court Justice Harry E. Schirick on Monday afternoon granted S. & H. Grossinger, Inc., a temporary injunction to restrain certain AFL labor unions from picketing Grossingers, a large Sullivan county resort hotel.

Judge Schirick ruled that the picketing by Locals 305, 29 and 32E of various hotel employes' AFL unions "is unlawful and is conducted for no proper labor objective."

A companion suit brought by the Concord hotel against the same locals had previously been withdrawn.

Oral testimony was taken in July by Justice Schirick in Kingston.

Opposing Contentions

Hotel management had claimed that the unions involved did not represent their employes save a scattered few." The unions contend that the hotel engaged in unfair labor practices.

In his decision, Justice Schirick stated that since it would be an unfair practice for an employer to to recognize, as bargaining agent, a union unless certified following an election or otherwise shown to represent a majority of his employes, therefore, "picketing or other union action, seeking to coerce an employer to violate the law in this regard, is unlawful." He also stated: "The court is absolutely satisfied that no unfair practices were committed by the employer."

Will Lease Plant

Washington, Aug. 4 (AP) — A syndicate of 21 persons has signed a contract to lease a Detroit printing plant for 15 years, former Democratic Senator Blair Moody of Michigan announced today. Moody, one of those involved, declined to disclose how much the group is paying for the lease. He also refused to comment on reports the group will use the Michigan Rotary Printing Co. plant to publish a new newspaper. The former senator said organization of the syndicate was directed by himself and by Roger L. Stevens of Detroit and New York. Incorporation of the group as the Michigan Rotary Press, Inc., soon will be under way, Moody said, with himself as president.

Offers to Sell Marks

Bonn, Germany, Aug. 4 (AP)—The Bonn government has offered to sell Communist East Germany 25 million marks ($5,879,000) worth of food to help ease the hunger crisis there, West German authorities announced today. The East German regime has plenty of West German currency and can quickly take advantage of the Bonn offer, these authorities said. Although West Germany would prefer to receive goods in exchange for any food sales to the east, the East Germans have been unable to maintain promised deliveries of goods under the interzonal trade agreement, it was said.

Will Decline Invitation

Washington, Aug. 4 (AP)—It looks as though four Senate leaders will decline the invitation of Secretary of State Dulles to join him in Korea for talks with President Syngman Rhee. Initially Acting Majority Leader Knowland (R-Calif.), Minority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.), and Sens. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.) and Russell (D-Ga.) were asked to accompany Dulles, who reached seoul today. A delay in congressional adjournment prevented the senators' going with Dulles but he asked them to follow him.

Gets Whale Skeleton

Hong Kong, Aug. 4 (AP) — The pro-Communist newspaper Wen Wie Pao today reported that fishermen on Chain's Luichow Peninsula sent the Red governor of Kwangtung Province the skeleton of a whale to show their appreciation for government loans.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Aug. 4 (AP)—A mild reaction took the stock market down a peg after four straight advances.

Softness in the market was apparent from the start, and prices backed down all around. Losses were held below a point in almost all instances with the bulk of them quite small. Gains were unimpressive.

Although major divisions were lower on balance, plus signs appeared in a few oils, rubbers, utilities, aircrafts, and golds.

Consolidated Edison of New York was a standout on the higher side with a gain of around a point following a hike in the dividend payment. Directors declared a dividend of 60 cent as against 55 cents paid in the two previous quarters.

Lower stock today included New York Central, American Telephone, Republic Steel, General Motors, Anaconda Copper, Standard Oil (N. J.), and Douglas Aircraft.

The American Stock Exchange was lower. Trading was not particularly fast. Higher were Cosben Petroleum, Missouri Public Service and Unexcelled Chemical. Lower were Amurex Oil Development "A," Louisiana Land, and Molybdenum.

Corporate bonds were irregular. U. S. governments in the over the counter market were steady.

cleared and workmen are ready to sow grass on it.

"We intend to start the second of the new ones in the near future," he advised, "and it should be ready for this winter."

Swimming Pool Discussed

Wicks said he and residents of the town of Shandaken interested in summer business discussed a swimming pool for visitors to the town.

"It would promote summer business to a great extent," Wicks said, "and could be built with a bond issue, which could be paid off through admission charges."

Concerning the golf course he proposes, the Senator said he thought a good locale would be around Lanesville. He intends to discuss the course with Robert Moses, chairman of the State Council of Parks.

Says Boom Probable

With Belleayre drawing thousands of visitors in summer as well as winter, the Ulster county area should boom as a summer resort, Wicks thinks, if the other two projects are undertaken.

Wicks, an ardent outdoor man himself, and a familiar figure on golf courses here and in the south, sees a great rebirth of the old days when the Catskill mountain area was heavily patronized by vacationists.

The Senator, who has his daily dip as a health stimulant, is certain the swimming pool will be a great attraction.

Vacationists today are inclined to look for spots where swimming and golfing are available, he said, and differ in this manner from the visitors of the past who sought mostly peaceful relaxation.

Sees Popularity Unquestioned

A visitor to the southland in winter, Wicks thinks Ulster can become as popular as resorts in Florida once travelers are lured to the cooling mountains to enjoy their summer months.

Belleayre has been a pet project with the senator since he started moving for development of it back in 1946, starting legislation that started the ball rolling for the initial $260,000 which brought about beginning of the center in 1949.

Besides the T-bar, Belleayre plans call for a new ski lodge, a larger parking lot and other facilities to accommodate winter and summer visitors.

At the last session of the state legislature, Wicks sponsored legislation for appropriating $265,000 to improve the center.

Bids on other improvements are scheduled to be received Thursday by the Conservation Department.

Firemen Receive Call

The Kingston Fire Department responded to a call from 107 Henry street at 6:31 p. m. yesterday where, firemen reported, smoke had seeped into the attic from a leaky chimney. Engine 1 from Central and Engine 3 and Truck 2 from Wiltwyck went to the scene.

The state of Vermont sent more troops per capita to the Civil War than any other state in the North.

Juries Are Drawn For Three Cases

Juries for the trial of two cases charging third degree assault and one case of alleged impairment of the morals of a minor were drawn in city court this morning.

These were the cases of Caroline Rossi, Michael Danyo and John Kenneth Brown.

The case of Caroline Russi of 18 Cedar street, who was arrested July 6 on a charge of assault third degree, will be tried August 14. She was arrested by Glenford Miller of 46 Henry street who charged that she struck him across the face and shoulders with a stick. Attorney William Kaercher reresents Mrs. Rossi.

Trial of the case of Michael Danyo of 19 Hurley avenue, who was arrested on a crarge of assault third degree July19, at Mike's Bar, located at the same address, was set for August 10 by Special City Judge Harry Gold. Danyo is alleged to have struck Anne Liversidge, 33, of 177 Green street, in the eye with a glass.

Morals Charge Trial Set

Trial of John Kenneth Brown, 20, of 23 Ravine street, who was arrested July 20 at Block Park on a charge of impairing the morals of a minor, was set for August 11. Brown is represented by Attorney John Larkin.

By the consent and recommendation of the arresting officer Anthony Turck, the district attorney, represented by Attorney John Schick, accepted a plea of passing a red light in the case of Arthur Brown of Stone Ridge. Brown was arrested July 24 on East Strand on a charge of reckless driving.

Judge Gold fined Brown $10 on the charge. Appearing for Brown was Attorney H. Edgar Timmerman.

HEAT?

This may seem like a poor time to mention the subject, but it's not a bit too early to consider what kind of (pardon the expression) heat you'll be using next winter.

While you're thinking it over, here's a tip . . .

NATURAL GAS HOUSE HEATING COSTS NO MORE THAN OTHER FUELS!

Yes, all costs considered, you can have the best in heat at a cost that's right in line with less desirable fuels!

Barrier Is Set Up

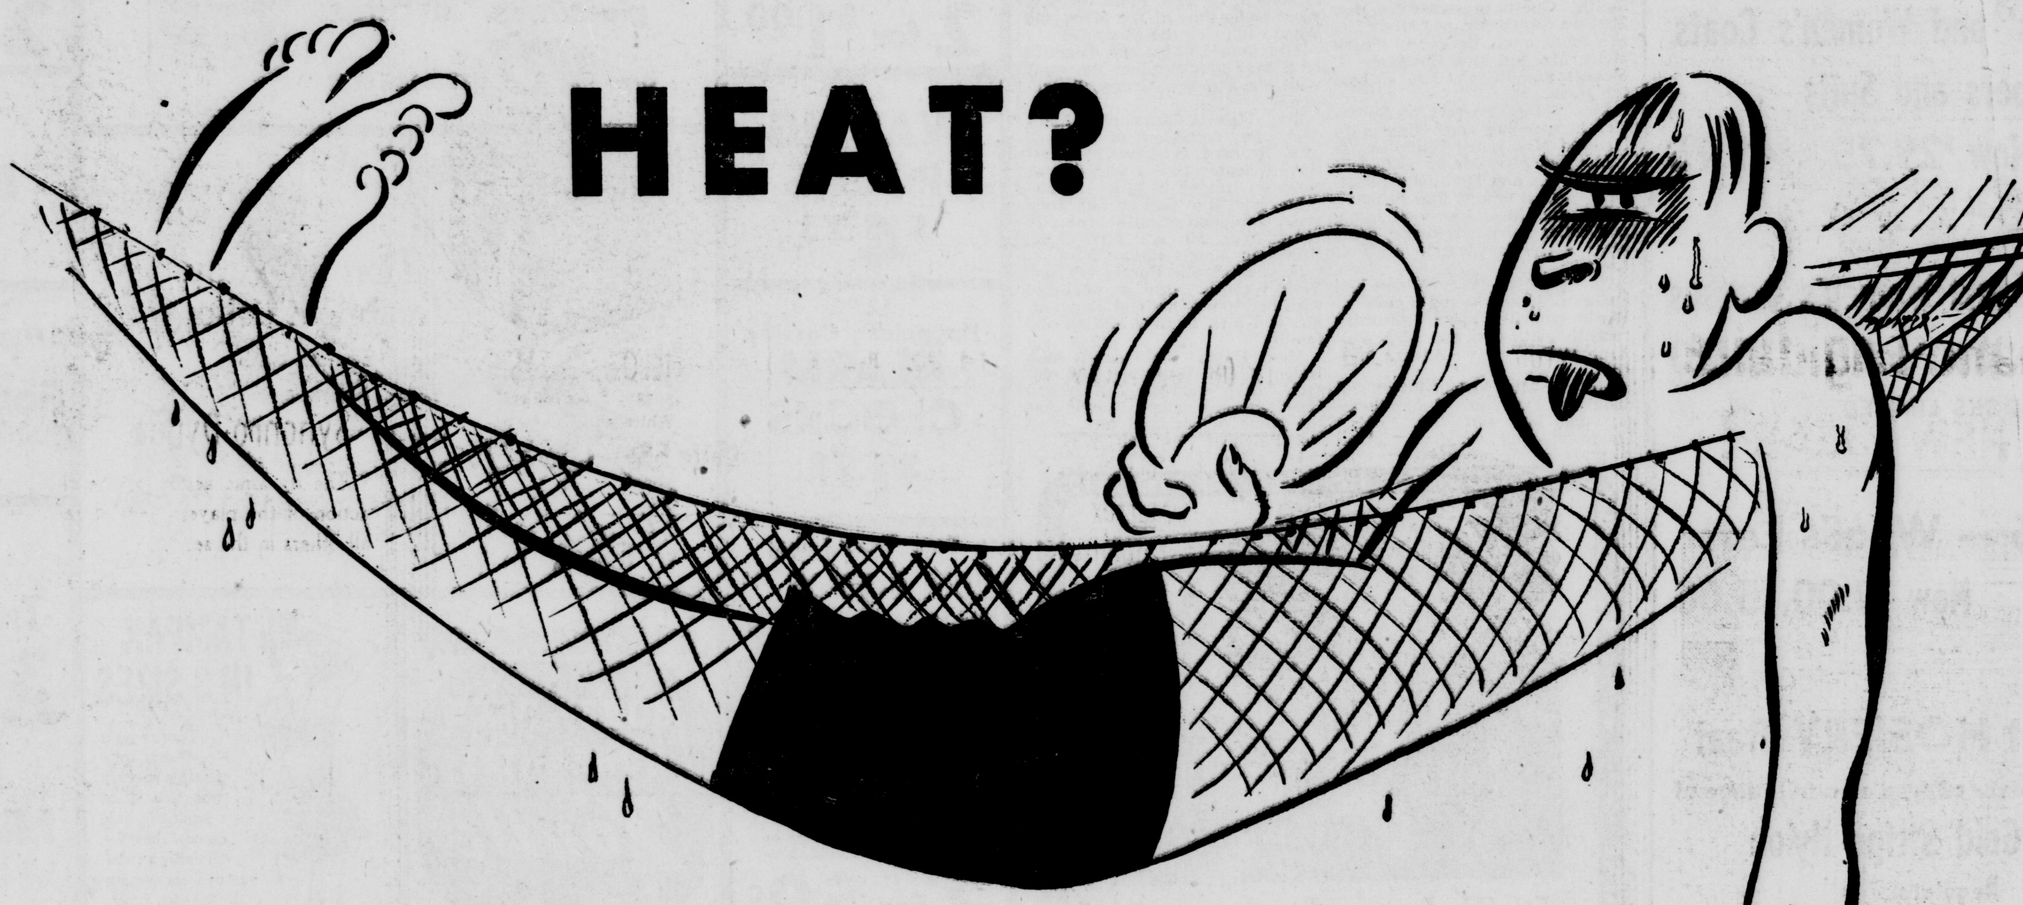

Albany, Aug. 4 (AP)—State-employed trappers are setting up an anti-rabies barrier from Lake Ontario to the Pennsylvania border in a drive to snare disease-carrying foxes. The state interdepartmental committee on rabies control said yesterday the campaign was designed to control an outbreak of rabies in south-central New York. Since July 1, seven cases involving cows and foxes have been reported in Tompkins county.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

I wonder if folks in Kingston know that recently instead of gaining a bridge they have lost one. The first inkling I had of it was when I received an unsigned poem. Being unsigned I laid it aside, as I like only authentic signed items so I can verify information by 'phone or otherwise. The other day I received a 'phone call from one of my readers who watches for historic changes on the Hudson from his outboard motor-boat. He said he had noticed recently that the young boys were not swimming off the Kingston Point Peer as usual, so he made the trip to the point by car from the other side and found a strange change in the park. It is best told by him in the note I received: "Do You Remember, When you went to Kingston Point and walked over the bridge through the arches of beautiful colored lights to the pavilion and waterfront. Well you won't anymore. Like darling Nellie Gray, they have taken the bridge away. So you can't travel that path anymore, etc." It was postmarked July 7 on envelope, 6 a. m. Kingston, N. Y. One of the boys who used to swim down there and makes the trip by bicycle told me he saw cranes working there removing the famous bridge.

The bridge is owned by private owners and they have a right to do as they please with it, and perhaps they saw best to remove it. But to us Kingstonians, who have walked that bridge so many times, and to the thousands who every Sunday used to come to that public park, open without admission to anyone who wished to enter, it seems to sing finale of the park. Like a last curtain call of a good play, there just isn't anymore, no matter how loud the audience applauds. It was good while it lasted, with its pavilion, band concerts, merry-go-round, shooting gallery, dancing hall, and its canoes going under the bridge, and row boats for hire. Now it's definitely gone.

Some time ago there was mention in this column about champ checker players of this locality. Mrs. Arace stopped in to tell me that at her place they have a group of checker champs. Bill Rappeport of 114 Tremper Ave., came down later with his checkers and board and also Lee's Guide to Game of Checkers. Bill won the mid-Hudson Valley Championship of 1952, and came in second in 1953. About eight years ago, when Willy Ryan, world's champ, also known as Bronx Comet, was at our YMCA Rappeport beat him. The world champ played blindfolded by calling off the number of each box. The Bronx Comet can memorize all the moves. Rappeport showed me how he numbers his checker-board and follows moves of other champs as found in the book.

I played an average game of checkers with no tricks. What I disliked most was when one side had a king which he put in one corner of the checker-board and could go on back and forth for a week of Sundays without being caught by the opponents two kings. He told me one is allowed just 40 moves, otherwise one would play forever. Also he showed me how to win against a queen going back and forth in same small space, although I was not too quick on catching on, it's too scientific for me, I realize that a champ earns his title in checkers.

Dean Not Among First

Munsan, Aug. 4 (AP)—Maj. Gen. William F. Dean apparently will not be among the first American war prisoners returned by the Communists at Panmunjom tomorrow. The first group of prisoners to be freed by the Communists arrived at the Red armistice camp in Kaesong last night, and Communist correspondents said they had no knowledge of Dean arriving with the group.

14 Scouts, Leaders Miss Jamboree But Visit Coast

San Francisco, Aug. 4 (AP) — Fourteen Boy Scouts and their leaders—who drove clear across the nation but missed getting to the national Jamboree near Los Angeles by one day—arrived here yesterday on their way back home.

The group, still happy and seeing lots of country, left Hempstead, N. Y., June 24 and arrived at the Jamboree site July 24, the day after the Jamboree had closed.

Alan J. Distler, their 23-year-old scoutmaster, explained that the troop started for the Jamboree in a reconditioned 1939 bus which they had purchased for $200.

An axle broke 70 miles east of Kingman, Ariz. They camped by the side of the road "for days on end" while frantically checking the country for an axle to fit a 1939 bus.

Finally relatives of one of the scouts had an axle made in Los Angeles and took it to the stranded boys.

Today the scouts cruised the Bay area, then headed for Lake Tahoe on the California-Nevada border.

Man Killed at Millbrook

Millbrook, Aug. 3 (AP)—Alex Acuri, 40, of Utica, was killed today when an embankment caved in on him while working on a Dutchess county bridge project near here. Acuri was in a 20-foot pit when the earth-slide occurred. It took workmen, using shovels and a steam crane, two hours to recover his body.

Washable window shades should be spread out flat to scrub. Use "dry" suds on cloth or brush, doing a small area at a time with overlapping strokes. Don't get the shade too wet. Hang full length to dry.

MRS. STANLEY CAPLE

Feldman-Caple Wed At Garden Ceremony In Governor Clinton

The wedding of Miss Elyse Sondra Feldman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Feldman, 104 Wall street, and Stanley Caple, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Caple, 1 Belle avenue, Troy, took place Sunday, July 26 in the gardens of the Governor Clinton Hotel. Rabbi Julius Gutmann of Troy performed the ceremony.

Music was furnished by Roger Baer and his orchestra with traditional vocal selections by Alan Gilbert of Woodstock. The ceremony was performed under a canopy of pink lilies.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of imported blush pink lace with strapless bodice over which was worn a round-necked mantilla of matching lace. Her bouffant waltz length skirt passed over a taffeta underskirt and a hoop and the mantilla trailed to the scalloped hemline. Her fingertip veil of illusion was secured by a matching bridal cap. She carried a bouquet of white stephanotis surrounded by miniature white and pink roses.

Miss Thelma Feldman, 110 Wall street, cousin of the bride, was the only attendant. She wore a salmon gown of mousseline-de-soie with a strapless bodice and bouffant, waltz length skirt. She wore a stole and a cascade of salmon-colored roses completed her ensemble.

Sidney Halpern, 126 Madison avenue was best man. Ushers were Edward Walsh, Troy, and three of the bride's cousin's; Carl Goldman, Brooklyn, Dr. Abraham Feldman and Hillard Goldman of Kingston.

A reception and dinner for 150 guests was held at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Following the wedding trip through the New England States and Cape Cod the couple will made their residence in Albany.

Mrs. Caple is a graduate of Lear School, Miami Beach, Fla. She attended Bard College, Annandale-on-Hudson, and is now a senior at Russell Sage College, Troy.

Mr. Caple is a veteran of World War 2. He is a graduate of Colgate University, Hamilton, class of 1949 and is a member of Sigma Xi fraternity.

Sash of Mary Is Believed Found in Ancient Church

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 4 (AP)—Discovery in Syria of a sash believed to have been worn by the Virgin Mary was announced last night by American Archbishop Mar Athanasius Yeshue Samuel of the Assyrian Apostolic Orthodox Church.

He said he learned of the discovery in a letter from Mar Ignatius Ephrem I, Syrian Patriarch of Antioch and all the east.

The letter said the sash was located in a fragile glass case beneath the altar of the centuries old church of Our Lady of the Girdle of the Virgin Mary, in Homs, Syria. The glass casing disintegrated at touch, the letter said.

The letter said also that church leaders in April uncovered a document written in the Aramaic language in use at the time of Christ. It said the sash was buried beneath the church altar.

An ancient legend said the sash was in the church but specified no resting place. The church was built in 59 A. D. and altered several times but the altar has remained in place 1894 years.

Archbishop Samuel is visiting friends in Worcester.

Croutons make lots of dishes taste good—soup, salad, scalloped vegetables. For an extra-special touch serve them over chicken that's been simmered in a spicy tomato sauce.

Work has begun on a 30-million-dollar port project at Tema, on the Gold Coast of Africa.

The couple plan to wed in October.

Good Taste Today

(Author of Etiquette, Children Are People, etc.)

WHAT'S MOST BECOMING TO FATHER

A bride-to-be writes: "I am going to be married soon at a morning wedding. The bridegroom and ushers will all wear striped trousers with cutaway coats. However, my father is short in stature and a cutaway coat is not very becoming to him. I would like to know if it is necessary for him to wear the cutaway coat to match the other members of the bridal party, or may he wear a sack coat with the striped trousers, instead."

It is not at all necessary that father be dressed like anyone else; and by all means let him wear what is most becoming to him.

Who Invites First?

Dear Mrs. Post: I am a young bride living in my husband's home town. Should I invite my husband's friends to our apartment, or am I right in expecting them to call on us first or invite us to their homes?

Answer: They should go to see you first, but if they're intimate friends of his, there is no reason why you should not invite them—if he wants you to!

Thank You and Please Never Wrong

Dear Mrs. Post: Can you enlighten me as to the correct usage of the words "please" and "thank you" to a waiter or waitress? My husband thinks I am losing their respect and my own dignity by using these words to someone waiting on us in a restaurant. He thinks it looks as though we were very much impressed by attention that most people take for granted.

Answer: It is very rude not to say "thank you" and "please" to anyone who does anything for you. You do not, however, thank the waiter for serving each item of the dinner. If he asks you if you want something, you say, "Yes please," or "No thank you," and you thank him for anthing he does especially for you.

Initials or Not

Dear Mrs. Post: When I had some shirts made to my measurement not long ago I agreed to the tailor's suggestion of having my initials put on the left breast in simple block letters. When my wife saw the shirts, she remarked that well-dressed men did not wear monogrammed shirts. Will you please tell me if she is right and if the shirts are in bad taste?

Answer: If they are small block letters they are correct; but conspicuous monogram would be questionable.

How should the men in the bridal party be dressed for a formal evening wedding? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. However, her leaflet E-3, "Clothes of the Bridal Party," answers this and other questions on formal weddings. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to her, in care of the Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 4 (AP)—Discovery in Syria of a sash believed to have been worn by the Virgin Mary was announced last night by American Archbishop Mar Athanasius Yeshue Samuel of the Assyrian Apostolic Orthodox Church.

He said he learned of the discovery in a letter from Mar Ignatius Ephrem I, Syrian Patriarch of Antioch and all the east.

The letter said the sash was located in a fragile glass case beneath the altar of the centuries old church of Our Lady of the Girdle of the Virgin Mary, in Homs, Syria. The glass casing disintegrated at touch, the letter said.

The letter said also that church leaders in April uncovered a document written in the Aramaic language in use at the time of Christ. It said the sash was buried beneath the church altar.

An ancient legend said the sash was in the church but specified no resting place. The church was built in 59 A. D. and altered several times but the altar has remained in place 1894 years.

Archbishop Samuel is visiting friends in Worcester.

Croutons make lots of dishes taste good—soup, salad, scalloped vegetables. For an extra-special touch serve them over chicken that's been simmered in a spicy tomato sauce.

Work has begun on a 30-million-dollar port project at Tema, on the Gold Coast of Africa.

WHAT'S MOST BECOMING TO FATHER

A bride-to-be writes: "I am going to be married soon at a morning wedding. The bridegroom and ushers will all wear striped trousers with cutaway coats. However, my father is short in stature and a cutaway coat is not very becoming to him. I would like to know if it is necessary for him to wear the cutaway coat to match the other members of the bridal party, or may he wear a sack coat with the striped trousers, instead."

It is not at all necessary that father be dressed like anyone else; and by all means let him wear what is most becoming to him.

Who Invites First?

Dear Mrs. Post: I am a young bride living in my husband's home town. Should I invite my husband's friends to our apartment, or am I right in expecting them to call on us first or invite us to their homes?

Answer: They should go to see you first, but if they're intimate friends of his, there is no reason why you should not invite them—if he wants you to!

Thank You and Please Never Wrong

Dear Mrs. Post: Can you enlighten me as to the correct usage of the words "please" and "thank you" to a waiter or waitress? My husband thinks I am losing their respect and my own dignity by using these words to someone waiting on us in a restaurant. He thinks it looks as though we were very much impressed by attention that most people take for granted.

Answer: It is very rude not to say "thank you" and "please" to anyone who does anything for you. You do not, however, thank the waiter for serving each item of the dinner. If he asks you if you want something, you say, "Yes please," or "No thank you," and you thank him for anthing he does especially for you.

Initials or Not

Dear Mrs. Post: When I had some shirts made to my measurement not long ago I agreed to the tailor's suggestion of having my initials put on the left breast in simple block letters. When my wife saw the shirts, she remarked that well-dressed men did not wear monogrammed shirts. Will you please tell me if she is right and if the shirts are in bad taste?

Answer: If they are small block letters they are correct: but conspicuous monogram would be questionable.

How should the men in the bridal party be dressed for a formal evening wedding? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. However, her leaflet E-3, "Clothes of the Bridal Party," answers this and other questions on formal weddings. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to her, in care of the Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

cuts there will be a whopping $5,800,000,000 deficit at the close of the fiscal year.

The money bill also included 6½ billions for military and economic aid to friendly nations, plus another 200 millions for South Korean rehabilitation. The Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, a vehicle for the trade-not-aid theory, was extended to next June 12.

Next year's meeting will be able to start work much more quickly on the money bills. The Eisenhower budget for fiscal 1955 will be submitted in January. This year it was May before the new regime could finish its revisions of Truman's 1954 budget.

Leftovers Are Listed

1. National debt ceiling—the President and his legislative leader decided yesterday to take another look at tax collections in September, and then decide whether a fall session would be required.

2. Tax revision—Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey has promised to have a comprehensive rewriting of the tax laws ready in January.

3. Broadening of social security laws—The President's message asking extension of coverage to 10½ million more persons was sent to the Capitol only Saturday for action next session.

4. Revision of the Taft-Hartley Labor Relations Law—Lengthy hearings were conducted, but neither House ever tried to send a bill to the floor in view of the administration's failure to agree on its recommendations.

Farm Price Supporters

5. Farm price supporters — Mandatory 90 per cent supports on six basic crops expire after the 1954 crop year. Secretary of Agriculture Benson has indicated he believes it might be better to let the law reverse to the sliding 75 to 90 per cent scale.

6. Postal rates increases—Postmaster General Summerfield pressed hard this year for 240 million dollars worth of rate boosts to cut into the 600 million dollar postal deficit. But a House committee shelved the bill while a Senate group decided to make a study and report next year.

7. Revision of McCarran-Walter Immigration Act—Eisenhower criticized provisions he said were discriminatory. But he did not send specific recommendations for changes. A group of legislators—none of them Republicans—introduced a bill yesterday to overhaul the act.

Hawaiian Statehood

8. Hawaiian statehood—Passed by House but stuck in Senate committee, expected to come up early in 1954.

9. St. Lawrence Seaway — A Senate committee approved a bill calling for the U. S. to contribute 100 million dollars toward joint construction with Canada. It was scheduled for debate next January.

10. Niagara Falls power development—The House passed a bill calling for private utilities to handle the project. But a Senate committee held it up.

Major Action Taken

On the other hand, here are some of the major actions taken by this session of Congress:

1. Dropped price and wage controls; extended rent controls in critical defense areas.

2. Spelled out the right of states to ownership of submerged lands and resources inside their historic boundaries, and the federal program for developing them outside.

3. Extended the excess profits tax for six months until Dec. 31, 1953, but took no action on a bill to reduce individual income taxes last July 1.

4. Approved 10 presidential plans for reorganization of executive agencies.

Customs Law Simplified

5. Approved legislation designed to simplify customs laws and procedures, while defeating a bill to give higher tariff protection for certain American-made goods.

6. Voted to admit 214,000 aliens during the coming three years above regular quotas.

7. Gave the President authority to send 100 million dollars worth of food surpluses overseas to help feed hungry nations.

8. Voted a reorganization of the Farm Credit Administration to give farmer groups more control over loan policies, and appropriated 150 million dollars for emergency loans in drouth-stricken areas.

9. Gave the Federal Housing Administration increased authority to insure housing loans; put a 20,000-unit limit on the number of new public housing dwellings that may be built this year.

The congressional investigation scene was dominated by Sen. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) in the field of communism; Sen. Margaret Chase-Smith (R.-Me.), looking into the ammunition shortage in Korea; the House Un-American Activities Committee delving into communism in education, and a House Ways and Means Subcommittee's probe of the Internal Revenue Bureau.

Shokan

Shokan, Aug. 4—Robert Bloom of Newburgh, former resident of Shokan, was a caller here Sunday. Another visitor Sunday was Joseph Vanderveer of Kingston. Both men attended Stauton Military Academy as youngsters.

The Reformed Church will hold its annual fair and supper Wednesday afternoon and evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Preston of Kingston were callers here last week. The Prestons have sold their home on the Moonhaw road which they purchased about 35 years ago from the Bell family.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert N. Cook of Kingston visited in Shokan last week.

Kathryn Chase of Ohio was a caller here last week. Miss Chase spent her summers for many years at the Lulu Chase bungalow colony on Winchell Mountain near Ashokan.

Mrs. Charles L. Palmer, the former Sarah J. Crowell, who died in Kingston Thursday, was a former resident of Shokan for several years. Her husband was pastor of the Shokan Reformed Church and she took part in many church affairs.

the first allied captives arrived by train Monday night at Kaesong, the advance Red truce headquarters six miles northwest of here.

A Red Cross spokesman estimated there must be 2,000 POWs in Kaesong or en route from Red camps far to the north.

The UN Red Cross representatives sent 52,000 pounds of food and other personal gear into North Korea for allied prisoners and the Communist sent 25 truckloads south.

Meanwhile, the senior UN member of the Military Armistice Commission told the Communists they could expect to get back some ragged looking captives.

Tore, Ripped Clothing

Maj. Gen. Blackshear M. Bryan said all allied-held prisoners were provided new clothing before the exchange but some captives had deliberately torn and ripped their clothes.

These prisoners will be delivered in the ruined clothing, Bryan said.

Outside the meeting, Bryan said he could not see any point in re-equipping these people at the U. S. taxpayers' expense.

Bryan's statement referred to 600 Chinese being held in the camp just south of Panmunjom. They tore and ripped their clothing during the boat ride from Cheju Island to the Port of Inchon.

In the short commission meeting, Bryan also told the Reds the UN Command had withdrawn from all the North Korean islands specified in the armistice agreement.

Ulster Park

Ulster Park, Aug. 4 — Ulster Park Reformed Church, the Rev. Harry E. Christiana, pastor in charge—Preaching service Sunday morning, 9:45.

Regular meeting of Ulster Grange 969 will take place in the Grange hall Wednesday evening at 8. The lecturer will be Hilda Hopkins. The Grange will hold a cafeteria supper and fair in its hall Saturday evening, Aug. 8. Supper will begin at 5 p. m.

Mrs. J. Hudson Cole is spending three weeks with her brother, the Rev. Edgar T. DeGraff and family at their cottage at Indian Lake in the Adirondacks.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Barringer of Esopus are spending a week with relatives in Louisville, Ky.

Mr. and Mrs. John Berinato and children Terry and Carol have moved to Arizona after selling their home here.

Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Winfield are spending the week with their daughter, Mrs. A. A. Savastano and family at Port Judith, R. I.

Miss Sheila Lanigan entertained a group of friends at her home Saturday in honor of her birthday.

Richard C. Gendreau, Esopus district finance chairman, has announced that funds will be solicited in the annual finance campaign of the Rip Van Winkle Council Boy Scouts of America, during August.

Government Still Argues

New Delhi, India, Aug. 4 (AP)—Food Minister R. A. Kidwai told Parliament today that the Indian government is still arguing with the Russians about the pay for 100,000 tons of Soviet wheat shipped to India in 1951 under a barter trade agreement. Asked whether India or Russia got the best of the bargain in the agreement, Kidwai said: "In parts we had the advantage, in parts they got the best of it. Some disputes are still going on, therefore, we cannot say finally."

She's Called 'Unusual'

West Haverstraw, Aug. 4 (AP)—Frank Carella's black minorca hen has local farmers amazed at the way she can lay eggs with double and triple yolks. Since July 24 the 7-month-old hen has produced one double-yolk egg every day, Mrs. Carella reported, except on July 19 and 26. On those two days she laid triple-yolked eggs. State farm authorities declined to say this was a record but called the whole thing "unusual."

Game Deadline Wednesday

Boys who wish to sign up for the Kingston YMCA's Yankee Stadium trip Friday should do so by Wednesday, according to R. Thornton, youth director. The game will be between the Yankees and the Chicago White Sox. Buses will leave from the YMCA early Friday morning and return about 11 p. m. The trip will be supervised by adult Y leaders. The boys will be going as Yankee Juniors, a service extended by the Yankee Stadium.

Government Still Argues

New Delhi, India, Aug. 4 (AP)—Food Minister R. A. Kidwai told Parliament today that the Indian government is still arguing with the Russians about the pay for 100,000 tons of Soviet wheat shipped to India in 1951 under a barter trade agreement. Asked whether India or Russia got the best of the bargain in the agreement, Kidwai said: "In parts we had the advantage, in parts they got the best of it. Some disputes are still going on, therefore, we cannot say finally."

She's Called 'Unusual'

West Haverstraw, Aug. 4 (AP)—Frank Carella's black minorca hen has local farmers amazed at the way she can lay eggs with double and triple yolks. Since July 24 the 7-month-old hen has produced one double-yolk egg every day, Mrs. Carella reported, except on July 19 and 26. On those two days she laid triple-yolked eggs. State farm authorities declined to say this was a record but called the whole thing "unusual."

Game Deadline Wednesday

Boys who wish to sign up for the Kingston YMCA's Yankee Stadium trip Friday should do so by Wednesday, according to R. Thornton, youth director. The game will be between the Yankees and the Chicago White Sox. Buses will leave from the YMCA early Friday morning and return about 11 p. m. The trip will be supervised by adult Y leaders. The boys will be going as Yankee Juniors, a service extended by the Yankee Stadium.

Information Sought on Big Fee Paid After Ruling in Income

Washington, Aug. 4 (AP)—House investigators sought information today about a $65,000 fee a New York manufacturer said he paid in cash after getting a favorable income tax ruling from the treasury.

William S. Lasdon of Katonah, N. Y., testified yesterday he paid Washington Attorney Welburn S. Maycock such a fee under those circumstances.

Maycock was identified by John Tobin, counsel for a Ways and Means investigating subcommittee, as attorney for the Democratic National Committee in 1944 and 1948.

The subcommittee summoned Maycock for questioning about the money and what he did to earn it. A witness testified yesterday that high treasury officials intervened in the case after government tax experts had recommended against a ruling in Lasdon's favor.

Looking for 'Influence'

The committee is looking for "undue influence" by top treasury officials on tax case decisions.

Lasdon, president of the Nepara Chemical Co. of Yonkers, N. Y., testified yesterday he paid Maycock $65,000 cash less than three months after Maycock took the case on a contingent fee basis.

Lasdon denied "any suggestion of a bribe or political contribution." He said he thought it "rather unusual," however, that Maycock asked payment in cash.

He said William Solomon of New York arranged a meeting with Maycock after Lasdon's own attorneys had failed to obtain a tax ruling, and, in fact had advised against pressing his application on grounds it would be rejected.

Given in September, 1948

Lasdon told the committee he met Maycock in July 1948, and that the favorable tax ruling was handed down in September 1948.

Karl R. Price, then an attorney in the Internal Revenue Bureau, testified that in August 1948—shortly after Maycock entered the case—former Asst. Secretary of the Treasury Edward H. Foley telephoned him urging "all haste" in consideration of Lasdon's tax application.

Price, now in private law practice in Washington, testified Foley said John Snyder, then secretary of the treasury, had inquired about it.

He said Foley asked him to discuss the case immediately with Charles Oliphant, then chief revenue bureau counsel, and report "whether you would approve the application."

Justification Ordered

Price told the committee he recommended against the ruling, but that it was issued after Oliphant ordered him to produce a justification.

Tobin told the committee that the ruling in Lasdon's favor involved income tax savings estimated at between half a million and a million dollars.

The ruling involved Lasdon's desire to sell patent licenses to a family-owned, tax exempt charitable foundation so as to benfit from capital gains taxes on the patent royalties at less than income tax rates.

By selling his patent licenses to the foundation as capital assets, Lasdon was able under the law, with treasury approval, to pay at the rate of 25 per cent instead of the income tax rate of up to 80 per cent.

Warm Air Moves In

(By The Associated Press)

Rainy and cool weather skirted the Canadian border regions from the Great Lakes to the Rockies Monday while warmer air moved in over the central and southern Rockies and the lower lakes region. Scattered showers and thunderstorms extended from the central plains to the Pacific coast and some rain fell in the southwest. Cooler air also blanketed the Pacific northwest and the Missouri valley. In central and western Texas temperatures in the 100s were common.

Police Confiscate Cabaret License

New York, Aug. 4 (AP)—Police last night confiscated the cabaret license of the "Three Deuces" Night Club and the licenses of 15 of its employes.

Deputy Chief Inspector John H. Mitchell said the action against the club—on the "Swing Street" row of night spots along a block of West 52nd street—was the first of "a series of drives to wipe out clip joints."

Mitchell said a midnight "inspection" of the club by six policemen uncovered five violations of the cabaret law, including entertainers mingling with patrons, employes soliciting business, failure to display menus, improper lighting and failure to list some employes on the operator's books.

The books of the club's president, Daniel Mullqueen, were confiscated, Mitchell said.

Mitchell said suspension of the cabaret and employes' licenses by the police department would be recommended. A hearing normally would be held.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

The press associations carried a report out of Chicago that 35 of the nation's leading golf professionals of both sexes had competed in a $25,000 hole-in-one contest.

The nearest to the pin was Jay Hebert, an obscure member of the PGA tournament trail, and the best he could do was 3 feet 9 inches from the cup. By comparison, Boyer Gonzales' 3 feet ½-inch effort to win Sunday's Freeman hole-in-one looks pretty good.

A TV sponsor put up the $25,000 prize for a three-hour television marathon beamed across the country. George S. May, the fabulous promoter of the Tam O'Shanter tournament, tossed in $5,000 for consolation prizes.

Gonzales won a handsome golf clock for his prize, a far cry from $25,000 but his superb shot proved that even when 25 Gs are at stake and the best in the world is trying, aces do not come easily. They're something that just happens in golf, no respecter of handicaps, reputations or skills.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Coach G. Warren Kias of Kingston High reveals that the Maroon's 1953 schedule will have only two night games and two new metropolitan opponents—Lawrence, L. I., and Valley Stream. Curtis High is retained, along with the usual DUSO quota and the seasonal opener with little, but stubborn, Highland High. Judge John M. Cashin introduced the 5-wood to the Freeman hole-in-one and a shirt that vied with the apparel worn by Robert Umpleby and Gene Jordan for sartorial honors. Distinguished visitors included Dick McCarthy, B. A. Culloton, the retired golfer; and Carl Preston, who competed in the first three tournaments. Do you know that as far back as 1901 Carl Preston was a member of a championship collegiate basketball team? Little Buzzy Costello, booming wood shots off the elevated tee, again stole the hearts of the large crowd of spectators. First off the tee was Mike Flanagan, who was waiting when the ground crew arrived at 7:15 a. m. Next year's tournament goes to the Woodstock Country Club, then to Ellenville in 1955. Future tournaments will be afternoon affairs.

• That Rap at Little League:

A national magazine recently took a well-publicized rap at Little League baseball and the principal prop to the story was a big blowup of a photo of two youngsters weeping, presumably after the loss of a tough ball game. Is that supposed to be sensational or didn't the editors of the mag ever send a representative to the locker room of a high school or college football team after it had blown the "traditional" game? The editors did make hay on one point when they exposed the Achilles heel of the LL setup—over-enthusiastic, indiscreet and unintelligent adult supervision. That's LL's weakest point, but it is something that can be remedied by careful selection and supervision of LL operators. These minor faults hardly overshadow the vast benefits of the program. We always have felt that LL's biggest problem was to keep the adults, coaches, managers and spectators in their proper perspective.

Some of the spectators at the recent District 3 tournament carried on in a manner that would make a muleskinner blush. Not many, just a minor fraction, but just enough to give certain educators, medical men and physical education experts a footing for criticism.

Little League players, if they are physically and mentally sound, have not yet reached the age where they are victims of pyschoses. They don't carry the defeats off the ball field like the oldies. They don't think all umpires are robbers and all managers and coaches just plain fatheads. The small fry just walk off the field and forget it, while the oldies stew in their juice.

The rap against LL because it places a premium on skill and devotes a select group of boys over another is based on a specious premise. The same thing could be said of the average high school athletic setup where a small coterie of talented youngsters are likely to dominate the three major sports—baseball, basketball and football. The high school, however, furnishes intra-mural activity for the unsuccessful candidates.

To attack LL on the grounds that it is a program designed for the benefit of a select few is an admission that the towns, cities and villages of America are not caring properly for the physical education needs of their youths.

Little League was never intended to supersede the normal functions of a well organized and effective recreation department in any community. It is a specialized program whose functions do not conflict with any recreational setup that is properly organized and supervised. The organization of a LL or several LLs does not relieve any community of its responsibility to look after the physical, mental and moral well being of every one of its small fry citizens—including those who are not talented enough to compete in Little League.

We do not think that LL is harmful emotionally to little boys in the 9-13 year bracket. We do feel that adult supervision in LL must strive for the highest plane possible. And we will still stake the future of this country in the hands of little guys who can make plays in the clutch at third base like Richie Wenzel, or fire a ball across the diamond like Al MacIntosh, or send one soaring over the fence like Hobart Armstrong or Harry Keearse. And they are Little Leaguers all.

Smith Wants Carter

Brooklyn, Aug. 4 (AP)—Wallace (Bud) Smith, Cincinnati, fresh from his six-round technical knockout over Cal Coates, Baltimore, at Eastern Parkway Arena last night, hopes to meet lightweight champion Jimmy Carter. Manager Vic Marsillo said that promoters Sammy and Ben Becker of Cincinnati have offered Carter a $25,000 guarantee to fight Smith in October or November.

Stagg to Quit

Stockton, Calif., Aug. 3 (AP)—Amos Alonzo Stagg, football's grand old man, says his 63-year coaching career appears ended because of the illness of his wife, Stella—"the best assistant a coach ever had." The venerable 91-year-old mentor said today he would not return to his advisory post at Susquehanna University, Selinsgrove, Pa., due to Mrs. Stagg's health.

Subway Grill Routs Cherny's, 10-3, Tightens Lead

Al Hunt's Relief Pitching Factor; Beichert's Win

Score 11 Runs in 2nd Against Esopus Legion

Subway Grill marched blithely toward the City Softball League pennant yesterday, with a 10-3 drubbing of Cherny's, while Beichert's Studebakers hammered 11 runs across the plate in the second inning to surprise the Esopus Legion, 19 to 9.

A superb relief stint by Al Hunt insured the Subway triumph, after Cherny's routed veteran Walt Bigler with three runs in the first inning. Hunt pitched shutout ball the rest of the way.

Subways collected 16 hits off Ed Lowe and Cliff Miller, including three each by Fred Orr, Bob Schatzel and Al Hunt. Tommy Maines pounded a homer; Orr and Schatzel cracked triples. Clayton Stalter hit a double for the losers.

The Grills trailed 3-1 at the end of two but put together two straight 3-run innings and added three more in the seventh. Vince Bruck, Stalter, Buster McCardle and Walt Matheus hit safely twice each for Cherny's.

Snyder Leads Spree

Duke Snyder's homer with two aboard highlighted Beicher's 11-run barrage against Esopus Legion in the second inning.

Esopus rallied with five runs in the fifth but by that time the Studies had piled up a 12-0 lead. They bounced back with three in the bottom of the fifth and four in the sixth to make it 19-5 before Esopus picked up four in the top of the seventh.

With 30 hits sprayed around the diamond, several players fattened their batting averages with lusty performances.

Duke Snyder hit two singles in addition to his homer. Don Smith doubled and singled twice; and Eddie Ashdown stroked three singles. Danny Basch and Andy Murphy each had a pair of solo swats.

Cliff Davis was the heavy production man for Esopus with a triple and two singles. Herb Ferguson, Jim Ferraro and Bud Munson pounded two solos apiece.

Police Rally Nips Rotary in FLY, 12-10

Losers Score Seven In Fifth Then Stage Collapse

Suffer Seventh Straight Loss

Trailing 9-3 at one stage of the game, the winless Rotary nine rallied to almost taste their first victory of the season in the Fraternal Youth League.

But when the final returns were in, yesterday at municipal stadium, the Police nine had broken their hearts, 12 to 11, with two runs in the bottom of the fifth.

Absorbing its seventh straight setback, the Rotary put on its best show of the season with a seven-run barrage in the top of the fifth. That made it 11-10 but they fell apart defensively in the bottom half of the frame as the Police counted twice to gain their third win against four setbacks.

Lee Kias' base-clearing triple was the big blow during the Rotary's rally.

Comes The Collapse

With victory in their grasp, the Rotary defense collapsed behind reliefer Johnny Culjack.

It started when George Hamilton hit a routine liner to Billy Guldy, who couldn't find the handle. Hamilton stole second and third while Dick Amato was coaxing a pass. Amato stole second and stayed anchored while Hamilton scored on Bob Raible's rap to John Turck at third base. Turck had to stand there and hold the ball without a play.

Art Moshis hit an ordinary single to left field but, when Roland Hart let it seep through his legs, Amato came all the way home with the winning Police run.

Kias' triple was the only extra base hit of the contest. Bob Raible, the Police cleanup swatter, drilled three singles in four times at bat and Art Moshis and Bob Tellier each had two hits.

Johnny Culjack stroked two singles to pace the Rotary.

Giannuzzi fanned eight men after relieving Newell early in the game. He also walked eight.

American Legion gets a chance to move ahead of the Elks in the win column when it meets the VFW in Wednesday's clash. The Elks and KPA are scheduled Thursday.

KPA and Rotary have a make-up game on tap for Friday.

Donkey Baseball Game Slated For Esopus LL on August 12

Donkey baseball, that hilarious pre-war innovation, will make a one-night stand at Ross Field in Port Ewen on Wednesday, Aug. 12, at 8:30 p. m.

A smash hit in its day, donkey baseball still packs a wallop for that generation of fans who never have seen the zany antics of the men and burros in a pleasant travesty on the national pastime.

The proceeds go to the Town of Esopus Little League.

Promoters of the contest have arranged a game between the married men and single men another version of the familiar American clambake of baseball but, out of respect to the donkeys, no beer keg will be found on third base.

It promises to be a hilarious show with no premium on sore or aching posteriors. Tickets are now being sold by members of the Town of Esopus Post No. 1298 of the American Legion.

Tickets will also be sold at the park the night of the game.

Howard and Davis Lead Mixed Loop

Richard Howard and Mabel Davis led their respective divisions in last night's Sangi Summer Mixed League.

Howard stacked solos of 189-180-221 for 590 and Mrs. Davis fired 169-187-176 for 532. Chris Robinson trailed Howard with 546. Phil Reilly hit 212-527; John Davis 525; Mitzie Arlensky 203-512; John Sangi 510 and Joe Sangi 508.

Eleanor Singer was runnerup in the distaff department with 494 and Kay Brodhead hit 489. Dot Khederian with 486, Kay Roosa 484, Mildred Dunn 476 completed the top bracket.

The team results:

Bowery Dugout 2, DeLuca Cleaners 1; Cherny's Keglers 2, Adirondack Trailways 1; Welch Grocers 3, DD's Drive-In 0; Crown Blouse, 2½, Team No. 3, ½.

Newport Chief Cops Westbury Feature

Westbury, Aug. 4 (AP)—Newport Chief, the swift sidewheeler owned by the Newport Stock Farm of South Plainfield, N. J., could boast a winning streak of four races today.

The top candidate for next fall's Little Brown Jug, capture the $30,000 Village Farm Stakes for 3-year-old pacers at Roosevelt Raceway last night after leading all the way. The winning time was 2:02.2 and Newport Chief paid $3.50.

Rifles Blast Blue Jays, 6-4 In Pee Wee Go

The Rifles continued to dominate the Boys Club Pee Wee Baseball League yesterday, trouncing the Blue Jays, 7 to 4, behind the six-hit pitching of Peter Keizer.

The Rifles staked Keizer to a 5-1 lead off Joe Soucie in the first two innings and made it hold up, although Blue Jays had men on base in every frame.

Four extra base hits figured in the Rifles' early rally. Robert Lang went "3 for 3" with two doubles and a single; John Smith pounded a pair of two baggers and Keizer aided his own cause with a single and double. Don Ellsworth contributed a triple to the winning attack.

Mangrum Choice For World Golf After Tam Win

Chicago, Aug. 4 (AP)—Pro golf's top money-winner newly-crowned All American champion Lloyd Mangrum, today appeared properly "cased" for a potential loot of $25,000 in the "World" pro meet starting Thursday at Tam O'Shanter.

Mangrum, Tam's host pro, yesterday pocketed $3,420 as he won the All American prelude to the $75,000 "World" pro with a 13-under-par total of 275. Three strokes ahead of Sammy Snead and Ted Kroll.

Mangrum will be favored to take the top $25,000 prize in the big "World" purse offered by his boss, George S. May. That would far more than double his earnings to date.

Mangrum yesterday treated Tam just as a home pro should, banging a five-under-par 67 after rounds of 69, 68 and 71.

Kroll, who like Mangrum finished with 67, and Snead, stroking a final 68, collected $2,180 apiece. Fourth spot and $1,700 went to the 1953 PGA champion, Walter Burkemo with 279.

In the wake of the All American, the Professional Golfers' Association today was expected to announce the make up of the 1953 U. S. Ryder Cup team which meets Britain's best at Wentworth, England, Oct. 2-3.

Unofficially, the Ryder Cup 10-man array is expected to include Mangrum, Jim Turnesa and Burkemo, automatic team members because of their victories in the past two National PGA tourneys; Snead, Kroll, Jack Burke, Cary Middlecoff, Dutch Harrison, Porky Oliver and Dave Douglas. Hogan is eligible, but presumably will decline a berth.

British Unhappy But Will Continue Wightman Series

Rye, N. Y., Aug. 4 (AP)—Great Britain's women tennis players have taken their annual shellacking at the hands of the United States, but they're not ready to throw in the towel.

"It's true this has been a one-sided series," said Col. Duncan MacAulay, captain of the British forces. "But it's wonderful competition. I think by all means we should continue it as it is."

There were suggestions in Great Britain recently that the international series which Britain has won only four times since 1923 either should be abandoned or changed to make the humiliating defeat less frequent.

Led by Maureen (Little Mo) Connolly, holder of every major women's title and Doris Hart, the Americans completed their sixth 7-0 sweep in eight years yesterday at the Westchester Country Club. They didn't lose a set.

It was America's 17th straight Wightman Cup victory and the 25th against 4 setbacks.

Miss Connolly, from San Diego, Calif., trounced left-handed Helen Fletcher, 6-1, 6-1, while Miss Hart routed Angela Mortimer, 6-1, 6-1. Saturday Miss Connolly had beaten Miss Mortimer and Miss Hart had won a close decision over Miss Fletcher.

Broskie Blasts 642 in Classic

Runnerup Tom Carlino fired 214-224-608 and Virgil Crispell posted 237-605. George Shufeldt also cracked the select circle with 235-602.

High solo of the night went to Carmen Salvino with 258-598 and Tom Amato fired 215-206-585. Other high shooters included John Ferraro 202-223-570; Bill Murray 204-578; Angie Ferraro 203-569; Buster Ferraro 233-565; Larry Weishaupt 217-567; Ross Ellis 222 and Charlie Manfro 224.

Team results:

Whitey's Drive-In 3, Needes Express 0; Glasco Keglers 2, Spada's Sport Shop 1; Greco Bros. 3, Rapp's Express 0; Jones Dairy 3, Red McDermott's 0; Kingston Heating Supply 3, Lawrence's 0; Goodyear Shoe Repair 3, Gallop's 0; Barclay Knitwear 2, Miron Lumber 0.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Pitching—Billy Pierce, Chicago White Sox, struck out nine for major league leading total of 124 and gave up two hits in beating Washington 1-0.

Batting—Red Schoendienst, St. Louis Cardinals, singled twice and tripled, scoring two runs, as the Cards whipped Philadelphia 8-3.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

The press associations carried a report out of Chicago that 35 of the nation's leading golf professionals of both sexes had competed in a $25,000 hole-in-one contest.

The nearest to the pin was Jay Hebert, an obscure member of the PGA tournament trail, and the best he could do was 3 feet 9 inches from the cup. By comparison, Boyer Gonzales' 3 feet ½-inch effort to win Sunday's Freeman hole-in-one looks pretty good.

A TV sponsor put up the $25,000 prize for a three-hour television marathon beamed across the country. George S. May, the fabulous promoter of the Tam O'Shanter tournament, tossed in $5,000 for consolation prizes.

Gonzales won a handsome golf clock for his prize, a far cry from $25,000 but his superb shot proved that even when 25 Gs are at stake and the best in the world is trying, aces do not come easily. They're something that just happens in golf, no respecter of handicaps, reputations or skills.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Coach G. Warren Kias of Kingston High reveals that the Maroon's 1953 schedule will have only two night games and two new metropolitan opponents—Lawrence, L. I., and Valley Stream. Curtis High is retained, along with the usual DUSO quota and the seasonal opener with little, but stubborn, Highland High. Judge John M. Cashin introduced the 5-wood to the Freeman hole-in-one and a shirt that vied with the apparel worn by Robert Umpleby and Gene Jordan for sartorial honors. Distinguished visitors included Dick McCarthy, B. A. Culloton, the retired golfer; and Carl Preston, who competed in the first three tournaments. Do you know that as far back as 1901 Carl Preston was a member of a championship collegiate basketball team? Little Buzzy Costello, booming wood shots off the elevated tee, again stole the hearts of the large crowd of spectators. Subway Grill Routs Cherny's, 10-3, Tightens Lead

Al Hunt's Relief Pitching Factor; Beichert's Win

Score 11 Runs in 2nd Against Esopus Legion

Subway Grill marched blithely toward the City Softball League pennant yesterday, with a 10-3 drubbing of Cherny's, while Beichert's Studebakers hammered 11 runs across the plate in the second inning to surprise the Esopus Legion, 19 to 9.

A superb relief stint by Al Hunt insured the Subway triumph, after Cherny's routed veteran Walt Bigler with three runs in the first inning. Hunt pitched shutout ball the rest of the way.

Subways collected 16 hits off Ed Lowe and Cliff Miller, including three each by Fred Orr, Bob Schatzel and Al Hunt. Tommy Maines pounded a homer; Orr and Schatzel cracked triples. Clayton Stalter hit a double for the losers.

The Grills trailed 3-1 at the end of two but put together two straight 3-run innings and added three more in the seventh. Vince Bruck, Stalter, Buster McCardle and Walt Matheus hit safely twice each for Cherny's.

Snyder Leads Spree

Duke Snyder's homer with two aboard highlighted Beicher's 11-run barrage against Esopus Legion in the second inning.

Esopus rallied with five runs in the fifth but by that time the Studies had piled up a 12-0 lead. They bounced back with three in the bottom of the fifth and four in the sixth to make it 19-5 before Esopus picked up four in the top of the seventh.

With 30 hits sprayed around the diamond, several players fattened their batting averages with lusty performances.

Duke Snyder hit two singles in addition to his homer. Don Smith doubled and singled twice; and Eddie Ashdown stroked three singles. Danny Basch and Andy Murphy each had a pair of solo swats.

Cliff Davis was the heavy production man for Esopus with a triple and two singles. Herb Ferguson, Jim Ferraro and Bud Munson pounded two solos apiece.

British Unhappy But Will Continue Wightman Series

Rye, N. Y., Aug. 4 (AP)—Great Britain's women tennis players have taken their annual shellacking at the hands of the United States, but they're not ready to throw in the towel.

"It's true this has been a one-sided series," said Col. Duncan MacAulay, captain of the British forces. "But it's wonderful competition. I think by all means we should continue it as it is."

There were suggestions in Great Britain recently that the international series which Britain has won only four times since 1923 either should be abandoned or changed to make the humiliating defeat less frequent.

Led by Maureen (Little Mo) Connolly, holder of every major women's title and Doris Hart, the Americans completed their sixth 7-0 sweep in eight years yesterday at the Westchester Country Club. They didn't lose a set.

It was America's 17th straight Wightman Cup victory and the 25th against 4 setbacks.

Miss Connolly, from San Diego, Calif., trounced left-handed Helen Fletcher, 6-1, 6-1, while Miss Hart routed Angela Mortimer, 6-1, 6-1. Saturday Miss Connolly had beaten Miss Mortimer and Miss Hart had won a close decision over Miss Fletcher.

Rifles Blast Blue Jays, 6-4 In Pee Wee Go

The Rifles continued to dominate the Boys Club Pee Wee Baseball League yesterday, trouncing the Blue Jays, 7 to 4, behind the six-hit pitching of Peter Keizer.

The Rifles staked Keizer to a 5-1 lead off Joe Soucie in the first two innings and made it hold up, although Blue Jays had men on base in every frame.

Four extra base hits figured in the Rifles' early rally. Robert Lang went "3 for 3" with two doubles and a single; John Smith pounded a pair of two baggers and Keizer aided his own cause with a single and double. Don Ellsworth contributed a triple to the winning attack.

Robert Beadle, the Blue Jays cleanup batter and relief pitcher, got half of his team's hits, a triple and two singles in four trips.

Keizer fanned nine and walked eight. Soucie and Beadle racked up 11 strikeouts between them.

Broskie Blasts 642 in Classic

Harold Broskie pounded 642 (178-221-243) to lead last night's session of the Summer Classic League at the Bowlodrome.

Runnerup Tom Carlino fired 214-224-608 and Virgil Crispell posted 237-605. George Shufeldt also cracked the select circle with 235-602.

High solo of the night went to Carmen Salvino with 258-598 and Tom Amato fired 215-206-585. Other high shooters included John Ferraro 202-223-570; Bill Murray 204-578; Angie Ferraro 203-569; Buster Ferraro 233-565; Larry Weishaupt 217-567; Ross Ellis 222 and Charlie Manfro 224.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Pitching—Billy Pierce, Chicago White Sox, struck out nine for major league leading total of 124 and gave up two hits in beating Washington 1-0.

Batting—Red Schoendienst, St. Louis Cardinals, singled twice and tripled, scoring two runs, as the Cards whipped Philadelphia 8-3.

Mangrum Choice For World Golf After Tam Win

Chicago, Aug. 4 (AP)—Pro golf's top money-winner newly-crowned All American champion Lloyd Mangrum, today appeared properly "cased" for a potential loot of $25,000 in the "World" pro meet starting Thursday at Tam O'Shanter.

Mangrum, Tam's host pro, yesterday pocketed $3,420 as he won the All American prelude to the $75,000 "World" pro with a 13-under-par total of 275. Three strokes ahead of Sammy Snead and Ted Kroll.

Mangrum will be favored to take the top $25,000 prize in the big "World" purse offered by his boss, George S. May. That would far more than double his earnings to date.

Mangrum yesterday treated Tam just as a home pro should, banging a five-under-par 67 after rounds of 69, 68 and 71.

Kroll, who like Mangrum finished with 67, and Snead, stroking a final 68, collected $2,180 apiece. Fourth spot and $1,700 went to the 1953 PGA champion, Walter Burkemo with 279.

In the wake of the All American, the Professional Golfers' Association today was expected to announce the make up of the 1953 U. S. Ryder Cup team which meets Britain's best at Wentworth, England, Oct. 2-3.

Unofficially, the Ryder Cup 10-man array is expected to include Mangrum, Jim Turnesa and Burkemo, automatic team members because of their victories in the past two National PGA tourneys; Snead, Kroll, Jack Burke, Cary Middlecoff, Dutch Harrison, Porky Oliver and Dave Douglas. Hogan is eligible, but presumably will decline a berth.

Losers Score Seven In Fifth Then Stage Collapse

Suffer Seventh Straight Loss

Trailing 9-3 at one stage of the game, the winless Rotary nine rallied to almost taste their first victory of the season in the Fraternal Youth League.

But when the final returns were in, yesterday at municipal stadium, the Police nine had broken their hearts, 12 to 11, with two runs in the bottom of the fifth.

Absorbing its seventh straight setback, the Rotary put on its best show of the season with a seven-run barrage in the top of the fifth. That made it 11-10 but they fell apart defensively in the bottom half of the frame as the Police counted twice to gain their third win against four setbacks.

Lee Kias' base-clearing triple was the big blow during the Rotary's rally.

Comes The Collapse

With victory in their grasp, the Rotary defense collapsed behind reliefer Johnny Culjack.

It started when George Hamilton hit a routine liner to Billy Guldy, who couldn't find the handle. Hamilton stole second and third while Dick Amato was coaxing a pass. Amato stole second and stayed anchored while Hamilton scored on Bob Raible's rap to John Turck at third base. Turck had to stand there and hold the ball without a play.

Art Moshis hit an ordinary single to left field but, when Roland Hart let it seep through his legs, Amato came all the way home with the winning Police run.

Kias' triple was the only extra base hit of the contest. Bob Raible, the Police cleanup swatter, drilled three singles in four times at bat and Art Moshis and Bob Tellier each had two hits.

Johnny Culjack stroked two singles to pace the Rotary.

Giannuzzi fanned eight men after relieving Newell early in the game. He also walked eight.

American Legion gets a chance to move ahead of the Elks in the win column when it meets the VFW in Wednesday's clash. The Elks and KPA are scheduled Thursday.

KPA and Rotary have a make-up game on tap for Friday.

Donkey Baseball Game Slated For Esopus LL on August 1

Donkey baseball, that hilarious pre-war innovation, will make a one-night stand at Ross Field in Port Ewen on Wednesday, Aug. 12, at 8:30 p. m.

A smash hit in its day, donkey baseball still packs a wallop for that generation of fans who never have seen the zany antics of the men and burros in a pleasant travesty on the national pastime.

The proceeds go to the Town of Esopus Little League.

Promoters of the contest have arranged a game between the married men and single men another version of the familiar American clambake of baseball but, out of respect to the donkeys, no beer keg will be found on third base.

It promises to be a hilarious show with no premium on sore or aching posteriors. Tickets are now being sold by members of the Town of Esopus Post No. 1298 of the American Legion.

Tickets will also be sold at the park the night of the game

Howard and Davis Lead Mixed Loop

Richard Howard and Mabel Davis led their respective divisions in last night's Sangi Summer Mixed League.

Howard stacked solos of 189-180-221 for 590 and Mrs. Davis fired 169-187-176 for 532. Chris Robinson trailed Howard with 546. Phil Reilly hit 212-527; John Davis 525; Mitzie Arlensky 203-512; John Sangi 510 and Joe Sangi 508.

Eleanor Singer was runnerup in the distaff department with 494 and Kay Brodhead hit 489. Dot Khederian with 486, Kay Roosa 484, Mildred Dunn 476 completed the top bracket.

Phils Revise Estimates On the Russ Meyer Deal

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

This might be an appropriate time to wonder what Steve O'Neill thinks now of that roundabout winter trade that sent Russ Meyer from Philadelphia to Brooklyn by way of the Braves.

The Phillies' manager at the time pooh-poohed the idea that Brooklyn had traded itself into the pennant. But with the season two-thirds gone, the temperamental righthander's 11-4 record would look mighty good to the Phils' pitching roster, which seems to consist almost solely of Robin Roberts.

And you can bet your bottom dollar the Braves wince every time they remember that they engineered the deal.

Meyer threw his second straight shutout at the Braves last night in Milwaukee, winning 1-0 in seven rain-soaked innings. He's beaten them four times this season against one setback. The victory moved the Dodgers 8½ ahead of second place Milwaukee in the National League pennant race.

How It Happened

During the winter the Dodgers had designs on Meyer but they weren't able to pry him loose from Philadelphia until Lou Perni and the Braves, then still in Boston, stepped into the trading picture. In a fast and involved deal the Braves got Meyer in exchange for first baseman Earl Torgenson and cash and then shipped the pitcher to Brooklyn for infielder Jim Pendleton and Rocky Bridges. Bridges was swapped immediately to Cincinnati as part payment for first baseman Joe Adcock.

Meyer not only pitched a shutout last night, he batted in the winning run with a single in the seventh inning.

Brooklyn has beaten Milwaukee 11 out of 15 games so far including all six played in Milwaukee.

Meyer wasn't the only good pitcher in the majors last night. At Washington Billy Pierce of the Chicago White Sox gave up just two hits in a 1-0 triumph over Johnny Schmitz and the Senators. At Cincinnati Joe Nuxhall of the Redlegs limited Pittsburgh to five hits in winning 5-0.

Yanks Rout Browns

In other major league action the St. Louis Cardinals whipped Philadelphia 8-3 and climbed within half a game of the third place Phils and the New York Yankees smothered St. Louis' hapless Brownies 11-3.

Pierce's shutout was the fourth straight scoreless game in the Washington-Chicago series, which the two clubs split.

Nuxall was given a two-run lead in the first inning and a comfortable margin in the fourth when Andy Seminick homered with one aboard.

The Cardinals routed Jim Konstanty with four runs in the first and added three more in the second inning. Wilmer Mizell cousted with a scoreless three hitter until the ninth when the Phils rallied with a two-run pinch hit homer by Connie Ryan.

The Yankees maintained their five game margin in the American League by battering St. Louis pitching for 18 hits. Whitey Ford won his 12th game against four defeats.

Fights Last Night

Brooklyn — Wallace (Bud) Smith, 139½, Cincinnati, stopped Carl Coates, 140¾, Baltimore, 6.

Boston—Tony Demarco, 140½, Boston, stopped Terry Young, 139¾, New York, 5.

Klosterman Goes Against Doblers In City League

Big Zeke Klosterman, the strong-armed right hander, is the league-leading Colonial Merchants' hope against Doblers in the City League today.

Klosterman, a standout in recent Saturday night ball at the stadium, is expected to draw youthful Gerry Bechtold as his opponent and a real mound duel is in prospect.

The game is the first of two to test the pennant aspirations of Manager Pucker Davis' charges this week. They are scheduled to go against Wiltwyck Motors on Thursday.

Esopus Legion Post Plans Rally For LL Tourney Finals Wednesday

Township Tossers Play Poughkeepsie

The Town of Esopus American Legion Post, sponsors of Little League baseball in that township, have announced plans for a rally Wednesday evening at Little League Stadium, when the Esopus All Stars meet the Poughkeepsie Americans in the finals of the District 3 tournament.

Every Legionaire who can attend the contest has been asked to report to the stadium wearing their Legion caps.

No-Hit Pitcher

Poughkeepsie's Jimmy Tyrell, well remembered from last year's tournament, pitched a no-hit, no-run game when the Bridge City nine opened the tournament against Wingdale with a 7-0 victory.

The Queen City nine then whipped Southern Dutchess, 4-2, and nailed down the sub-district title with a wild 12-10 victory over the Hudson Valley All Stars.

Esopus will be without the services of Bob Short, who is ineligible to pitch because of Little League regulations that stipulate a pitcher cannot appear in two successive games in a tournament.

LeMay To Pitch

But the villagers have little Emory LeMay, the curve-ball wizard who stood the Kingston Americans on their collective ears for five innings.

If LeMay falters, Manager Ernie Best has three other capable pitchers in Al MacIntosh, Charlie Turner and Richie Wenzel. However, Esopus expects no serious trouble if LeMay can approximate the form he showed against Kingston.

The winner of Wednesday's game goes to Scotia for the sectionals on Aug. 14-15. The survivor of the Scotia tournament travels to the Regional at Rockville Centre, L. I. on Aug. 20-22. The winner there gets a berth in the national playoffs at Williamsport on Aug. 25-28.

Diamond 'Faux Pas'

St. Louis Browns' rookie shortstop Billy Hunter (6) is out on a boner play after Yankees' second sacker Billy Martin tagged him in sixth inning of game at Yankee Stadium. Hunter had singled and took second on throw from outfield trying to get runner going into third base. The throw was cut off and ball tossed to Martin, although not in time to get Hunter. However, Hunter, thinking he had been called out, jumped off bag to protest to umpire, Jim Duffy, in background. When Hunter left the base, Martin tagged him for the out. Yankees won, 11-3.

Balance Problems on Sidehill Lie

By JULIUS BOROS
(1952 U. S. Open Champ)

A sidehill lie poses the most difficult shot of all.

The ball can be lower or higher than the feet.

When the ball is lower than the feet since you are standing on a downward slope, you will have a tendency to reach for it. The main problem is to obtain firm footing, so you are properly balanced and capable of hitting the ball squarely. Bending the knees, the weight will be shifted more to the heels, and you will eliminate the feeling of leaning forward so much.

Grip the club as far up the shaft as possible.

The natural swing will result in a slice, so aim a little to the left of the object.

As in the case of a downhill lie, stay down throughout the swing, or you may easily top the ball.

When the ball is higher than the feet, you have the sensation of falling backward when you assume the natural stance, so concentrate the weight on the balls of the feet. The reason for choking up on the grip is that the ball is closer to you than when resting on a normal flat surface. Use a more upright stance.

The normal tendency is to hook, so shorten the backswing and aim a little to the right.

Bend the knees a little. Move the feet closer together for better balance, always the toughest problems on this type of lie.

Figuring how to execute any shot from a difficult downhill, uphill lie, decide what variations you need to make, and then swing in the normal groove.

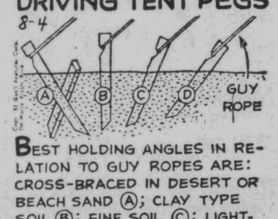

The club should always be swung in the same manner.

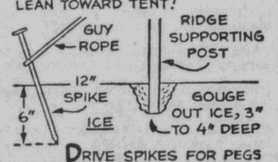

UPRIGHT—Julius Boros shortens up on the grip, uses a more upright stance with weight more on the balls of the feet. (NEA)

Miss Swank Plants Sold to New Yorker

Middletown, Aug. 4 (AP)—Miss Swank, Inc., which operates plants here and in New York and Saugerties, was purchased yesterday by S. S. Schneirson, head of I. Schneirson & Sons, Inc., of New York.

Both firms manufacture lingerie and other underwear.

The announcement of the transaction did not disclose the purchase price. It said, however, that key personnel will be retained in their present jobs and Miss Swank, Inc., will continute to operate as a corporate entity.

Voorhees Is Appointed

Washington, Aug. 4 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson has appointed a former undersecretary of the army, Tracy Voorhees, to a dual post in Europe. The New York lawyer, who resigned his army office in 1950, will represent the Pentagon in arranging military procurement in Europe and will serve as defense adviser to the U. S. permanent representative on the North Atlantic Council, ambassador John C. Hughes. Under an order of the President, the Wilson announcement said yesterday, the post of defense adviser carries the personal rank of minister.

Phils Revise Estimates On the Russ Meyer Deal

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

This might be an appropriate time to wonder what Steve O'Neill thinks now of that roundabout winter trade that sent Russ Meyer from Philadelphia to Brooklyn by way of the Braves.

The Phillies' manager at the time pooh-poohed the idea that Brooklyn had traded itself into the pennant. But with the season two-thirds gone, the temperamental righthander's 11-4 record would look mighty good to the Phils' pitching roster, which seems to consist almost solely of Robin Roberts.

And you can bet your bottom dollar the Braves wince every time they remember that they engineered the deal.

Meyer threw his second straight shutout at the Braves last night in Milwaukee, winning 1-0 in seven rain-soaked innings. He's beaten them four times this season against one setback. The victory moved the Dodgers 8½ ahead of second place Milwaukee in the National League pennant race.

How It Happened

During the winter the Dodgers had designs on Meyer but they weren't able to pry him loose from Philadelphia until Lou Perni and the Braves, then still in Boston, stepped into the trading picture. In a fast and involved deal the Braves got Meyer in exchange for first baseman Earl Torgenson and cash and then shipped the pitcher to Brooklyn for infielder Jim Pendleton and Rocky Bridges. Bridges was swapped immediately to Cincinnati as part payment for first baseman Joe Adcock.

Meyer not only pitched a shutout last night, he batted in the winning run with a single in the seventh inning.

Brooklyn has beaten Milwaukee 11 out of 15 games so far including all six played in Milwaukee.

Meyer wasn't the only good pitcher in the majors last night. At Washington Billy Pierce of the Chicago White Sox gave up just two hits in a 1-0 triumph over Johnny Schmitz and the Senators. At Cincinnati Joe Nuxhall of the Redlegs limited Pittsburgh to five hits in winning 5-0.

Yanks Rout Browns

In other major league action the St. Louis Cardinals whipped Philadelphia 8-3 and climbed within half a game of the third place Phils and the New York Yankees smothered St. Louis' hapless Brownies 11-3.

Pierce's shutout was the fourth straight scoreless game in the Washington-Chicago series, which the two clubs split.

Nuxall was given a two-run lead in the first inning and a comfortable margin in the fourth when Andy Seminick homered with one aboard.

The Cardinals routed Jim Konstanty with four runs in the first and added three more in the second inning. Wilmer Mizell coasted with a scoreless three hitter until the ninth when the Phils rallied with a two-run pinch hit homer by Connie Ryan.

The Yankees maintained their five game margin in the American League by battering St. Louis pitching for 18 hits. Whitey Ford won his 12th game against four defeats.

Fights Last Night

Brooklyn — Wallace (Bud) Smith, 139½, Cincinnati, stopped Carl Coates, 140¾, Baltimore, 6.

Boston—Tony Demarco, 140½, Boston, stopped Terry Young, 139¾, New York, 5.

Klosterman Goes Against Doblers In City League

Big Zeke Klosterman, the strong-armed right hander, is the league-leading Colonial Merchants' hope against Doblers in the City League today.

Klosterman, a standout in recent Saturday night ball at the stadium, is expected to draw youthful Gerry Bechtold as his opponent and a real mound duel is in prospect.

The game is the first of two to test the pennant aspirations of Manager Pucker Davis' charges this week. They are scheduled to go against Wiltwyck Motors on Thursday.

Esopus Legion Post Plans Rally For LL Tourney Finals Wednesday

Township Tossers Play Poughkeepsie

The Town of Esopus American Legion Post, sponsors of Little League baseball in that township, have announced plans for a rally Wednesday evening at Little League Stadium, when the Esopus All Stars meet the Poughkeepsie American's in the finals of the District 3 tournament.

Every Legionaire who can attend the contest has been asked to report to the stadium wearing their Legion caps.

No-Hit Pitcher

Poughkeepsie's Jimmy Tyrell, well remembered from last year's tournament, pitched a no-hit, no-run game when the Bridge City nine opened the tournament against Wingdale with a 7-0 victory.

The Queen City nine then whipped Southern Dutchess, 4-2, and nailed down the sub-district title with a wild 12-10 victory over the Hudson Valley All Stars.

Esopus will be without the services of Bob Short, who is ineligible to pitch because of Little League regulations that stipulate a pitcher cannot appear in two successive games in a tournament.

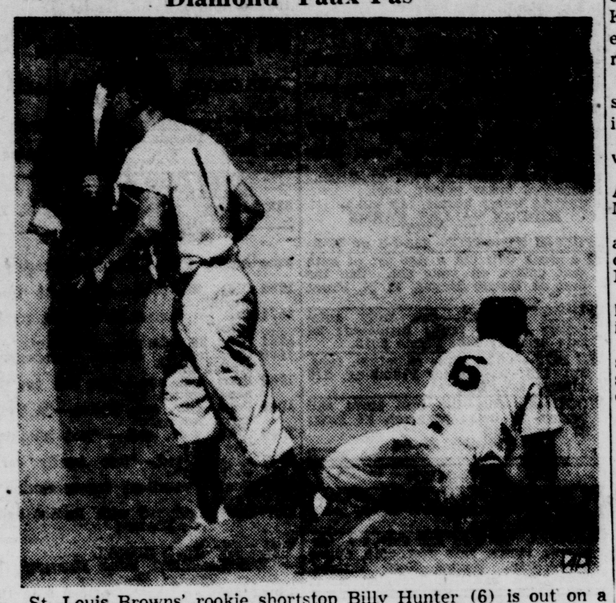

LeMay To Pitch

But the villagers have little Emory LeMay, the curve-ball wizard who stood the Kingston Americans on their collective ears for five innings.

If LeMay falters, Manager Ernie Best has three other capable pitchers in Al MacIntosh, Charlie Turner and Richie Wenzel. However, Esopus expects no serious trouble if LeMay can approximate the form he showed against Kingston.

The winner of Wednesday's game goes to Scotia for the sectionals on Aug. 14-15. The survivor of the Scotia tournament travels to the Regional at Rockville Centre, L. I. on Aug. 20-22. The winner there gets a berth in the national playoffs at Williamsport on Aug. 25-28.

Diamond 'Faux Pas'

St. Louis Browns' rookie shortstop Billy Hunter (6) is out on a boner play after Yankees' second sacker Billy Martin tagged him in sixth inning of game at Yankee Stadium. Hunter had singled and took second on throw from outfield trying to get runner going into third base. The throw was cut off and ball tossed to Martin, although not in time to get Hunter. However, Hunter, thinking he had been called out, jumped off bag to protest to umpire, Jim Duffy, in background. When Hunter left the base, Martin tagged him for the out. Yankees won, 11-3.

Balance Problems on Sidehill Lie

By JULIUS BOROS
(1952 U. S. Open Champ)

A sidehill lie poses the most difficult shot of all.

The ball can be lower or higher than the feet.

When the ball is lower than the feet since you are standing on a downward slope, you will have a tendency to reach for it. The main problem is to obtain firm footing, so you are properly balanced and capable of hitting the ball squarely. Bending the knees, the weight will be shifted more to the heels, and you will eliminate the feeling of leaning forward so much.

Grip the club as far up the shaft as possible.

The natural swing will result in a slice, so aim a little to the left of the object.

As in the case of a downhill lie, stay down throughout the swing, or you may easily top the ball.

When the ball is higher than the feet, you have the sensation of falling backward when you assume the natural stance, so concentrate the weight on the balls of the feet. The reason for choking up on the grip is that the ball is closer to you than when resting on a normal flat surface. Use a more upright stance.

The normal tendency is to hook, so shorten the backswing and aim a little to the right.

Bend the knees a little. Move the feet closer together for better balance, always the toughest problems on this type of lie.

Figuring how to execute any shot from a difficult downhill, uphill lie, decide what variations you need to make, and then swing in the normal groove.

The club should always be swung in the same manner.

UPRIGHT—Julius Boros shortens up on the grip, uses a more upright stance with weight more on the balls of the feet. (NEA)

Leibhardt

Leibhart, Aug. 4—Church services have been discontinued through August.

Vincent Van Kleeck and parents Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Van Kleeck were callers Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Herman Quick.

Tom Rice of New York is spending a few days at his home in Rochester Center.

George Benjamin of Woodridge was a caller in this area Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Chrisey of Albany visited his parents Mr. and Mrs. Luther Chrisey Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry S. Quick and sons Jerry, Jr. and Herman of Napanoch visited his mother Mrs. Herman Quick Friday.

Mrs. Lena Lypka and grandson Robert called on the Markle family Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Murmelstein and son of New York are spending their vacation at their cottage here.

Miss Swank Plants Sold to New Yorker

Middletown, Aug. 4 (AP)—Miss Swank, Inc., which operates plants here and in New York and Saugerties, was purchased yesterday by S. S. Schneirson, head of I. Schneirson & Sons, Inc., of New York.

Both firms manufacture lingerie and other underwear.

The announcement of the transaction did not disclose the purchase price. It said, however, that key personnel will be retained in their present jobs and Miss Swank, Inc., will continute to operate as a corporate entity.

Voorhees Is Appointed

Washington, Aug. 4 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson has appointed a former undersecretary of the army, Tracy Voorhees, to a dual post in Europe. The New York lawyer, who resigned his army office in 1930, will represent the Pentagon in arranging military procurement in Europe and will serve as defense adviser to the U. S. permanent representative on the North Atlantic Council, ambassador John C. Hughes. Under an order of the President, the Wilson announcement said yesterday, the post of defense adviser carries the personal rank of minister.

Peripatus Survives

The peripatus, which looks like a big worm, apparently has survived the age of dinosaurs because it lives hidden under rotting logs.

Kripplebush

Kripplebush, Aug. 4—The annual WSCS food sale and fair will be held at the lodge hall Saturday, Aug. 8 at 1 p. m. All articles should be in by Wednesday, the committee said.

Sgt. and Mrs. Lawrence Miller of Camp Lejeune, N. C. spent a few days with Mrs. Clarence Miller and family.

Bible school will open Monday, Aug. 17.

Asked to Endow Projects

Washington, Aug. 4 (AP)—Businessmen who contributed to the late Sen. Robert A. Taft's political campaign funds have been urged to endow cancer research projects in his name. Taft, who died of cancer in New York Friday, was accorded a state funeral at the capitol yesterday. Sen. Robertson (D-Va.), endorsing a proposal by Sen. Magnuson (D-Wash.) to set up cancer scholarships in Taft's memory, said businessmen had "contributed liberally" to Taft's campaign funds and "could erect no better monument to his memory" than by aiding cancer research.

Saugerties Firm Uses Ceramics for Magnetic Material

The Wall Street Journal yesterday carried a special story from Saugerties about a company "producing permanent magnetic material from clay-like ceramics."

The firm, Ferroxcube Corp. of America, an affiliate of Sprague Electric Company, North Adams, Mass., reports the magnets, unlike usual metallic magnetic materials, contain no nickel, cobalt, tungsten, chromium or other critical substances, the Journal said.

"What does produce the new magnets is a process of powder metallurgy that results in a very hard and rather brittle black pottery-like substance. When magnetized the material has excellent permanent magnet qualities. Ferroxcube Corp. maintains.

First in This Country

"The company reports it's the first in this country to reach commercial production of ceramic permanent magnet material, but admits the job has been done before in Europe. Another Ferroxcube affiliate, N. Y. Philips' Gloeilampenfabrieken of Eindhoven in The Netherlands, developed the technique.

"The magnets, under the trade name Magnadur, will be put to use first in television sets, where they'll help provide sharp focusing of the picture. Ferroxcube thinks, however, the ceramic substance may prove a boon in many fields where government allocations restrict the use of other materials."

Hearing Is Postponed

The hearing of charges of reckless driving and driving while intoxicated against Aaron B. Kiersted, 53, of Newburgh, scheduled for 5 p. m. Monday before Justice of the Peace H. C. Smalley of Clintondale, were postponed until this afternoon. Kiersted was arrested by state police following an accident near Highland on Sunday.

Highway . . .

the town of Esopus end. A substantial number of the siding boards have also dropped off, leaving gaps in the enclosed structure.

Charged With Care

The county superintendent of highways was charged with the care and preservation of the bridge by resolution of the Board of Supervisors, adopted June 11, 1940. The resolution, offered by Raymond Howe, then supervisor of the town of Esopus, read in part:

"Whereas, the opinion of this board is that (Perrine's Bridge) should be preserved and maintained, both for its historical and architectural value . . and public opinion, as voiced by the Rosendale Township Association, the Ulster County Historical Society and many other groups within the county, as well as by many of its citizens, is that the said Perrine's Bridge should be preserved and maintained . .

"Resolved, that the county of Ulster assumes the maintenance and preservation of the said old covered bridge crossing the Wallkill river, known as Perrine's Bridge, for traffic, other than vehicular, and that the duty of preserving and maintaining the same be placed under the jurisdiction of the county superintendent of highways of the county of Ulster, and that the said county superintendent of highways and his successors in office be and they hereby are charged with the duty of permanently preserving and maintaining the said bridge . . ."

Expenditure Authorized

The resolution, adopted unanimously, also authorized the expenditure of the necessary funds to keep the bridge in repair.

The bridge has a span of 136 feet and a road width of 15 feet. It is 15 or 16 feet above the stream bed at the center of the channel. It is the only remaining example of the Burr truss arch design.

Perrine's Bridge was erected in 1850. Richard Sanders Allen of Round Lake in an article on wooden bridges which appeared in "Highway Topics," a bulletin for town and county highway superintendents, in 1943, termed the bridge "the oldest known covered structure" in the state.

Chief Travel Route

When the bridge was built, the Wallkill Valley was the chief means of overland access from the Catskills to New York city.

Industries near the bridge at the time were mainly sawmills and gristmills near the dam just below the bridge. The Dimmick Carpet Mills, which survived into the early 20th century, was another famous early industry.

Continuing in use until the 1930's Perrine's Bridge was replaced by a new steel bridge a short distance upstream when Route 32 was re-located.

The bridge is named for the Perrine family which settled near the future site of the bridge about 1800. The name Perrine, is pronounced with a long "i" and is sometimes shortened by natives of the section so that when they speak of the bridge it sounds like, "Pine's Bridge."

Senate to Select

and Knowland not voting, to push ahead with the election.

Millikin produced letters or requests for a delay from Bridges, Capehart and Jenner (Ind.), Welker (Idaho), Malone (Nev.) and Bricker (Ohio).

These senators accompanied Taft's body to Ohio.

McCarthy said yesterday that he and "a great number" of Republicans would have to leave the city before voting time. However, Millikin guessed that about 40 of the 46 eligible Republican senators were on hand.

He said the party should not be without a permanent majority leader during the congressional recess, because of possibility of "a worsening in the international situation, a special session or other matters."

Lining up for the election today were Millikin, Ferguson, Saltonstall (Mass.), Young (N.D.), Dworshak (Idaho), Margaret Chase Smith (Maine), Cordon (Ore.), Hendrickson (N.J.), and Schoeppel (Kan.).

There were reports that Saltonstall, whip or assistant floor leader whom Taft ignored in naming Knowland acting leader, or Sen. Dirksen (Ill.) were willing to take the policy chairmanship.

But neither had a public bid out.

While Republicans were thus engaged, Senate Democrats took the floor last night to laud their floor leader, Lyndon B. Johnson, of Texas.

Johnson, who also spoke, said Senate Democrats had "abdicated partisanship" this session because the whole nation is "up in the air" and President Eisenhower is the only pilot.

Seven Questioned In Slaying Case

New York, Aug. 4 (AP)—Detectives today questioned at least seven persons, including several women, in the shooting death of Michael J. (Barney) Prendergast, owner of a chain of cafes.

"We think we've got something solid; that we're on the right track," one detective said.

Those being questioned were picked up in a roundup that began last night in the Bronx and Harlem.

They were taken to the office of District Attorney Frank S. Hogan. Investigators said persons seldom were taken there unless there was "something to go on."

Ammunition Seized

Police searching the homes of those who were picked up said they seized a quantity of small arms ammunition.

Prendergast was slain by a bullet in the back of the head early last Wednesday morning on comfort station steps in a lonely section of Riverside Park, known as Inspiration Point, overlooking the Hudson river. His Cadillac automobile was found later in Harlem.

Police at first worked on the theory he was slain by a hitchhiker he possibly had picked up enroute to his Bronx home. Later they considered the possibility he had been slain by "bushwackers," thugs who lie in wait to rob defenseless persons in lonely places.

Police said his slayers had taken two wallets and $86 in cash, but had overlooked in their haste another $225 in cash and checks totalling $2,772.

Ancient Egyptians painted the figure of an enemy on the soles of their sandals so they could insult him daily by treading him underfoot.

6,000 Reds Raid

across the border into the French sector. Police drove them back with clubs.

Another 3,000 attacked in the American sector and battled West Berlin police in a street fight. Police finally smashed the raid after calling up reinforcements.

Some 150,000 East Berliners defied Communist police threats and sporadic confiscation of food parcels yesterday and visited the free food stations. Many more thousands swarmed over the sector border today despite Communist disturbances.

West Berlin's American radio station told the Germans who are barred from coming to Berlin that parcels would be held for them until they can get through the Iron Curtain.

New Strikes Reported

The East Berlin hungry still poured in despite Communist threats that anybody accepting an American "Judas parcel" faced punishment as an "enemy of the state." As the food giveaway went into its ninth day, the total handout was expected to reach the 1,500,000 mark.

Communist Premier Otto Grotewohl's government denied publicly last night that there had been public resistance yesterday to the travel ban.

"Actually, many demonstrations were staged Saturday and Sunday by the populace in decisive protest against the provocative Ami (American) help," the statement declared.

The Communist again advertised a "relief campaign" to give unemployed West Berliners the western food confiscated from East Germans. Stands were set up near the sector borders but there were few takers.

Despite the food shortages in their zone, East Germans were forced by their Communist rulers to offer gifts of grain to Communist North Korea. Newspapers announced that one district had pledged three tons.

To impress the populace with his importance, Roman Emperor Nero had the soles of his sandals studded with precious stones.

Glasco Woman Is Injured in Crash

Minnie Brooks, 48, of Glasco, was reported to have injured her chest in a collision on North street near the Hutton Brick Company shortly before 3 p. m. yesterday, police said today.

She was a passenger in a car operated by Robert Garrison, 52, of Glasco, traveling north on North street, police reported. The Garrison vehicle was in collision with a car operated by Agnes D. Mormile, 33, of Saugerties, according to a report filed by Officer Crawford Millham, Jr., who investigated.

Both vehicles were reported by Officer Millham to have been damaged in the left front end.

Garrison was arrested by Millham on a charge of driving without an operator's license. The case was adjourned for one week in city court this morning at the request of Attorney Bruce Campbell of Saugerties who appeared for Garrison.

Pays Fine of $50

Beverly Hills, Calif., Aug. 4 (AP)—Arrested July 17 on a charge of drunkenness, former movie actress Barbara Bennett has paid a $50 fine. She was to have appeared for trial yesterday when the payment was disclosed in court records. Her husband, actor Robert L. Randall, paid a $50 fine July 20.

Saugerties Firm Uses Ceramics for Magnetic Material

The Wall Street Journal yesterday carried a special story from Saugerties about a company "producing permanent magnetic material from clay-like ceramics."

The firm, Ferroxcube Corp. of America, an affiliate of Sprague Electric Company, North Adams, Mass., reports the magnets, unlike usual metallic magnetic materials, contain no nickel, cobalt, tungsten, chromium or other critical substances, the Journal said.

"What does produce the new magnets is a process of powder metallurgy that results in a very hard and rather brittle black pottery-like substance. When magnetized the material has excellent permanent magnet qualities. Ferroxcube Corp. maintains.

First in This Country

"The company reports it's the first in this country to reach commercial production of ceramic permanent magnet material, but admits the job has been done before in Europe. Another Ferroxcube affiliate, N. Y. Philips' Gloeilampenfabrieken of Eindhoven in The Netherlands, developed the technique.

"The magnets, under the trade name Magnadur, will be put to use first in television sets, where they'll help provide sharp focusing of the picture. Ferroxcube thinks, however, the ceramic substance may prove a boon in many fields where government allocations restrict the use of other materials."

Hearing Is Postponed

The hearing of charges of reckless driving and driving while intoxicated against Aaron B. Kiersted, 53, of Newburgh, scheduled for 5 p. m. Monday before Justice of the Peace H. C. Smalley of Clintondale, were postponed until this afternoon. Kiersted was arrested by state police following an accident near Highland on Sunday.

the town of Esopus end. A substantial number of the siding boards have also dropped off, leaving gaps in the enclosed structure.

Charged With Care

The county superintendent of highways was charged with the care and preservation of the bridge by resolution of the Board of Supervisors, adopted June 11, 1940. The resolution, offered by Raymond Howe, then supervisor of the town of Esopus, read in part:

"Whereas, the opinion of this board is that (Perrine's Bridge) should be preserved and maintained, both for its historical and architectural value . . and public opinion, as voiced by the Rosendale Township Association, the Ulster County Historical Society and many other groups within the county, as well as by many of its citizens, is that the said Perrine's Bridge should be preserved and maintained . . .

"Resolved, that the county of Ulster assumes the maintenance and preservation of the said old covered bridge crossing the Wallkill river, known as Perrine's Bridge, for traffic, other than vehicular, and that the duty of preserving and maintaining the same be placed under the jurisdiction of the county superintendent of highways of the county of Ulster, and that the said county superintendent of highways and his successors in office be and they hereby are charged with the duty of permanently preserving and maintaining the said bridge . . ."

Expenditure Authorized

The resolution, adopted unanimously, also authorized the expenditure of the necessary funds to keep the bridge in repair.

The bridge has a span of 136 feet and a road width of 15 feet. It is 15 or 16 feet above the stream bed at the center of the channel. It is the only remaining example of the Burr truss arch design.

Perrine's Bridge was erected in 1850. Richard Sanders Allen of Round Lake in an article on wooden bridges which appeared in "Highway Topics," a bulletin for town and county highway superintendents, in 1943, termed the bridge "the oldest known covered structure" in the state.

Chief Travel Route

When the bridge was built, the Wallkill Valley was the chief means of overland access from the Catskills to New York city.

Industries near the bridge at the time were mainly sawmills and gristmills near the dam just below the bridge. The Dimmick Carpet Mills, which survived into the early 20th century, was another famous early industry.

Continuing in use until the 1930's Perrine's Bridge was replaced by a new steel bridge a short distance upstream when Route 32 was re-located.

The bridge is named for the Perrine family which settled near the future site of the bridge about 1800. The name Perrine, is pronounced with a long "i" and is sometimes shortened by natives of the section so that when they speak of the bridge it sounds like, "Pine's Bridge."

Senate to Select

and Knowland not voting, to push ahead with the election.

Millikin produced letters or requests for a delay from Bridges, Capehart and Jenner (Ind.), Welker (Idaho), Malone (Nev.) and Bricker (Ohio).

These senators accompanied Taft's body to Ohio.

McCarthy said yesterday that he and "a great number" of Republicans would have to leave the city before voting time. However, Millikin guessed that about 40 of the 46 eligible Republican senators were on hand.

He said the party should not be without a permanent majority leader during the congressional recess, because of possibility of "a worsening in the international situation, a special session or other matters."

Lining up for the election today were Millikin, Ferguson, Saltonstall (Mass.), Young (N.D.), Dworshak (Idaho), Margaret Chase Smith (Maine), Cordon (Ore.), Hendrickson (N.J.), and Schoeppel (Kan.).

There were reports that Saltonstall, whip or assistant floor leader whom Taft ignored in naming Knowland acting leader, or Sen. Dirksen (Ill.) were willing to take the policy chairmanship.

But neither had a public bid out.

While Republicans were thus engaged, Senate Democrats took the floor last night to laud their floor leader, Lyndon B. Johnson, of Texas.

Johnson, who also spoke, said Senate Democrats had "abdicated partisanship" this session because the whole nation is "up in the air" and President Eisenhower is the only pilot.

Seven Questioned In Slaying Case

New York, Aug. 4 (AP)—Detectives today questioned at least seven persons, including several women, in the shooting death of Michael J. (Barney) Prendergast, owner of a chain of cafes.

"We think we've got something solid; that we're on the right track," one detective said.

Those being questioned were picked up in a roundup that began last night in the Bronx and Harlem.

They were taken to the office of District Attorney Frank S. Hogan. Investigators said persons seldom were taken there unless there was "something to go on."

Ammunition Seized

Police searching the homes of those who were picked up said they seized a quantity of small arms ammunition.

Prendergast was slain by a bullet in the back of the head early last Wednesday morning on comfort station steps in a lonely section of Riverside Park, known as Inspiration Point, overlooking the Hudson river. His Cadillac automobile was found later in Harlem.

Police at first worked on the theory he was slain by a hitchhiker he possibly had picked up enroute to his Bronv home. Later they considered the possibility he had been slain by "bushwackers," thugs who lie in wait to rob defenseless persons in lonely places.

Police said his slayers had taken two wallets and $86 in cash, but had overlooked in their haste another $225 in cash and checks totalling $2,772.

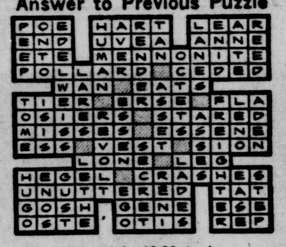

Ancient Egyptians painted the figure of an enemy on the soles of their sandals so they could insult him daily by treading him underfoot.

6,000 Reds Raid

across the border into the French sector. Police drove them back with clubs.

Another 3,000 attacked in the American sector and battled West Berlin police in a street fight. Police finally smashed the raid after calling up reinforcements.

Some 150,000 East Berliners defied Communist police threats and sporadic confiscation of food parcels yesterday and visited the free food stations. Many more thousands swarmed over the sector border today despite Communist disturbances.

West Berlin's American radio station told the Germans who are barred from coming to Berlin that parcels would be held for them until they can get through the Iron Curtain.

New Strikes Reported

The East Berlin hungry still poured in despite Communist threats that anybody accepting an American "Judas parcel" faced punishment as an "enemy of the state." As the food giveaway went into its ninth day, the total handout was expected to reach the 1,500,000 mark.

Communist Premier Otto Grotewohl's government denied publicly last night that there had been public resistance yesterday to the travel ban.

"Actually, many demonstrations were staged Saturday and Sunday by the populace in decisive protest against the provocative Ami (American) help," the statement declared.

The Communist again advertised a "relief campaign" to give unemployed West Berliners the western food confiscated from East Germans. Stands were set up near the sector borders but there were few takers.

Despite the food shortages in their zone, East Germans were forced by their Communist rulers to offer gifts of grain to Communist North Korea. Newspapers announced that one district had pledged three tons.

To impress the populace with his importance, Roman Emperor Nero had the soles of his sandals studded with precious stones.

Glasco Woman Is Injured in Crash

Minnie Brooks, 48, of Glasco, was reported to have injured her chest in a collision on North street near the Hutton Brick Company shortly before 3 p. m. yesterday, police said today.

She was a passenger in a car operated by Robert Garrison, 52, of Glasco, traveling north on North street, police reported. The Garrison vehicle was in collision with a car operated by Agnes D. Mormile, 33, of Saugerties, according to a report filed by Officer Crawford Millham, Jr., who investigated.

Both vehicles were reported by Officer Millham to have been damaged in the left front end.

Garrison was arrested by Millham on a charge of driving without an operator's license. The case was adjourned for one week in city court this morning at the request of Attorney Bruce Campbell of Saugerties who appeared for Garrison.

Pays Fine of $50

Beverly Hills, Calif., Aug. 4 (AP)—Arrested July 17 on a charge of drunkenness, former movie actress Barbara Bennett has paid a $50 fine. She was to have appeared for trial yesterday when the payment was disclosed in court records. Her husband, actor Robert L. Randall, paid a $50 fine July 20.

One of Fair Attractions

Ulster Hose Plans 6th Annual Fair

The sixth annual Firemen's Fair sponsored by Ulster Hose Company No. 5, Inc., will be held at the firehouse grounds on Albany avenue extension this week Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings.

Activities planned include pony rides for the youngsters, a concert and drill Thursday night by the Port Ewen Drum Corps, various booths, refreshments, and a pie eating contest.

The pony, Spot, will be given away at the close of the fair to one of the children who rides him during the fair.

This year's fair will be under the general supervision of Eugene Kolts, Jr. Paul Werner and Charles Kelder are assisting in the planning, and promise "new surprises."

The ladies' auxiliary will take an active part, providing a parcel post booth, baked goods booth and fancy goods booth. The ladies also will supervise the sale of refreshments.

The fair is one of the fund raising events sponsored by Ulster Hose Company which owns its own firehouse and grounds.

Parkers Pay $3,650 In Month of July

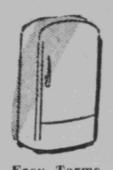

Parking meter collections for the month of July amounted to $3,650, it was announced today by City Treasurer Oscar A. Goodsell.

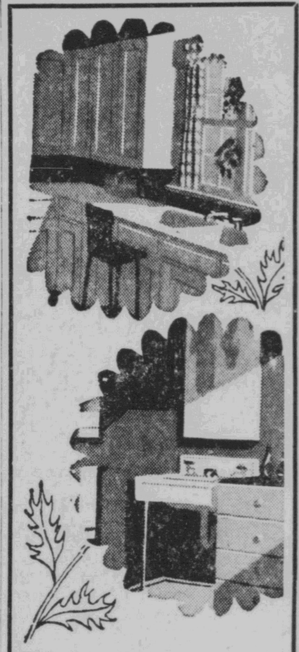

This brings the total for the year to date to $24,300.

For the same month last year collections amounted to $3,700. In July, 1951, collections totaled $3,400, in the same month of 1950, $3,428, in 1949, $3,537.

High temperature 80-85. Low tonight about 60. Tomorrow showers, then clearing and cooler. Southerly winds 10-20 miles per hour, briefly higher in thundershowers, shifting to westerly tomorrow.

One of Fair Attractions

Ulster Hose Plans 6th Annual Fair

The sixth annual Firemen's Fair sponsored by Ulster Hose Company No. 5, Inc., will be held at the firehouse grounds on Albany avenue extension this week Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings.

Activities planned include pony rides for the youngsters, a concert and drill Thursday night by the Port Ewen Drum Corps, various booths, refreshments, and a pie eating contest.

The pony, Spot, will be given away at the close of the fair to one of the children who rides him during the fair.

This year's fair will be under the general supervision of Eugene Kolts, Jr. Paul Werner and Charles Kelder are assisting in the planning, and promise "new surprises."

The ladies' auxiliary will take an active part, providing a parcel post booth, baked goods booth and fancy goods booth. The ladies also will supervise the sale of refreshments.

The fair is one of the fund raising events sponsored by Ulster Hose Company which owns its own firehouse and grounds.

Parkers Pay $3,650 In Month of July

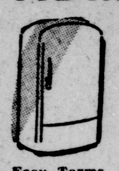

Parking meter collections for the month of July amounted to $3,650, it was announced today by City Treasurer Oscar A. Goodsell.

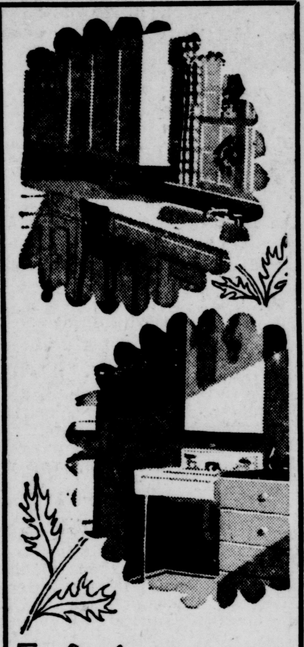

This brings the total for the year to date to $24,300.

For the same month last year collections amounted to $3,700. In July, 1951, collections totaled $3,400, in the same month of 1950, $3,428, in 1949, $3,537.
